Don't Neglect Colds.
5-Day Week in Politics.
No One Born Too Soon.
The Adaptable British.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DR. L. STIEGLITZ, of New York, a brilliant physician and scientist, rebuked an elderly patient for neglecting a cold. The rebuke should be useful to all men past 50.

"Nothing could be more dangerous," said Dr. Stieglitz. "When you neglect a cold at 60, or older, you deliberately endanger your life. A cold in itself may be easily cured, with two or three days in bed. Neglected it runs into pneumonia.

"Mr. Whitney, who died recently, aged 58, had a cold and went about for three days neglecting it, attending to business, and finally went to bed. Pneumonia developed and he died in 24 hours. He hadn't a chance. If he had gone to bed at the first signs of a cold, he would be alive and well now."

Men around 60 are dull beings, usually, but some of them do useful work, and are important to their families. They should heed Dr. Stieglitz's warning.

FORMER GOV. ALFRED E. SMITH, enthusiastically welcomed in New England, his stronghold in the 1928 election, attacks President Hoover for neglecting the employment problem. That is politics, and temporary.

The former governor urgently demands a five-day week and is loudly cheered. That is new and important, coming from one that may well be regarded as a presidential candidate for 1932.

BERNARD SHAW, in his new "talkie," tells the world he was born 50 years too soon. But, if he could return in 50 years, and learn what has happened to the sale of his books, he might be surprised.

No one is born too soon. One in thousands of millions is born to outlast his age, and other ages, Shakespeare, Euripides, Dante, Homer, Michael Angelo. But even they will pass, and become as obsolete as the cromagnon artists.

Shaw shows his 75 years in talking about himself too much, his beard, his forehead, his cleverness. Movietone managers should speak to him.

ON MONDAY the King looked over his speech, to be read in the House of Lords, and approved it. He saw it then, for the first time, when Ramsay MacDonald, who wrote it, handed it to him. You know that the British are an adaptable people when you see their King approving a speech of imperial policies written for him by a labor unionist.

Can you imagine one of our money kings approving a speech of corporation policies written in his name by the head of a labor union?

MUSSOLINI, about to celebrate the eighth anniversary of his rise to absolute power in Italy, accuses the European nations of deliberately planning another war, and keeping one group of nations disarmed with that plan in view.

Most important, Mussolini for the first time officially sides with Germany, Hungary and other nations that demand revision of the Versailles treaties.

OUR GOVERNMENT at present is congratulating itself on sinking 30,000 tons of United States submarines at the suggestion of England, which owns most of the commercial ships afloat and naturally doesn't like submarines.

We may wish before long that we had kept those undersea boats. It wouldn't have cost much, if anything, to keep them, and we may soon be rebuilding them.

WHEN YOU catch a whale you often find some parasite attached to it. Savage sharks have smaller, more savage beasts fastened to their bodies. American business, in lines constantly widening, seems threatened with racketeer parasites, more deadly than any found in the ocean.

THE LITTLE miniature golf business man might have hoped to escape the racketeers' attention. Joseph Feurman, now dead, learned the contrary.

Detectives say he refused to pay blackmail demanded by miniature golf course racketeers. They took him for a ride in his own automobile, shot him dead, and threw him out. They did not bother to take his "two large diamonds and plentiful supply of money," his corpse was intended as a warning to others.

THE BRITISH government wants to diminish or eliminate the performances, perfunctory flummery now, at the tomb of the unknown soldier, and invites all other nations to do the same. Britain thinks the ceremonies keep alive the war spirit, and inflict hardship on visiting statesmen, now expected to buy a wreath and hurry to the tomb on arrival.

THE CEREMONIES that have no meaning might be omitted out of consideration for the unknown dead man. Whoever he may be, he is entitled to rest now that the war has been over so long.

And the public is tired of nonentities, from abroad, hurrying to the tomb, to use the tomb as an advertisement for themselves.

JURY WEIGHS BAT DEATH CASE

WARN 40,000 HOMES OF WATER

South Pittsburgh Company Advises Storage as Benzol Waste Menaces Intakes

The South Pittsburgh Water Company today issued a warning to 40,000 families to lay up three days' water supply while company workmen would be kept busy fighting to keep the company's intake pipes from being filled with water containing benzol and phenol waste.

J. H. Simpson, treasurer of the company, said today the storage suggestion had been interpreted by many persons to mean that the water supply would be shut off. He said there was no thought of stopping the pump, and that if all the 40,000 customers stored sufficient water for three days, there would be no diminution of pressure in the mains.

WASTE PUZZLES

Simpson said there was no way of telling when the Clairton waste would reach the pump intakes, as it might come tomorrow, a week from now, or possibly not at all.

An unpleasant odor and taste may appear in the water, the company officials announced, but at all times the water supply will be free from harmful impurities.

CAUSED BY FIRE

The warning is issued as a result of a fire Monday in the addition to the Carnegie Steel Co. pany plant at Clairton, when a large quantity of benzol and phenol waste ran into the Monongahela River from tanks in the plant. The waste matter entered the river nine miles above the intake pipes of the water company.

Radio Doctor's Witness Makes 'Cure' in Court

A demonstration in the court of the reputed efficacy of "Aerothonic" treatments for disease was made today at the trial of Dr. J. E. Johnston, radio doctor of the East End, was given by Dr. H. C. Bennett, of Lima, O., a witness for Johnstown.

Attorney W. H. Coleman, of the defense, was found by Dr. Bennett to have "waves" indicating he was a sufferer from "toxic influenza."

After being "wave" treated Coleman said he felt much better.

CONSPIRACY QUASHED

Johnston was indicted on a charge of conspiracy and taking money under false pretense. The conspiracy charge was quashed today for lack of evidence. Esther Mesing, Johnston's nurse, also was freed of the conspiracy charge.

With a small box, about eight inches square, Dr. Bennett demonstrated what he claims is a way of curing any ailment. Coleman was asked to write his name on a piece of paper. The paper was placed in a small compartment of the box.

A pencil-like wand connected with the box was placed between the leaves of a book containing the "wave lengths" at which different diseases "vibrate," and when the wand reaches the wave length that corresponds to the disease symptoms indicater by the "detector," the doctor goes ahead and treats the patient. That is what was done to Coleman and he said it worked.

DESCRIBES METHOD

Johnston took the stand this morning and detailed his method of treating disease through the use of radio waves. He described

EIGHT LOST AS YACHT SINKS

Owner, Wife Among Dead; Liner Mallory Saves Six Half-Crazed Survivors

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Eight lives were lost at sea, including those of the owner and his wife, when the yacht Barbadoes went down in a gale off Delaware breakwater.

Three of the victims died from exposure and their bodies were flung overboard from a water-logged lifeboat in which six survivors fought against the heavy sea.

The six survivors, picked up half-crazy last night by the liner Henry R. Mallory, were landed today and taken to the hospital in a serious conditions from exposure and hunger.

SWIM FROM YACHT

They swam clear in the icy water from the Barbadoes when it was sucked down beneath them. They clung to a lifeboat washed clear of the sinking vessel, struggled into it and picked up three other sailers, who died Sunday night.

Capt. Louis Hough, of Long Beach, Cal., one of the survivors, said:

"The yacht just shuddered and then went down. If the lifeboat hadn't been unlashed we

'ACCIDENT,' HARTLEP'S DEFENSE

State Demands Verdict of First-Degree Murder in Slaying of Lad in Park

A jury of five women and seven men retired at 10:35 a. m. today to deliberate on a verdict in the case of William Hartlep, supervisor of North Side parks, charged with killing George Joseph Nieberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue, with a baseball bat.

Late this afternoon the jury had not reached a verdict.

At the opening of court this morning Visiting Judge William A. McConnell charged the jury.

The state had demanded a verdict of first degree murder, with life imprisonment.

Nieberding died June 28 of a skull fracture suffered the day before when Hartlep struck him with a bat after breaking up a ball game in West Park.

SAYS BLOW ACCIDENTAL

Hartlep, on the stand in his own defense late yesterday, maintained he had not intended to strike the boy, and his attorney, Edward G. Coll, dwelt at length in his summing up of the evidence, on statements of defense witnesses that the blow was seemingly an accident.

MOTHERS SAVE BABIES IN FIRE

Two mothers carried their babies through smoke-filled rooms and reached safety by way of fire escapes, when flames badly damaged a three-story apartment building at 707-709 Mulberry street, Wilkinsburg, today.

Mrs. R. J. Tucker, residing on the third floor, groped her way through dense smoke in the kitchen of her suite, carrying her son, Raymond, 2, and descended the safety stairs after warning Mrs. R. P. Martsell on the same floor. The latter carried her six-weeks-old infant to safety.

Other occupants of the building were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McMunn, first floor, who were not at home; Miss Edna Hoover, dressmaker, and the Misses Florence and Fannie Guy, on the second floor.

The fire started in the basement, presumably from the furnace, and ate its way to the roof.

Dr. J. C. Simpson, owner of the building, estimated the damage at $15,000.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—King Carol today drove out to Queen Marie's Baltchik palace on the Black Sea to congratulate his mother on her fifty-fifth birthday.

Fine Two in Lottery at School

Two alleged numbers writing agents, believed by police to have been selling chances to children of the Franklin Public School, Logan and Foxhurst streets, were fined $50 or 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Police testified that the two, Abraham Curry, of 1724 Cliff street, and Charles Brown, Negro, 1203 Wylie avenue, had been arrested yesterday in a parked automobile 50 feet from the schoolhouse.

Inspector Albert Beebe informed the magistrate complaints were still being received from parents in the Hill district that their children were being annoyed by the lottery agents.

Oliver Steel Wins $452,000 Tax Refund

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The Bureau of Internal Revenue has approved a tax refund of $452,430 to the Oliver Iron and Steel Company and subsidiaries of Pittsburgh, covering over-assessments from 1917 through 1920.

PINCHOT DENIES BLAMING P.R.R.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Launching another attack on W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, prior to his departure today for a speaking tour in the anthracite fields, Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, denied he had ever said the Pennsylvania Railroad has "coerced" its employes with respect to their votes in the coming election.

Pinchot's statement was in replay to a three-page statement made public by the board of directors of the railroad two days ago.

BLAMES ATTERBURY

He said:

"I never made any such statement regarding the Pennsylvania Railroad as a corporation.

HEMPHILL HITS PINCHOT, DRYS

John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party nominee for governor, and his Democratic running mates addressed a Western Pennsylvania rally last night in North Side Carnegie Music Hall, centering their speeches in attacks on Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, and prohibition.

Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence presented Attorney Charles Alvin Jones, local campaign chairman, who presided. About 1,200 persons, including many Republicans, it was stated, were present.

Other speakers were Sedgwick Kistler, nominee for United States senator; Guy K. Bard, for lieutenant governor; Lucy D. Winston, for secretary of internal affairs, and former Judge A. E. Reiber and George F. Douglas, for judges of Superior Court.

Rex Leases's Guest Beaten in Club Row

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—A battle of fists and furniture in the Skyscraper Club rooms of the Los Angeles Press Club was described today after it was learned that Oliver Price, said to be a wealthy oil man, had been treated for cuts and bruises at the police hospital.

Police quieted the affray in which several persons sustained black eyes and bruises, but no arrests were made. Price said he was the guest of Rex Lease, film actor.

Voters Given Final Chance to Qualify

Tomorrow gives last opportunity to citizens of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, who failed to register by reason of absence or illness, to qualify to cast ballots at the election next Tuesday. Petitions to county commissioners to have names placed on the list of registered voters require filing of affidavits as to inability to register on any of the three registration days.

FAZIO, HELPER PLEAD GUILTY

Philip Fazio, wildcat brewer, of Clairton, who was acquitted in the barrel murder of William Gregory, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the liquor laws before Judge S. H. Gardner in Criminal Court today.

Elmer C. Wenning, of Turtle Creek, beer runner for Fazio, also pleaded guilty. The third defendant in the alleged conspiracy, Jacob Blazkovec, alias Jacob Block, brewmaster, failed to appear, and his cash bond of $500 was ordered forfeited. Fazio and Wenning will be sentenced Friday.

Grand Opera Star, Band Feature Hemphill Rally

Martha Atwood, grand opera star; the Pittsburgh Male Chorus, and Nirella's Orchestra will add unique notes to the rumble of political oratory at a rally sponsored by the Liberal party of Allegheny in Carnegie Music Hall, North Side, tomorrow night.

The rally was arranged in 48 hours as one of the final vote appeals for John M. Hemphill, Democrat-Liberal candidate for governor, in Western Pennsylvania.

Speakers will include Arthur M. Scully, county chairman of the Liberal party; Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler; Samuel Harden Church, Francis H. Bohlen, J. I. Simon, Joseph H. Bowers, of Leechburg, and Capt. Erno McClelland, of Greene County.

TOO BEAUTIFUL, WINS DIVORCE

Joseph G. Shea, of McKees Rocks, told his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Shea, 22, of 500 Fordham avenue Mt. Lebanon, she was too pretty and that he was going to poison her, according to the wife's testimony in her divorce proceedings. She was granted a divorce yesterday in Common Pleas Court.

Shea, according to his wife's testimony, placed baking soda in a cup of coffee, leading her to believe it was poison. He forced her mouth open with a pair of scissors, it was testified, and poured the coffee down her throat.

The wife told Judge Harry H. Rowand Shea also threatened to throw acid in her face. They were married September 15, 1928, at Wellsburg, W. Va.

AIELLO BURIED, $11,800 COFFIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Joe Aiello, gangland boss who fell before underworld machine-gun "executioners" last week, went to his grave in Mount Carmel Cemetery today in an $11,800 coffin.

It was his last ride through the North Side Ghetto, where he lived by violence and died violently. Rites of the church were denied.

His cortege passed under the watch of police, who thought "possibly they might see someone" wanted for questioning.

Seventeen cars were in the procession, and the flamboyant display of other gangland memorial rites, with their pomp and ostentation, were missing.

1,000 U. S. Notables See Whitney Buried

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Harry Payne Whitney, sportsman, philanthropist, and one of the nation's wealthiest men, was buried today from St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church.

More than 1,000 of his friends attended the services, including notables of the business, political, financial and sporting worlds. Among these were Elihu Root, George F. Baker, Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, and Joseph E. Widener.

Jack Dempsey's Child 'Pal' Kidnaped, Rescued

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—If her pal, Jack Dempsey, were here, that man wouldn't have taken her away. Dempsey would have punched him in the nose.

So lisped 5-year-old Pauline Cronk, self-styled "pal" to most of the sporting world celebrities, today, as she sat safely in her home here after a three-hour experience with a deranged kidnaper last night.

Pauline is well schooled in the jargon of sportdom because of the fact that her father, Samuel, is popular in local athletic circles.

She was lured from the porch of her home here by the promise of a doll.

After three hours of combing the city, police found Fred Tate, 39, a deranged World War veteran, wandering on the streets with the child. Tate will be given a sanity hearing and if found sane, police said, he will face charges of kidnaping.

Pauline talked readily with police today. But uppermost in her mind was the fact that her boxing champion was not here. The child boasted:

"Jack Dempsey is my pal. I always get my pictures taken on his lap. He's swell.

"I'm going to write a letter to him and tell him to come back to Detroit. He'll punch that guy on the nose."

Pittsburgh Police Launch Drive to Aid Jobless

City police heads, including Mayor Charles H. Kline, and patrolmen, janitors and other station house attaches today were asked to contribute to a fund started by Fort Pitt Lodge No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police relief committee to aid destitute families of Pittsburgh.

After contributing $500 to the lodge's donation, the committee distributed pledge cards to city employes asking that each employe donate at least one day's wage to the fund. Fifteen hundred cards were given out.

Traffic Officer John Fogarty, president of the lodge, said $10,000 is to be raised in this manner, with the average daily wage of the employes fixed at $6. More cards will be distributed later.

Charles C. Crummer is general chairman of the relief committee. Honorary chairman are Mayor Kline, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Assistent Supt. Ben R. Marshall.

The committee will meet tonight to complete details of the manner in which deserving families will be given relief.

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY AND MT. MERCY COLLEGE MERGED

2 SCHOOLS BENEFIT BY MOVE

Institutions Consolidated Under One Control as Father Hehir Retires

The merger of two of Pittsburgh's outstanding educational institutions was completed yesterday when the Rev. Dr. James F. Carroll, vice president of Duquesne University, announced that the university registrar had transferred the names of students of Mt. Mercy College to Duquesne University registration blanks. Mt. Mercy College, established but two years ago, will now be known as Mt. Mercy College of Duquesne University.

Dr. Carroll said a branch of the College of Liberal Arts and Letters of Duquesne University has been established at Mt. Mercy and there will be an interchange of faculty members of the two institutions. Degrees will be awarded by Duquesne University and all students registered at either institution will be classed as Duquesne students.

MANY ADVANTAGES

The combining of the two schools will hold many advantages for each and will add to the rapid progress being made by both Duquesne and the comparatively new college of Mt. Mercy. The interchange of faculty members will be broadened into the interchange of students in the near future. A step in this direction has been taken, since a distinguished member of the Mt. Mercy College faculty, Sister Francis Xavier, O. M., conducts a class in biology at Duquesne University on Saturday mornings throughout the college year.

The Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, retiring president of Duquesne, who held that office for more than 31 years, declares the move marks another step in the growth of the institution which he has watched for more than three decades.

FIFTY-THIRD YEAR

Duquesne University now is in its fifty-third year and has been co-educational since the fall term of 1927, shortly before the institution celebrated its golden jubilee. The university has nine schools and colleges, each of which marked a separate step in the growth of the university under the Very Rev. Hehir, who will be succeeded by the Rev. J. J. Callahan, of Holy Ghost Apostolic College at Cornwells, Pa.

Mt. Mercy College was established September, 1929, by the Sisters of Mercy, and is conducted in conjunction with the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy at 3333 Fifth avenue, Oakland.

KELLEY OUSTED FOR OIL CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Ralph S. Kelley, former chief of the Denver land office of the Department of Interior, today was dismissed from the government service by Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur.

He had been under suspension since September 29 last when he publicly charged the department was illegally awarding valuable oil shale lands in Colorado to powerful interests. He cited his charges to a New York newspaper and the Department of Justice declared Monday an investigation proved they were without merit.

Yesterday President Hoover issued a public statement in which he charged Kelley's assertions were "fabrications" and branded them as "an attempt to charge odious oil scandals to this administration."

Head-Hunters Slay 86 During Rebellion

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The fury of an uprising by head-hunting savages in Central Formosa was attested today in a report received at the war office, saying the bodies of 86 Japanese, slain by the rebelling aborigines, had been found at Musha after a Japanese punitive expedition had fought its way through the marauders.

Oldest Clergyman, 104, Dies in Erin

MAGILLIGAN, Northern Ireland, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The Rev. Hugh Butler, said to be the world's oldest clergyman in point of service and years of life, died today at 104. He had been minister of the Magilligan Presbyterian Church nearly 79 years.

RADIO DOCTOR MAKES 'CURE'

how he got contact with patients merely by having them write their names on a piece of paper, which started "waves" emanating from them. At the same time, the doctor said, his own "waves" became active and when the two waves clashed, a cure was effected.

Johnston said he used electricity to treat diseases 31 years ago and was in bad repute. He said:

"I used electrical treatments for the cure of ailments 31 years ago, and was ridiculed. Now electrical treatments are common practice. I believe I can cure diseases by the use of radio, which is only another application of the electricity principal."

CROSS-QUESTIONED

Cross-questioned by Assistant District Attorney James Geljz as to his methods of treatment, Johnston explained:

"I use everything I know to restore health. In addition to radio, I apply standard homeopathic treatment. I use no wires, as I find radio waves can be transmitted better without wires. In the matter of cancer, all cases start in the liver or gall duct. If a patient writes his name today I can tell 40 years from now what ailment afflicts him."

TO CALL PATIENTS

More than a score of witnesses, including several patients of the doctor, are to be called by Maj. Robert M. Ewing and Attorney William Coleman to testify in the defendants' behalf.

As the trial opened yesterday the jury heard a dramatic recital from County Detective David Drexler as to how he approached the doctor for radio treatment of a mythical sister in Washington, Pa., last May 26. At that time, Drexler told the court, Dr. Johnston promised for the sum of $65 monthly to cure the sister of cancer, anemia, tuberculosis and scarema by manipulating for nine months radio controls in his office.

Shortly after Drexler is alleged to have paid Dr. Johnston $25 in marked money as a retainer fee, county detectives raided his offices in the Liberty Building, 6101 Penn avenue, and reported confiscating a large amount of "radio" equipment used in the treatments. Drexler said the physician told him he had patients in all parts of the world, including France, Germany, South America and the Belgian Congo.

BAT KILLING IN JURY'S HANDS

T. Adair, the prosecutor, pointed out how the boys who had been playing with the dead lad had all testified that Hartlep had swung a bat at the boy's head.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department; James Moore, superintendent of parks, and Mrs. Mary Crowley, of the Board of Education, all testified to the excellent reputation Hartlep bore, at the opening of the defense's case. Then Judge McConnell, to save time for hearing of a long list of character witnesses, asked if the prosecution would admit that Hartlep's reputation was good. On their doing so, the judge ruled out any more character witnesses as being unnecessary.

EYE-WITNESSES

Three eye-witnesses were then produced by the defense in an effort to stress the accidental theory. Harry A. Matheson, 1215 Reddour street, who had been sitting in the park 50 feet away, said the boy came in contact with a bat in Hartlep's hand while the latter was swinging it to ward off the boys' attack. William A. Adamy, 832 Western avenue, sitting on a bench 100 yards away, said the boys kept backing Hartlep up, while he swung the bats to keep them off. He did not see the fatal blow. Thomas Bartley, Brighton road, said the dead boy rushed in as Hartlep swung.

Hartlep testified he had stopped the boys' ball game and confiscated the bats, which he was taking to the office in the nearby greenhouse. He told the boys they could get them by coming there and giving their names. Then, he said, he would write their parents asking them to keep the boys from playing ball in the park.

HARTLEP TESTIFIES

"The boys surrounded me calling for me to give their bats back," he testified. "I had gone about 20 feet. Joe was striking with another bat, trying to knock the bats out of my hands. "I ran forward, and then stopped suddenly, throwing a bat over my head. At the same moment Joe ran into me from behind and the bat struck his head as I threw it back over my shoulder."

"Did you intend to strike the boy?" asked Coll.

"I did not," replied Hartlep.

Hartlep helped the boy to his feet and helped walk him to the Presbyterian Hospital across the street, where the lad died the next day.

ARRANGE RITES FOR BEALE

Funeral arrangements were being made today for Addison H. Beale, president of the A. M. Byers Company, who died in Chicago yesterday. Mr. Beale lived at 4947 Wallingford street, East End, and was in Chicago on a business trip when he died. His body is to be returned here tonight.

Mr. Beale was taken ill in the offices of the H. A. Brassert & Co., engineers for his firm. He was removed to the home of his son, Warren Beale, where he died a short time later.

He was a prominent figure in the steel industry and had been president of the Byers company for five years. Prior to that he had been associated with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Eastern Steel Company, Lebanon Iron Company and the Steel and Tube Company of America.

At the time of his death he also was president of the Pennsylvania Industries Company, and was on the boards of directors of the Pittsburgh United Corporation and the Sharon Steel Hoop Company.

He was a member of the Duquesne Club, Oakmont Country Club and the Pittsburgh Field Club. He leaves his widow, two sons, Warren and Joseph Beale, and a daughter, Mrs. John D. Shaner.

DO-X to Have Final Test Tomorrow

Coolidge Urges Election Of Most Able Candidates

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 29.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

When we carefully examine it the wonder grows that, under the political practice we have developed, our government is so good. We do not give enough attention to nominations nor elections. We let our choice turn on some immaterial personal characteristic that has nothing to do with the qualifications for the office. We heap so much abuse on public servants that many with every capacity for office will not subject themselves to the ordeal. Conspicuous success in private life is often considered a bar to public recognition. In response to some whim we support candidates who can only succeed in office by disregardinng the reason for which they were elected.

Calvin Coolidge

All of these practices put our government at a disadvantage. We are only saved from a complete disaster because the average person rises somewhat to responsibility. With our increasingly intricate system of government and business we must give more attention to the capacity of candidates. Their decisions affect our whole national life. Public service is a most exacting profession. Honest and good intentions are almost useless unless they are supplemented by ability. When we vote for anything but the best we cheat ourselves, our families and our country.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

265 CONGRESS NOMINEES ANTI-DRY

Poll Shows 28 in Penna. Favor Change in Volstead Law, Five to Support It

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Of the congressional candidates who took the trouble to answer questionnaires sent out by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the majority is overwhelmingly anti-dry.

The association sent out 823 requests for office seekers' views on the dry laws. It received 371 replies, 99 of them against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and 265 calling for abolition of the prohibition clause in the Constitution. In addition a scattered few, said Henry H. Curran, president of the association, favored a popular vote or wished for modification of the Volstead act.

ISSUE IN 34 STATES

Curran concluded the dry issue would appear in congressional races in 34 states, among them Iowa, Arkansas, Texas, Oregon, Utah, West Virginia and Vermont.

Twenty-eight replies received from Pennsylvania nominees in its poll advocated repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Five candidates answered they would not vote for repeal.

No reply was received from 58 candidates to whom questionnaires were sent.

The Pennsylvania candidates who indicated they would uphold the dry law included: L. T. McFadden, of Canton; Franklin Menges, of York; Harry L. Haines, of Red Lion; J. Drew Pague, of Montoursville, and J. Howard Swick, of Beaver Falls.

ADVOCATE REPEAL

Those advocating repeal included: Frank J. Pierce of Lackawaxen; Samuel M. Shipman of Shamokin; D. R. Tombs of Indiana; Harry D. Wescott of Media; George E. Wolfe of Johnstown; Charles S. Hill of Philadelphia; Dr. M. M. Brooke of Confluence; James M. Cramer of Youngwood; Thomas J. Carroll of Philadelphia; Bernard J. Clark of Altoona; James J. Connolly of Philadelphia; Maxwell J. MISSING BANK HEAD RETURNS

GALVA, Ill., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Earl Yocum, wealthy Galva banker, returned unharmed to his home today after having been supposedly held for ransom, but left his three-day absence as deep a mystery as ever.

The banker refused to see callers or to answer the telephone. His wife said he had been kidnaped, but she would not discuss the subject of ransom or how he got back to his home.

Mrs. Yocum said she did not know where her husband had been held by the extortionists. She added:

"I'm not even sure that he knows himself."

YACHT SINKS, EIGHT LOST

would all have gone down with it."

The five who went down with the boat didn't have a chance as they were below deck. They were E. G. Valverde, owner; his wife; his chauffeur, known as "Willie"; Chief Engineer Smith and Assistant Engineer J. F. Walker.

DEAD TOSSED INTO SEA

The three dead men tossed overboard were George Franklin, seaman; George Watt, cook, and Walters, the mess boy. The six kept the bodies in the lifeboat for 12 hours. Then as the boat kept filling with water as they bailed, they were forced to throw the dead overboard.

Besides Capt. Hough, the survivors were Joseph Valverde, second mate and cousin of the owner; George Lawrence, messman; A. Lynch, fireman; Alexander Allenby, seaman, and Henry Pfeiffer, first mate.

The yacht left New York last Friday. It was bound for the West Indies to enter the interisland trade. It ran into a gale on Saturday and drifted helplessly after a cylinder head blew out fom making steam "to keep her head in the wind."

RESCUED BY LINES

The liner Henry R. Mallory en route from Jacksonville to New York turned the searchlight on the tossing lifeboat last night.

Capt. William T. Davidson, master of the rescue liner, said:

"I heard cries that sounded like someone faintly calling for help. We then turned on the searchlight and finally picked out the lifeboat.

"We could see their white faces. They looked like crazy men. Two of them came up the ladder by themselves but the others had to be carried. They couldn't have lasted much longer."

The survivors were unable to tell more than fragments of their 60-hour ordeal in the lifeboat without food or water.

The Barbadoes was a 110-foot steam cargo yacht on its first trip under its new owner, who recently purchased it.

PARK WARNS ROADHOUSES ON CLOSING

One O'Clock Is Limit, He Says, After Ross Officials Beat Midnight Ordinance

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today announced he would prosecute any Ross Township roadhouse proprietor who fails to close his establishment at 1 a. m., the closing time specified in the county license. This announcement followed the meeting of Ross Township commissioners Monday night at which time the commissioners defeated an ordinance compelling all roadhouse, hotels and barbecue stands to close at midnight.

PROBE CLOSING HOURS

The district attorney and Chief George Murren of the county detectives said that no complaints have been made to their office showing that the 1 o'clock closing hour had been ignored by any of the proprietors. The district attorney, however, announced he would investigate the resorts in the township to determine whether the roadhouses are keeping open after hours.

Citizens of the township had prepared an ordinance calling for the establishments to close at midnight. It had been passed on the first and second readings at the September meeting. Monday night when it was brought up for final action, members of the Business Men's Association appeared and protested against its passage.

CITES INVESTMENT

Harry Dipple, roadhouse proprietor and president of the association, declared the roadhouse owners have an investment of $1,000,000 in their businesses and that it would be virtually lost if they were closed before being able to entertain after-theater parties.

Citizens of the township who have sponsored the midnight ban are much concerned over the defeat of the ordinance. The Rev. H. D. McCalmont, pastor of the West View United Presbyterian Church, said the defeat of the ordinance is too bad for the sake of the younger generation. He declared the resorts offer temptation to the young people that they otherwise would not have.

BARBECUES UNAFFECTED

Residents near roadhouses and barbecues contend that patrons, intoxicated, use their lawns to park their automobiles in the early morning, disturbing the peace and quiet of the countryside.

The district attorney said the closing hour for barbecue stands will not be changed. These come under the classification of eating places and are permitted to remain open continuously.

HECKLERS BUSY AT RUTH RALLY

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Hecklers interrupted Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial nominee, when she spoke before an overflow meeting in the Apollo Theater.

In her address, Mrs. McCormick asked:

"What would be the condition of this country if we had the low Democratic tariff today?"

A male voice responded from the gallery:

"It couldn't be worse than it is now."

Then the crowd applauded when the candidate informed the heckler there are 10,000,000 people from other countries who are clamoring to enter the United States, any one of whom would gladly change places with him. Applause greeted this rejoinder, and the heckler replied:

"I'll take that back."

Mrs. McCormick asked:

"Will those persons in the audience who are laughing tell me of another nation which has enjoyed more prosperity and good fortune?"

The candidate demanded to know what country paid higher wages to the workingman.

17,000-Mile Radio 'Phone Record Set

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—A fellow in Los Angeles holds the record for long-distance telephoning—17,000 miles. For six minutes he chatted about business with somebody in Sydney. The words crossed the United States by land and thence by radio to London, with a relay to Australia. His name is undisclosed.

Claim to Huge Fortune Rests on Double Joints

NEW YORK, N. J., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—James E. Nicholson, of Baltimore, one of the 12 claimants to half of the $650,000 William E. Emery estate, exhibited his double joints in an attempt to prove he was the true heir.

The missing heir was double-jointed, witnesses have testified. Nicholson's lawyer called this to the attention of Vice Chancellor John H. Backes, and then had his client raise his arms aloft and bend his thumbs back at the wrist.

Emery died in 1912. Half of his estate was paid to Vivian E. Cornelius, of Surrey, Eng., husband of Jessica Brown, formerly of the Follies. Corneilus was the son of one of Emery's daughters.

The remainder of the estate was held in trust for the heirs of Florence Emery, the second daughter. Florence was married and divorced from Francis F. Gregory and later married again. A child is believed to have been born to the Georges in Washington and given to one Sophie Landgraf to be cared for. The whereabouts of this child here has been satisfactorily determined, although all claimants to the estate claim to be that child.

Clara Bow, Richman Aloof As Trains Meet in West

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Clara Bow, screen star, and Harry Richman, now appearing in a musical comedy production, arrived here only five minutes apart today.

A large crowd, which assembled at the station to watch their two trains come in, however, was disappointed when nothing transpired to add fuel to the active discussion regarding their recent romance.

Richman's train arrived first. He came from Dallas to appear with his show here, and apparently did not wait to see Miss Bow or make any effort to communicate with her.

Five minutes later Miss Bow's train, on which she was traveling west from New York, stopped in the station for 20 minutes. Miss Bow remained in her compartment, and evidently received no callers, although a bouquet from a mysterious donor was brought to her.

Spectators reported that from fleeting window glimpses Miss Bow appeared to be wearing pajamas.

MAN TRAPPED UNDER DANCER'S BED IN HOTEL CAPTURED

2 GIRLS ROUT MIDNIGHT INTRUDER

Manager and Bellboy Catch Fugitive on Fire Escape; Upset Phone Brings Aid

"Always look under the bed at night."

So advised the mother of Winnie Pryce, 23, dancer, appearing at the Penn Theater this week, when she left home. Winnie never forgot it—until last night.

With her roommate, Francene Edwards, 17, she arrived at her room in the Mayfair Hotel at 11 p. m., tired and sleepy. She climbed into bed.

LOOKS UNDER BED—

At 3 a. m. a noise awakened her, and looking under the bed she saw a man. She screamed.

The man crawled out and grabbed her, she said, and in the scuffle the telephone was knocked off the stand. Downstairs James McQuarter, the night clerk, wondered why he couldn't get an answer. Then Miss Edward's voice came over the wire:

"A man's going down the fire escape."

McQuarter and A. B. Samuels, manager, ran to the rear of the building and plucked a Negro from the bottom rung of the iron ladder.

Meanwhile George A. Koval, a bellboy, ran to the second floor rear of the building, and saw a man descending the fire escape. Koval leaped for him, and suffered a sprained right ankle.

Patrolman Jerry Schwartzmiller took the prisoner to the police station.

The suspect said he was William Oliver, 16, of 2235 Fonville street, and the police added that he had been arrested several weeks ago loitering in the rear of the hotel. He was held for court by Magistrate T. D. Jones, in Morals Court.

Manager Samuels testified the hotel had been visited by prowlers for several weeks and that recently his watch and $54 was taken.

Miss Pryce and Miss Edwards repeated their story told to police.

ROYAL PARTY FORCED TO DETOUR

Yacht Carrying King and Bride Avoids Vara, Scene Of Hostility to Alliance

International News Service.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 29.—While King Boris and his bride, Queen Giovanna, were en route to Bulgaria from Italy aboard the royal yacht Czar Ferdinand, Communist riots, protesting the mixed marriage, shook the capital today.

Fearing disturbances at Varna, where the citizens are decidedly against the Catholic marriage, the royal party has changed its plans of landing there. The Czar Ferdinand will stop at Bourgas instead and the royal couple will entrain for Sofia from there.

PLACARDS POSTED

"Down With Fascism" placards were posted all about the Italian legation here, which the police removed immediately.

Police were taking drastic precautions today to prevent further outbreaks. Heavy squadrons of military and police forces were assigned to government buildings, and will be on hand to escort King Boris and his new queen through the streets to the Palace on their arrival here.

NO FLOWER THROWING

The sale of window space along the reception streets has been forbidden by police, and house-owners have been warned that they are responsible for everyone within their buildings. The throwing of flowers has been prohibited.

In contrast to the street demonstrations, deputies at the opening of the national assembly loudly cheered approval of the royal marriage. Cries of "Long live Tsaritsa Ioannaz" drowned out a speech being delivered by M. Stoyanoff, a Communist.

It was announced in the assembly that Queen Giovanna has promised to learn the native language within a year.

UPSETS FACING PARLIAMENT

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—After a stormy opening session, the British Parliament settled down to ordinary routine today, with indications that the near future would see definite and radical changes in the political alignment of the nation.

While Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald's Labor party was strengthened by a semblance of real support from the Liberal ranks, chief opposition to the incumbent cabinet centered in the Conservative party, an organization already torn with serious dissension.

A political surprise of major proportions was sprung last night when 44 prominent members of the Conservative party issued a peremptory demand for the resignation of former Premier Stanley Baldwin as leader of the party. This demand followed a definite challenge thrown down by MacDonald to the Tory leader on the bitterly contested question of preferential tariffs.

While Baldwin has given no indication of his probable course of action in the face of the demand, predictions were made that his days as leader of the Conservative party were numbered.

Democrat, Former Mayor, for Pinchot

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—Declaring Gifford Pinchot is uncontrolled and a champion of the common people, Dr. Charles E. Snyder, former mayor of Greensburg, and delegate to the 1924 Democratic convention, has decided to bolt the party and support Pinchot, he announced here.

Snyder asserted his belief that John M. Hemphill is aided by influences and corporations that would control him in event of his election.

2 McKeesport Men Badly Hurt in Crash

Two men were in McKeesport Hospital today with critical injuries following an automobile accident on Long Run road, near Rainbow Gardens, early today. The victims are Jack Barrett, 29, of 1810 Maple street, McKeesport, concussion of the brain, and Harry Erickson, 24, 2409 River avenue, McKeesport, skull fracture. Their machine upset.

CHINA MENACES RUSS BORDER

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Chinese press reports from Harbin today said North Manchurian authorities had ordered troops to the international border near Manchuli as a result of the threatened breakdown of the conference in Moscow seeking settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute between China and Russia.

Reports said two battalions of Manchurian infantry and one of artillery had been ordered to the Manchurian-Siberian border to patrol the boundary line where for several days Soviet troops with bombing airplanes have been demonstrating and where new barracks are being erected in border towns.

TRY JEFFERSON SCHOOL HEAD

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Oct. 29.—Charles A. Anderson, 50, Jefferson County superintendent of schools, was placed on trial in Criminal Court here today on charges brought by Miss Anna Kyle, 43, who resigned last May as assistant county superintendent of schools, after 11 years' service.

Miss Kyle, prominent in civic and church circles, charges that Anderson, married and the father of three children, is the father of her child born last March 21.

A throng jammed the courtroom at the opening of the case which has stirred the entire county. All persons under 21 years were barred, by court order.

Selection of a jury was begun before visiting Judge Samuel Reed, of the Orphans Court of Cambria County. Judge William T. Darr, of Jefferson County, is a member of the Brookville School Board, and as he was considered virtually one of Anderson's employers, asked that another judge sit during the trial.

Anderson filed a slander suit against Miss Kyle and Dr. W. M. McKinley, of Brookville, her physician, prior to the institution of Miss Kyle's suit. This has not been heard.

Wilkinsburg Women Hold Church Social

The Ladies Aid Society of the Wilkinsburg Baptist Church will hold a social tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the church. A playlet, "The Sewing Circle Meets at Mrs. Martin's" will be presented by the Amoma Class. All the women of the church have been invited.

TEXAS GUINAN'S RAIDED AGAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Texas Guinan had another embarrassing moment today when she discovered she had been entertaining cops unawares again.

The blow-off came early this morning while about 200 guests were watching the floor show, which Miss Guinan directs at the Club Argonaut in West Fifty-fourth street. Two men who had visited the place frequently enough recently to be classed as "regulars," confided that they weren't patrons at all, but just two detectives bent on doing their duty.

Miss Guinan exclaimed:

"Boys, I thought you were here as guests. I hope you are not going to arrest me."

"Not you. But we're going to make some other arrests," the detectives told her.

They arrested Bernardi Tann, assistant manager, and Bernard Altman, captain of waiters, charging them with maintaining a nuisance under a state law and with furnishing "setups" for liquor, under the federal prohibition law.

Mob Stones Four Election Probers

HARRISBURG, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—One investigator of the Pennsylvania Elections Association was under $400 bond today and two others were recovering from bruises after the three were stoned by a gang of alleged hoodlums in the West Side district last night while serving subpenas.

Man, 101, Claims Old Age Title In State

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Michael Neiswinder, who says he is the oldest man in Pennsylvania, celebrated his 101st birthday anniversary quietly today.

And as he did, his 91-year-old brother, Peter, attempted to add another year to his past-the-century age. Michael, Peter avers, is really 102 years old, but is getting along in years and beginning to be forgetful.

Last year, according to Michael, was the high spot of his later life when he gratified a desire to take an airplane ride.

BLUE LAW GOLF FINE UPHELD

County Judge Samuel J. McKim today upheld the decision of Magistrate Charles Papale, of East End Police Court, in fining Emanuel Rose, operator of a miniature golf course, at Murray avenue and Bartlett street, $25 for opening his golf course on Sunday in violation of the Blue Laws.

Rose had appealed from Papale's action. Attorney L. A. Mazer, representing Rose, argued that Rose's arrest also was a violation of the Blue Laws, since he was apprehended "on view" instead of on a warrant, as stipulated by the ancient statutes.

The court ruled that Rose had waved the question of illegal arrest by appearing for a hearing before the magistrate. Rose announced he will take his fight to Superior Court.

HEARST GUEST RADIO SPEAKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—At the invitatioh of Colliers, Mr. William Randolph Hearst will be the guest speaker during that organization's transcontinental broadcast next Sunday evening over the networks of the National Broadcasting Company.

Mr. Hearst, who accepted the invitation of the magazine from Los Angeles, will speak on "A Temperance Plan to Supplant Prohibition."

The talk will be a feature of the regular Sunday Colliers Hour, one of the outstanding radio programs of the country and one that holds perhaps one of the largest audiences listening to the National Broadcasting Company's releases.

Mr. Hearst will speak in the studios of Station KFI, the Earl C. Anthony station in Los Angeles. From there his talk will be sent through the National Broadcasting Company's transcontinental network.

The Colliers Hour, heard every Sunday evening, is on the air from 8:15 to 9:15 p. m., Eastern standard time; 7:15 to 8:15 Central standard time, 6:15 to 7:15 Mountain time and 5:15 to 6:15 Pacific standard time.

Mr. Hearst's talk will be of some 12 minutes duration.

DUCE AGITATES EUROPE

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Europe in general, and above all, France in particular, is seething today in a forum of violent discussion involving the peace of the world which Premier Mussolini's plain talk of Monday has heralded abroad as the day's sensation.

France sees only Mussolini's direct attack on her policies of armament and security. Germany, according to Berlin dispatches, sees a new hope of revision of the Versailles Treaty so as to eliminate certain post-war absurdities.

Rome itself, according to the Catholic organ Corriere, finds satisfaction in Italy's presenting to the world a marvelous spectacle of a people marching in serried ranks toward a future of grandeur. And London, quite sure she wishes no longer to become too intimately involved in the endless quarrels of the continent, sees in the words of the Daily Herald a new warning that if peace is to be preserved in the world, those working for peace must redouble their efforts.

DEDICATE NEW ENGINE HOUSE

The new engine house of the Laurel Gardens Volunteer Fire Company will be dedicated Saturday night. Invitations have been sent to fire chiefs, volunteer firemen and county officials in many sections of Western Pennsylvania.

The building will be presented to the community by Harry J. Musser, president of the Western Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Association, and W. H. Sharah secretary of the Allegheny County Association of Volunteer Firemen.

Highest Court Asked To Release Billings

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—A concluding brief in the effort to obtain a pardon for Warren K. Billings, convicted with Thomas J. Mooney of bombing the Preparedness Day parade here in 1916, was filed with the California Supreme Court today by Edwin McKenzie, Billings' attorney.

McNamee Gives Fund For Vocal Students

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The institution of a Graham McNamee scholarship for vocal study has been announced as a tribute by the radio announcer to Madame Esperanza Garrigue, who gave McNamee singing lessons. The first recipient is George Farrell, 19-year-old National Broadcasting Company page boy.

Actress Wins Suit For Taxi Injuries

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Loss of her voice and injuries which forced her to abandon a stage career today had won a $55,000 verdict for Clara Joel, wife of William Boyd, motion picture star. A jury returned the verdict for the actress in her suit against a taxicab company. She was injured when a taxi crashed in an elevated pillar two years ago.

MERGER AUDIT CRITICIZED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The defense reasons for believing in the accuracy of the calculations on which Price, Waterhouse and company recommended the terms of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger were presented to Judge David Jenkins today by Frederick H. Wood, Bethlehem counsel.

Wood charaterized the reduction of the Bethlehem earnings statement for 1929 by Ernst & Ernst, auditors for the merger opponents, as a "one sided" adjustment which deliberately failed to take into account the different bookkeeping systems of the two companies.

When Ernst and Ernst placed Bethlehem on a f... per cent depreciation rate with Youngstown and thereby cut its earnings by $7,600,000 they disregarded Bethlehem's excess provisions for maintenance and reserve funds, as well as capital expenditures paid for out of income, Wood said.

Bethlehem should have been given credit for these, the attorney stated, if its depreciation rate was to be increased from two to four per cent, for the excess charges and reserves were actually in lieu of depreciation.

Girl's Guilty Plea In Killing Accepted

CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Lottie Villpige, 18-year-old girl, who stabbed to death Bessie Robinson, 16, a rival for her sweetheart's attentions, today pleaded guilty to manslaughter in General Sessions Court.

The state, which had placed her on trial on a charge of murder, accepted the plea. She was sentenced to six years imprisonment.

Kidnap Story Hoax, Teacher Confesses

PALMYRA, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Horace Hansborough, 20-year-old school teacher, admitted the sensational story he told of being kidnaped by four men, left bound, gagged and blindfolded on the Burlington Railroad tracks, near here, an hour before a freight train was due, was a hoax, designed to defraud the railroad of a new motor car.

Air Liner Wings East With California's Greeting

By AL GOUGH,
Aviation Editor.

(Mr. Gough was the only Pittsburgh newspaper man to accompany the first coast-to-coast all-flying passenger airplane. Pittsburgh was formally given a place on this new air-mail and passenger line Saturday when the first ship took on passengers and mail here.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—The voice of Gov. C. C. Young, of California, took wings this morning in flight across the continent to Gov. John S. Fisher in reply to Pennsylvania's greeting upon the occasion of the inaugural of coast-to-coast all airplane service for mail, express and passengers.

Gov. Young's reply, a message to the chief executive and the people of Pennsylvania, is contained in an address recorded on a dictaphone and placed aboard today's eastbound ship on the Transcontinental and Western Airways.

Our first stop is Kingman, just a brief lull in the journey while a sack of mail is hoisted aboard and then Winslow, where the ship will be refueled for the long hop across the desert to Albuquerque, on the other side, then Amarillo, Wichita and finally Kansas City for an overnight stop before the final jump to Pittsburgh.

Shaw Acclaims Einstein As 'Universe Builder'

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—To the brief list of men who in all human history have "created universes" was added today the name of Prof. Albert Einstein, the famous mathematician and originator of the theory of relativity.

Prof. Einstein's name was graven with the immortals by no less an authority than George Bernard Shaw in a brilliant speech at a dinner here which was broadcast to the United States and throughout the British Isles.

Shaw's list began with Pythagoras and included Ptolemy, Aristotle, Copernicus, Keppler, Galileo, Newton and finally Einstein, whom the author and playwright called "the greatest of our contemporaries."

The dinner was given by a society working for the relief of Jews in Eastern Europe, and with characteristic modesty Prof. Einstein disavowed Shaw's eulogies as directed not at him but at some "mythical namesake"—the scientist and universe builders. Einstein switched the spotlight from himself to the Jews of Poland, Lithuania and Russia, for whom he sounded an impassioned appeal.

Mr. Shaw talked for half an hour covering a variety of subjects and finally claiming kin to Einstein on the ground that Einstein's mind was that of an artist rather than of a mathematician.

Father Cox to Talk for Pinchot

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue, is scheduled to speak in the interest of Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, at a political rally in Ambridge Friday night.

Pinchot and his running mates were indorsed last night at a meeting of Coraopolis committeemen and women in the Borough Municipal Building, and at another gathering of the East End Council of Colored Republican Women in East Liberty Carnegie Library.

INDORSE TICKET

The Coraopolis meeting was attended by voters of Oakdale, Stowe, Robinson, North and South Fayette, Moon, Crescent and Collier townships. Speakers included Judge James B. Drew, Judge W. Heber Dithrich, State Senator Frank J. Harris, David B. Johns, and Horace J. Thomas. Burgess F. C. Gangloff presided.

The East End meeting attracted voters, particularly women, from the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards. Mrs. Evelyn R. Payne, president of the council, presided.

The entire ticket was indorsed by the Republican executive committee of the Twenty-eighth Ward at a meeting in the home of Ward Chairman E. Body Birch. Mrs. Theodore L. Brown, vice chairman of the ward, presided.

MEETING TONIGHT

Voters of the Thirteenth Legislative District have planned to pledge support for the Republican ticket at a meeting tonight in Buckingham Hall, state highway route No. 72 Hampton Township. Workers of Hampton, Ross, Shaler, McCandless, Pine, East Deer, West Deer, Indiana, Frazier and Fawn townships are expected.

Scheduled speakers include Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Mrs. Laura Hinnau, vice chairman of the Republican County Committee; Mrs. Lois Downs McBride, vice chairman of Pinchot's local primary campaign; State Senator Herman P. Brandt, L. A. Hagmaier and T. W. Neely, nominees for the Legislature, and John A. Schrader, chairman of the Thirteenth Legislative District.

EIGHTH WARD TEA

Mrs. A. J. Wehner, of Essen street, was host at a tea in her home yesterday to women of the Twenty-sixth Ward. Mrs. Neil Bartley will give a tea Saturday in her home, 405 South Pacific avenue, to women of the Eighth Ward.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, western field marshal of Pinchot's primary campaign, yesterday commented on a statement of Gordon Fisher, president of Spang-Chalfant & Co., and former attorney of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, declaring for John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal nominee for governor. McGovern said:

"Fisher did not register or vote at the Presidential election in 1928 and, according to the registration commission books, has not voted since. I am glad that Fisher is going to support Hemphill with his influence, wealth, and above all, his vote."

Mrs. Hemphill, Mrs. Kistler and Mrs. Winston.

Hemphill digressed from his set speech to say he noticed by the newspapers that Republican leaders of Allegheny County were saying that a governor could have nothing to do with the repeal of prohibition laws.

Declaring that such propaganda originated with the Anti-Saloon League and was now being used by politicians, Hemphill said:

"It is a state issue because we must get rid of the Snyder-Armstrong act. In fact the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment must originate in the various states.

DRY LAW ANNIVERSARY

"I am proud to devote my speech tonight to repeal, for today was the eleventh anniversary of the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment, after it had been vetoed by our Democratic President Woodrow Wilson.

"We are confronted with a national crisis because the Eighteenth Amendment stole from the states their right to control the local police system.

"Pennsylvania will break through next Tuesday and elect a legislature and a governor committed to the repeal of the Snyder-Armstrong act and we will be well on the way of getting rid of the costly, ignoble failure, the Eighteenth Amendment, and returning to each state the right of local self-government."

HITS PINCHOT PLAN

Hemphill ridiculed Pinchot for the latter's plan, submitted in the Durant Prize Contest, in which $100,000 was offered for the best method of enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Pinchot plan suggested that the President should give the commissioners of the District of Columbia one week in which to report the names and addresses of all speakeasies, after which the commissioners were to report weekly on the speakeasy situation.

CHALLENGES CLAIM

Kistler challenged Pinchot's implied claim that the latter's election would be followed by good times. Kistler discussed the Democratic platform planks for extending the benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act, the proposal for Old Age Pensions and Unemployment Insurance. He declared:

"When we have a contented working people, we have a peaceful country."

Bard said:

"Pinchot, as governor, forsook all progressive legislation and joined Grundyism in forcing the enactment of the Snyder-Armstrong Act, the state enforcement law that is more obnoxious than the Volstead Act.

"G. O. P. now has no significance unless it means 'Grundy Owns Pinchot.'"

The Democratic nominees left last night and were scheduled for a conference today with state leaders in Harrisburg and meetings later in Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre.

BOLT JUSTIFIED, SAYS SCULLY

Arthur M. Scully, county chairman of the Liberal party, issued a statement last night declaring Republicans have as much right to bolt this year as a Republican county chairman had in the 1924 presidential election. He said:

"Chairman Armstrong admitted before the Walsh senatorial investigating committee in Washington that he had voted for La Follette when President Coolidge was the Republican nominee. Armstrong's ward was carried by La Follette. Why can't the voting Republicans make the same exception this year by voting for John M. Hemphill?"

A mass meeting in behalf of Hemphill, Democratic - Liberal party nominee for governor, will be held Saturday in the Municipal Building, Washington road, Mt. Lebanon. Scheduled speakers are Mrs. Carroll Miller, J. I. Simon, D. C. Anderson, J. H. Weisman, H. W. Bagnall, who will preside, and Mrs. Agnes Joyce, chairman of the arrangements committee.

Vare's Daughter Out for Hemphill

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Miss Beatrice Vare, daughter of William S. Vare, leader of the Philadelphia Republican organization, has announced that she will address a mass meeting here Thursday night in the interest of the candidacy of John Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal nominee for governor.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Women's Republican Club of Philadelphia and will be held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Fort Expects G. O. P. Slate to Win State

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Representative Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, last night said he "hoped" and "expected" Pennsylvania to support the entire Republican ticket in the November election.

Representative Fort made his statement in an interview at Lutherland, where he addressed a meeting of Monroe County Republicans.

DAVIS RETURNS TO END DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was in Pennsylvania this morning, to open his final week of intensive campaigning for the United States Senate.

In his tour of the state, which will keep him away until after November 4, election day, Secretary Davis expects to visit Mahanoy City, Schuylkill, Lehigh, Carbon and Luzerne counties.

In the course of his seven-day tour, he will join with Gifford Pinchot, the Republican candidate for governor, in addressing rallies in the various counties he visits. He has arranged his trip to bring him to Pittsburgh next Tuesday where he will cast his vote.

THE CHALLENGE TO REPUBLICANISM!

Only twice since the Civil War have the people of Pennsylvania turned from the Republican Party in the election of a Governor. The second experiment of that kind was in 1890 (for the gubernatorial term 1891 to 1895), so that for 35 consecutive years our State has been under Republican administration.

In this more than third of a century our State Government has grown from a relatively small enterprise employing only 169 persons and operating within a very restricted sphere at an annual expenditure of 12¼ millions of dollars, to a tremendous institution employing more than 26,000 men and women in every conceivable kind of service to the people, for which our expenditures now exceed 200 millions of dollars per year. That means some 800 millions during the Administration of the next Governor.

During the term of Gifford Pinchot (1923-1927) this State Government was administered in the interest of all the people of Pennsylvania. The same principle has been followed throughout the administration of Governor Fisher.

IN THE MAY PRIMARY THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF PENNSYLVANIA AGAIN NOMINATED MR. PINCHOT AS THEIR CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

SOME OF THOSE WHO OPPOSED MR. PINCHOT IN THE PRIMARY ARE NOW SUPPORTING HIS DEMOCRATIC OPPONENT, IN AN EFFORT TO DEFEAT THE WILL OF THE REPUBLICAN ELECTORATE OF THIS STATE.

The attack that is being made upon the Republican Party of Pennsylvania is an attack upon the Republican Party in the Nation—with a Presidential election only two years away. For in each of the two instances since 1860 when Pennsylvania went Democratic, the country went Democratic in the next Presidential election.

GOOSENS HERE AS CONDUCTOR

Eugene Goossens, famous conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, will make his first appearance of the season in Pittsburgh when he acts as guest conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in Syria Mosque, November 9. Goossens is recognized, critics say, as one of the foremost modern composers. A one-act opera, "Judith," with libretto by Arnold Bennett, is among his better-known pieces.

Mr. Goossens

Goossens will be followed, December 28, by Bernardion Molinari, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with Toscanini. Said to be one of the most colorful figures in the musical world, Molinari has conducted most of the important symphony orchestras in the United States.

Mr. Molinari

DR. GOLDENSON TO GIVE TALKS

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson's recent appearance in a religious forum with Clarence Darrow and others, has brought so many requests to the Jewish rabbi to give a series of lectures that he has yielded to the demand it was announced today.

Beginning next Sunday at 11 a. m. in the Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth and Morewood avenues, over which congregation Dr. Goldenson presides, he will start these discussions. His program will be continued each Sunday morning until May.

One of his talks, it is understood, will deal with Darrow's philosophy. Another will discuss the Jewish conception of God.

KONJOLA ENDS NERVOUSNESS!

Pittsburgh Lady Declares New Medicine to Be Only One That Did Her Any Good.

Konjola is the first and only medicine that helped me!" Times without number that has been said by happy men and women who put their faith in Konjola.

MRS. J. E. GRISER

There is a reason why seven million bottles of Konjola were used in two years, and that reason can be summed up in just three words — Konjola Makes Good. Consider the typical experience of Mrs. J. E. Griser, 511 Shawnee Street, Pittsburgh. No wonder she is enthusiastic about Konjola. And would you not like to know all about the medicine that does such things? Then visit the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and get all the details about this amazing compound of 32 ingredients. But right now read what Mrs. Griser said to the Konjola Man:

"For a year I had a very bad case of nervousness. I did not sleep well and my meals seemed to do me no good. I tried many kinds of medicine but got no relief until four weeks ago, when I started to take Konjola. I took five bottles, and Konjola is the first and only medicine that helped me. I enjoy my meals and sleep better than I have for months. I feel that I cannot praise Konjola too highly, and am glad to endorse it."

So it goes; victory after victory whenever Konjola is given a chance to show why it is the best known and most highly praised medicine in America.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is telling how Konjola works and what it does. Konjola is sold in all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

MAURER URGES LEGISLATION FOR LABOR

Socialist Nominee Fights Profiteernig, Stands for Tax to Limit 'Exploiters'

(Editor's Note—The issues in Pennsylvania's gubernatorial election are restoration of self-government and repeal of the state bone-dry law, according to Mr. Hemphill, while Mr. Pinchot believes they are control of public utilities and elimination of ballot corruption. In the accompanying article, the last of a special series, Mr. Maurer describes the issues from the Socialist viewpoint.)

By JAMES H. MAURER,
Socialist Candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.
Written for International News Service.

READING, Pa., Oct. 29.—As a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, I stand squarely upon the Socialist party's platform to abolish exploitation of the people and to place our society upon a co-operative base with production for the benefit of all instead of for the profit of a few.

I am in favor of every measure which will limit the present control of profiteering interests over our industrial and political life. I favor state income and inheritance taxes and especially a tax which would absorb the entire unearned increment on land, as a means of abolishing land speculation. I would favor every tax limiting the exploiter and I would abolish every tax resting heavily upon the farmer and wage-earner.

WANTS FREE SPEECH

As governor, I would demand the legislative repeal of such obnoxious un-American laws as the Flynn anti-sedition law, abolishment of coal and iron police, and limitation of the scope under which sheriffs can operate. I would demand the repeal of every law in the state abridging free speech, free press and free assemblage.

I favor not only a better child labor law, but if I were governor, I would see to it that the child labor laws we now have were enforced. I favor old age pensions, it is needless to say; mother's assistance laws, better known as widow's pensions; women's labor laws; a better and larger department of labor and industry, and amendments to the child labor laws, raising the age limit from time to time to safeguard child workers, their health and educational development.

If I were governor, I would do everything I possibly could, to give Pennsylvania a better workmen's compensation law than it now has. The rates should be increased at least 25 per cent. The act should be amended to cover occupational diseases and the Manufacturers' Association should be denied the right to engage in the insurance business.

CHARGES BETRAYAL

As for my Republican opponent, Gifford Pinchot, he basely betrayed labor while governor by his opposition to a new workmen's compensation act. After naming a committee to draft this bill, he criminally deserted his own child by sending out a letter to those opposing the legislation, declaring it was not an administration measure and inviting them to Harrisburg to aid in defeating the bill. It was defeated. I have always looked upon Pinchot's act in sending out that letter as the most contemptible thing ever done by a man in public office.

The Democratic candidate, Mr. Hemphill, has no record as a public official. All I know about him is that he is a lawyer and wet.

My party, the Socialist party, stands not only for justice and humane measures, but for the complete emancipation of the working classes. I appeal to the working men and women of the state upon my party's platform.

Atterbury Blamed by Pinchot

What I did assert, and what I now repeat, is that its president, W. W. Atterbury, has misused the power of his office in a disgraceful political fashion, and that he has been and is still trying to coerce the employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad."

He termed the board of directors' statement an "evasion" and expressed doubts whether or not all the directors saw it before it was made public. He declared:

"This purported statement of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is a series of carefully worded evasions, is but a sample of the lengths to which he has gone in his efforts to help Hemphill. While this statement is given publicity in the name of the Pennsylvania Railroad's board of directors, some of the assertions in it are so mandacious, so far from the real facts, that I am forced to doubt whether the directors saw it in its completed form before it was issued.

ROAD NOT ACCUSED

"Stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad, living within Pennsylvania and reading newspapers here know full well that I did not allege that the Pennsylvania Railroad was attempting to coerce its employes. They know that I have said over and over that Atterbury was doing it, and that I expressed the belief that his conduct did not have the sanction of those who are investors in the Pennsylvania Railroad."

Pinchot spoke at a dozen well-attended meetings in the city yesterday and last night. At least 3,000 attended a single meeting in the North East section of the city. He was enthusiastic over his reception. He remarked:

"The crowds which attended the meetings speak for themselves, making any comment from me unnecessary."

HASTE IN R-101 TRIP HINTED

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Evidence indicating the ill-fated British dirigible R-101 might have been sent on its voyage to India hastily in order that a "dramatic, striking feat" might be accomplished while the imperial conference was in session in London occupied the attention today of the court of inquiry investigating the airship disaster here.

Production of private air ministry correspondence revealed that Lord Thomson, British air minister and one of the 48 victims of the tragedy, had insisted in writing that the flight to India must be begun at the end of September and that he himself must be back in London by October 16.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf Zeppelin, today denied that he had been invited by the British government to testify in its inquiry into the R-101 catastrophe.

RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorter word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

The solution to this puzzle can be found on page 14.

Suits Over Auto Death and Injury

Two suits seeking to recover a total of $35,000 damages for the death of John J. Manning and injury to William W. Parshell in an automobile collision were filed in Common Pleas Court against William F. Benecke, of Braddock.

Parshell was driving his automobile, with Manning as a passenger, along the river road from Dravosburg to Duquesne, August 18, when Benecke swerved his car to the left, in front of Manning's car, according to the suits. Manning died two days later. His widow, Mrs. Mell M. Manning, for herself and three children, 9 and 15 years, asked $25,000 damages. Parshell asked $10,000 damages for injuries.

Your Charm and BEAUTY Soon Fade

—if You Don't Control Your "NERVES"

Leading beauty experts agree that "NERVES" do more to bring lines of age to the face than any other cause.

There is no greater foe to beauty than high-tension "NERVES." Blue—irritable—nervous spells soon rob you of attractiveness. Jumpy, twitchy "NERVES" hasten the lines of age in the face. Nervousness affects the digestive organs—often causing complexion troubles. Then strive as you may with powders, creams and facials, your beauty and charm soon fade.

Don't neglect your "NERVES" if you want to keep that youthful look. Whenever you feel nervous—try this pleasing, harmless Effervescent Drink.

Just drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—then drink it. You will like the way this pleasing Effervescent drink quiets your "NERVES." You will welcome the relaxation and relief.

Miss Geraldine Stickle says:—

"I have been taking Effervescent NERVINE Tablets since last November and certainly have improved a lot. I have not had a nervous spell since I started to take them."

You can get Dr. Miles' NERVINE in two forms—the Effervescent Tablets that you drop into a glass of water—or the old reliable Liquid form that has been sold by drug stores for over 50 years. Both are harmless to take and both are guaranteed to give effective relief for nervous Headache, Sleeplessness due to "NERVES" and similar nervous troubles. Get a package of either kind at any drug store, small size 25c. Large size $1.00.

Special Trial Offer

As a Special Offer to enable you to try Dr. Miles' NERVINE, take this coupon to your druggist and he will give you a regular 25c package of either kind for only 10 cents.

THIS COUPON IS WORTH 15c

Take this Coupon to any Drug Store and the druggist will give you a regular 25c pkg. of Dr. Miles' NERVINE (Effervescent Tablets or Liquid) for only 10c.

Penn. Girl is Rewarded

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as bad breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right out in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mrs. L. Ricciardi, 5344 Irving Street, Philadelphia, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup myself so I knew what to give Margaretta when I saw by her bad breath and coated tongue that she was constipated.

"She has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. It made her a well, happy girl promptly. She never complains of any symptoms of constipation now."

The genuine, endorsed by doctors for 50 years, always bears the word California. All drugstores.

INDIAN MURDER WITNESS LIVES

NEW CASTLE, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wadsworth, born near Slippery Rock, Pa., has just celebrated her ninetieth birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. K. Allison, here. Mrs. Wadsworth was in her early teens when the last white family of this district was killed by Indians, many of whom resided in Western Pennsylvania at the time. The scene of the killing was but a short distance from the home of Mrs. Wadsworth.

Mrs. Wadsworth

A mother and five small children were killed during the absence of the husband and father to get a wheat cradle. The father, with the aid of others, trailed the murderer, who proved to an Indian named Mohawk. He was cornered in the second floor of the Paul Keister home in the same district and captured after a severe battle. Mohawk was taken to Butler, tried and hanged.

Mrs. Wadsworth believes that there was more happiness and contentment in her earlier life than exists among the people today.

Indiana College Reunion Saturday

INDIANA, Pa., Oct. 29.—To present an opportunity to renew social contacts and to keep the college in touch with the ever increasing alumni, plans are being completed for the Indiana Teachers' College alumni home-coming Saturday, on which day the football team plays Slippery Rock.

SHE HATED TO GET OUT OF BED

Far better to toss and turn and try to win sleep that never comes than to get up and do housework. Backache torments her. Is it her kidneys? She's nervous, listless and terribly tired. And she looks as bad as she feels. Another devitalized woman.

She eats the purest of foods...still she has SYS-TEM-IC POISONING

WHY do so many folks suffer in the waking hour? Medical science has discovered the truth. The pure foods we eat are blamed for most kidney, intestinal and nervous troubles that reveal their presence in the first morning hour.

We know that when you get up in the morning feeling and looking twice your years, harassed by jumpy nerves or pains in your back, nauseated or bothered by a rank taste in your mouth...you are probably the victim of the foods you have eaten ... You have SYS-TEMIC POISONING.

Every morsel of food that enters your mouth passes right through the stomach into the small intestine where the important task of refueling the blood with energy and health is completed. If this food does not move on immediately it generates millions of dangerous germs that pollute the blood, attack the kidneys and stomach, and upset the nervous system.

HOW TO GET RELIEF

What can be done to correct this condition and regain buoyant health?

Neither harsh purgatives nor strong drugs will help you one bit. Such doses cause false stimulation that gives only temporary relief and leaves you feeling worse than ever.

To get relief and recover health . . . you must purify the system, rid it of poisonous germs just as an effective antiseptic cleanses an open wound.

The very first thing in the morning take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water and just 30 minutes later you'll feel much better.

SIFTS AWAY INFECTION

Jad Salts is totally unlike anything you've ever taken—vastly different in action and result. It is a scientific blend of ingredients that leading authorjties recognize as most effective for relieving food infection.

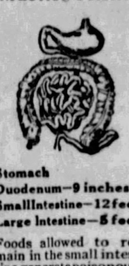
This remarkable blend gently sifts through the body and quickly sweeps away all noxious germs that cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING. When Jad Salts is taken with plenty of water the sluggish kidneys are stimulated so that they again discharge poisonous debris.

As the system is thus purified, nerves are calmed, blue mornings vanish, glorious health and energy soon return.

Now beware of food infection. At the first warning sign of SYS - TEM - IC POISONING take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water as soon as you get up and you'll sit down to breakfast feeling fine.

Start each day with this exhilarating, bubbling drink that Jad Salts makes and you'll soon look and feel better than you have in years...You'll sleep sounder and greet the morning clear-eyed and clear-headed, keenly alert, vigorous and ready for the day.

WHERE FOOD INFECTION STARTS



Stomach
Duodenum—9 inches
Smallintestine—12 feet
Large Intestine—5 feet

Foods allowed to remain in the small intestine generate poisonous germs that breed infection and cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING ... recognized by kidney trouble, upset stomach, indolence, backache, dull mornings, sallow, blemished skin, nervousness, or restless, disturbed sleep.

MELLON TALKS ABOUT HOOVER; GRANDPA TUCKER HOLDS RADIO BARN DANCE

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

"Achievements and Aims of the Hoover Administration" is Andrew W. Mellon's scheduled talk on the Columbia network (WJAS) at 10 o'clock tonight. Grandpa Tucker throws a Halloween dance in his barn that is sure to be "the pumpkins." An accordion, two violins, a piano, ukelele and whistler provide background for this production of rural life on KDKA at 8:30. The continuity is written and supervised by R. P. Griffith, better known as "Stockman Sam." He can be very proud of his little drama—it is one of the best on the air.

Olive Palmer

An aria from "Barber of Seville" and "Chinese Lullaby" afford Olive Palmer, soprano, to demonstrate the flexibility of her voice for WCAE fans at 9:30.

QUESTION A DAY

Was the speech of Premier Hamaguchi broadcast direct to Pittsburgh from Tokio?—A. W. Third avenue.

Answer—Not direct by radio. The speech was broadcast from Tokio by JIAA, picked up by a short wave station at Point Reyes, California, and conveyed from there to New York by wire for distribution to the NBC networks. KDKA broadcast the Premier's speech on short wave signals that were heard in London and Berlin.

Anthony Wons, formerly of WLS and WLW, conducts an inspirational period over WJAS every night at 6:45 under "Tony's Scrapbook."

Last night he discounted the idea that New York is a city without a heart or soul. He told of one big businessman who stopped at an old apple cart every morning to pat a horse on the nose. That bit of sentiment, he said, is proof that the world's largest city has a pulse.

TWELVE CYLINDERS

A Wholly New Performance

A Freshly Created Beauty

The New CADILLAC V-12

Again Cadillac offers you something new in motoring—new in performance—new in fascinating beauty—The Twelve-Cylinder Cadillac.

For here again is performance carried far beyond conventional conceptions. Smoothness, spirit and comfort are familiar terms to describe fine car performance. But the Cadillac V-12 gives them a new meaning. There can be no appreciation of the degree to which Cadillac has carried these desirable qualities in the V-12 without personal experience.

Here, too, is freshly created beauty, direct from Fisher and Fleetwood studios—brilliant examples of the highest type of coachcraft. Every interior of the new V-12 models is a Fleetwood interior.

The V-12 is the newest member of the distinguished family of four fine cars (including La Salle V-Eight, Cadillac V-Eight and Cadillac V-16) which Cadillac has presented within the past eight months. Each offers a newness in performance entirely different and superior to anything even Cadillac has hitherto produced. Not to know these cars is to be deprived of one of the most interesting experiences motoring has offered in years.

It's easy to write "Talkiegrams." Just open today's Sun-Telegraph to the motion picture theater advertising page, study the titles of the talking pictures now current, take a series of these titles and put them together so that they will make a sentence that is, at least, fairly readable with complete continuity. Supply the words required to complete your sentence, but do not employ the names of the stars or players featured in the plays you name in your "Talkiegram." DO NOT USE LESS THAN 5 TITLES OR MORE THAN 8 IN YOUR "TALKIEGRAM." WRITE ONE EVERY DAY.

Here is a specimen "Talkiegram." It will give you the "Talkiegram" idea.

CHEER UP AND SMILE for the PLAYBOY OF PARIS brings the GOOD NEWS that, RAIN OR SHINE, he'll marry THE GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST in spite of the rivalry of BILLY THE KID.

See how easy it is to play the game. Try it today—your opportunity to win a cash prize or a pair of theater tickets is just as good as any other person's.

SEND YOUR "TALKIEGRAM" TO THE TALKIEGRAM EDITOR, P. O. BOX 596, PITTSBURGH, PA. TALKIEGRAM NO. 9 MUST BE IN THE MAIL BEFORE MIDNIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT, AND THE NUMBER MUST BE WRITTEN ON THE LOWER OUTSIDE LEFT HAND CORNER OF YOUR ENVELOPE.

The LOUDSPEAKER

A Disadvantage, 60 Million Fans. | Groucho Marx, Odd Character.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The nation is constantly reminded of the innumerable advantages which television will bring in its wake. We shall see what we shall hear and a country will rejoice.

Louis Reid.

However, there is a disadvantage, marked and momentous, which must also be considered. There will, comrades of the cogswells, be little appeal to the imagination when television has at last invaded the parlor.

Nevertheless, we shall welcome television if only because it will spur the microphone men to new achievements, bring an effective presentation of radio drama, now the least appealing of all broadcasts; give us the vivid panorama of life as it is taking place and offer to our eager eyes a greater degree of feminine beauty than is now the rule in the studios.

60,000,000 Persons To Hear Election

On election day the tenth anniversary of broadcasting will be celebrated. Ten years ago but a few hundred people in the land heard a Pittsburgh announcer read returns of the Harding landslide. This year 60,000,000 persons will cup their ears to the results of the balloting.

To these ears broadcasting's greatest opportunity of service has come in this year, in the international exchange of programs which has brought England, Germany and Holland—and even Japan—no further away the understuffed armchair.

What was spectacular six months ago has become a commonplace on the radio. We keep an audience regularly with Europe's great, with her statesmen and her music masters, her scientists and jazz kings. Soon the field will be exhausted and we shall sign for new worlds to conquer—perhaps that world that is known to the psychic researchers as "the other side." A radio message from "the other side" would be something to send us panting to the armchairs.

The cultivation of the spirit of the lowdown has developed, thanks to radio, into luxuriant growth in the republic. The secrets of politicians and pugilists, of cooks and capitalists, of maestros and modistes, are now everybody's gossip. Only a twist of the wrist is necessary to capture them. "Now it can be told" is the creed of the air channels.

* * *

Without radio we would not have the intimate knowledge, the lowdown on the morals and manners of the world and his wife. The newspapers have not the space at their disposal to give more than brief attention to all that interests mankind. But the air waves are limitless and timeless. Over them you may know of everything under the sun.

Radio Could Use Groucho Marx More

The melodious tinkle of "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" seldom falls from the loudspeakers . . . The busiest man in New York today is Heywood Broun. Daily broadcasts to prepare, a dozen or more political speeches to make at night, columns to write. Does he still find time to fill an inside straight? . . . Vincent Lopez has been appointed a Kentucky colonel. Wonder how he'd look with a goatee . . . Frank Luther, tenor, began life as a cowboy. It would be bigger and better news to know that a cowboy had begun life as a tenor . . . The most rib-tickling nonsense to reach these ears of late is that which has been dropping fairly regularly from the lips of Groucho Marx. Radio could stand more nonse.

Welcome Lewis is not heard as often today. Once she was regarded as the Jeritza of jazz. Not only can she croon with vigor and verve, but she possesses a name that clings to memory—a name, they say, given to her, the eighth child of a family, by a mother defiant of a neighbor who had remarked to her one day: "It must be troublesome to raise such a large family."

One of the most vivid characters on the radio is the not quite bright figure of Cefus, who is heard with Seth Parker. Through his pert observations delivered in a fog-horn voice, he brings a chuckle to millions of listeners on Sunday nights. His appearance in the sketcher was accidental.

The program had been rehearsed and was ready to go on the air when Phillips Lord, the author, overheard Bennett Kilpack, one of his actors, joking in an unusual voice with another member of the cast. He decided to write a second role for Kilpack. The next week Cefus, the aging half-wit, was introduced. He had only four lines, but he proved a hit from the start. Today he is one of the most important members of Seth Parker's gathering.

There is no cheap bid for laughs at the expense of Cefus. Nothing is forced. Nothing is out of place. Cefus blurts out his comments when the situation calls for them—comments as frank as a football coach's between the halves and in the rarest voice this side of Cape Cod.

TRUE STORIES OF CONSTRUCTIVE BANKING—No. 17

A Mother's Account Helps to Start her Son In Business

SHE has used her Farmers Savings Account intelligently for a number of years—buying new furniture at advantageous prices, paying cash for an occasional car, keeping her home in good repair. Recently she was able to help her son start in business for himself.

A neighborhood store was for sale. The price was low and her son had experience in that line of business. They came in and asked us what we thought about it.

Our investigation confirmed their ideas of the profit possibilities. Two thousand dollars cash was paid by the mother toward the purchase of the property and today the store is paying well. The mother's account is nearly back to the original figure and the son, too, now has a steadily growing savings balance.

COUPLE BEATEN BY BANDITS

Two men were under arrest today and police were seeking another in the holdup of a store and the beating of the proprietor and his wife last night.

The men arrested said they were David Wollowicz, 22, of 2908 Smallman street, and Stanley Sankey, 21, of 182 Holmes street. Wollowicz was arrested at Butler and Thirty-second streets, and Sankey at Thirty-second street and Liberty, where, police said, he was trying to gain entrance into the office of the Alex Black Coal Company.

At Penn Avenue Police Station both men, police said, were identified by Joseph Smitanowski and his wife, owners of a confectionary store at 3055 Penn avenue, beaten when they confronted the men in the store. Cigarets, tobacco and $8 were stolen, they told police.

John Wollowicz, 16, of 242 Urbana way, a brother of David Wollowicz, also was arrested for questioning. He is said to be under indictment for the theft of a quantity of butter in the produce yards September 16.

Glendale Cal Wins Clarion Dog Honors

CLARION, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Glendale Cal, owned by Judge Hyde, of Ridgway, won first place in the All-Age Stakes of the Pennsylvania Field Trial Club, which closed at Shippenville yesterday. Keystone Hank, owned by J. C. Elder, Jersey Shore, was second, and Harlequin, owned by S. A. McGee, Harrisville, third. Keystone Hank won the honors as the best of the show and in the pointer class. Glendale Cal took first honors among male setters and among the best of breed of setters.

MOTOR FREIGHT SERVICE ASKED

Pittsburgh's prominence as a distributing center for merchandise was stressed before Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission, when the application of A. H. Orner, Altoona, who wants to operate a motor freight service between Pittsburgh and Altoona, was up for consideration.

Orner, however, was only able to give what Mr. Best ruled was hearsay testimony, regarding the amount of business he could develop. Examiner Best continued the hearing to let the commission decide whether the hearsay evidence was permissable or if Orner must produce witnesses to substantiate his claims. Orner contended he could get several tons of business for daily delivery.

Of eight protestants to the application, six were eliminated when Orner agreed not to invade the territory of the six as far as delivering and accepting motor package freight was concerned. This left the Pennsylvania Railroad and the American Express Company as the only protestants against the Orner application.

Rich Broker Injured Near Cabaret, Dies

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Frank Grenville Curtis, wealthy retired broker, found unconscious with his skull fractured in the doorway of a well-known Broadway night club, died in a hospital today.

An autopsy will be performed by the medical examiner to discover if the social registerite was beaten to death.

Bakers' President Honored at Dinner

A testimonial dinner was tendered G. A. Wilde, president of the Associated Bakers of America, in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night by members of the Retail Master Bakers' Association of Western Pennsylvania. Wilde is a resident of the South Side and a member of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Bakers' Association.

Albert Klopfer, of New York, editor of the Bakers' Weekly, and John M. Hartley, of Chicago, secretary of the Associated Bakers, were the speakers. H. B. McNeal was toastmaster.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should learn all about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

for quicker, more thorough service when you drive through ETNA . . .

For Your Convenience this station at Butler and High Streets, Etna, was built

HERE at Butler and High Streets, serving suburban traffic as well as tourist traffic to Butler and other points north, is the kind of service station that makes motoring a pleasure. A windshield wipe; water for the radiator; up-to-date road maps and directions; air for the tires; neat, clean rest rooms with soap, water and towels—all at no extra cost to you.

But best of all is the "Standard" Gasoline, quick-starting, high test—the "Lucky Gas," served from fast, accurate electric pumps at the same old price. ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, that never knocks—containing Ethyl.

"Standard" Motor Oil—that oilier oil. Penotol, the lubricant made from a 100 per cent Pennsylvania base.

Lubrication experts, too, trained in the new "Standard" Lubrication School. Rotary lifts. The latest types of greasing equipment. No gear or grease cupslighted. These men know how to do a job right and they have the equipment to do it.

Drive in today. See for yourself how thoroughly satisfied you will be with the superior service you receive. See for yourself why cars run better when brought here regularly!

Mother of Twelve Regains Health

Salem woman gives credit to Vegetable Compound

HAWTHORNE'S House of Seven Gables is situated at the end of Turner Street overlooking Salem harbor. This historic neighborhood is now a Polish-American district. At 15 Turner St. live Mr. & Mrs. R. J. Kulakowski and their twelve healthy, happy children.

"But we weren't always happy," Mr. Kulakowski confided. "My wife was ailing for five years. First she seemed just tired and run down. Then she got weaker and weaker and became so crippled that we had to carry her from room to room. When I came home from work, I would find her crawling on her hands and knees. I was a motorman then on the Salem to Boston cars. One day I was telling my conductor about my wife and he suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Said it had helped his sister. Well, I got a bottle and she started taking it. We kept on until she took about eight bottles in all. By that time she was up on her feet and doing her work."

Mrs. Kulakowski's twelfth child was born on Easter Monday. "I have never lost a child," she says, "and none of them has ever been seriously ill. My oldest daughter is now in her teens, and I am giving her the Vegetable Compound, too."

ZION CITY, Ill., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Max Pian, a diamond broker of Chicago, reported to police that he had been held up and robbed of $40,000 in diamonds in Sheridan road, near the Wisconsin-Illinois line. He had been driving to Milwaukee.

BANKER DIES IN CRAFTON HOME

Albert Graham, 82, vice president and director of the West End Savings Bank and Trust Company, died in his home, 85 North Emily street, Crafton, yesterday. He was the oldest nut and bolt manufacturer in the country, it was said. He also was a director of the First National Bank of Crafton, and until recently was president of the Crafton and Ingram Building and Loan Association.

He was born in Robinson Township and began his business career as an employe of the old Eagle Rolling Mill. He became associated with the bolt and nut industry in 1881 with the firm of William Charles and Company. Twelve years later he obtained an interest in the company and in 1902 the concern became known as the Graham Nut Company. He retired from business in 1922.

He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Chartiers Heights Country Club, the Union Club, the Iron City Fishing Club and the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Crafton. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Annie Lee Graham; three sons, Harry, Charles and John Graham, of Pittsburgh; four daughters, Mrs. James C. Redman, of Los Angeles, Mrs. Fred C. Zercher, Mrs. William Wallace Bell, Jr., and Mrs. Murray Gibson, of Crafton; three brothers, Samuel B. Graham, of Pittsburgh; John M. Graham, of Washington, Pa., and Frank M. Graham, of Cleveland; 13 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

"Use Palmolive Beads for safe washing of silk hosiery"

advise Silk Manufacturers of World Renown

CORTICELLI...HOLEPROOF...KAYSER...LUXITE
PHOENIX...VANITY FAIR...VAN RAALTE

WOULD you protect your silk hosiery against unnecessary runs . . . keep colors like new . . . prolong wear? Then read what the great silk manufacturers advise as the correct way to wash silk stockings—all fine fabrics.

For years these master craftsmen have created America's finest hosiery. For years, too, they have used no soap for washing costly silk skeins that did not contain olive oil. Because—they declare—such a soap dissolves, cleanses and rinses away in water cool enough to be safe for silks.

Called "Ideal Soap for Silks"

These leading silk manufacturers submitted Palmolive Beads to exhaustive tests in their own laboratories. And now all of them acclaim this new discovery "the ideal soap for silks."

"Its olive and palm oils give a gentle cleansing action that protects the life of silk fibre," declares Kayser.

"It rinses away with the greatest ease," says Van Raalte.

"We foresee longer wear for silk stockings with this new and different fine fabric soap," writes Phoenix.

Approved by Committee of 17

What hosiery manufacturers have found to be true of Palmolive Beads in laboratory tests, American women find true in home washing of silks. The Committee of 17—a group of America's most distinguished women . . . called recently to the Ritz Hotel to watch tests of the new soap discovery—unanimously voted Palmolive Beads "the ideal soap for all fine fabrics."

Give your own lovely lingerie and sheer silk hosiery the protection of this new bead soap. Order a box from your dealer today.

Vanity Fair interprets in sheer silk hosiery the flare and style that are an essential part of the modern woman's dress today. "If you wash silk hosiery with Palmolive Beads," says Vanity Fair, "you will obtain the longest life and beauty possible from silk stockings."

The Committee of 17

These famous women—leaders representing every phase of feminine activity, from all over the United States—approved and sponsor Palmolive Beads.

8 BODIES FOUND IN MINE BLAST

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Eight bodies of a crew of 29 miners, trapped in Wheatly No. 4 coal mine by an explosion Monday night, were recovered by rescue workers today.

The bodies were found at the eighteenth level of the mine and were badly burned.

The miners had been working on the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth levels. The position of the bodies indicated the men rushed away from the force of the explosion only to perish.

The fate of the remaining 21 miners who have not been reached is not known. If they rushed to the lower levels and closed the level doors there still is a possibility that they may be found alive, rescue crews said.

U. S. Slang Like Greek to English Movie Fans

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Something must be done about American slang in the talkies, Sidney Bernstein, London theater owner and builder of Europe's largest theater, was in New York today to investigate the matter.

He said American slang in talkies was particularly objectionable to English patrons, who do not understand the meaning of even the most ordinary slang words used in the United States. Bernstein said "Oh, gee," and "Attaboy" didn't mean a thing to English talkie fans.

SEIZED ALCOHOL GOES TO U. S.

Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court today signed an order authorizing prohibition authorities to deliver 280 gallons of alcohol for use of the United States government for medicinal, mechanical and scientific purposes. The order also diverts 200 gallons for automobiles in the prohibition department to be used as anti-freeze.

The 480 gallons of alcohol were seized September 27 in a freight car in the yards of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad on the North Side, and condemned to the government on October 21.

HERRON SCORES EVANS' AUDIT

The audit of the books of the American Reduction Company, ordered by former Controller Henry Oliver Evans, has "not been worth a dime," Councilman John S. Herron declared at a committee meeting yesterday at which a request for $5,000 additional for the auditors was considered.

Herron said:

"It was just a political audit."

The request was held over pending further reports on the case from Controller James P. Kerr. The city has entered a suit against the company for $1,250,000 on charges preferred by Evans.

Councilman Robert Garland declared the audit would have to be continued during the progress of the suit, predicting:

"The auditors will use $50,000 before it is over."

Robert J. Alderdice commented:

"I don't think the city will get enough out of it to make it worth $50,000."

The audit is being made by Collins and Company and McLean and Company. A conference is to be held at some future date on the audit and the companies will be asked to present their cases.

The Public Safety Committee of City Council this afternoon was scheduled to consider the revised left turn elimination ordinance for the Boulevard of the Allies, which provides for the banning of all left turns by out-bound cars from Grant street to Craft avenue with the exception of Pride street.

Members of the Better Traffic Committee, sponsors of a previous ordinance which banned all left turns by out-bound cars, are to attend the meeting and to present their views.

Such a help for dishes

—makes pots and pans shine too

WASHING dishes is no work at all with Rinso! It's a joy to see the way they soak spotless in creamy Rinso suds. All you need to do is rinse them in hot water; they dry clear and sparkling by themselves. No wiping needed!

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—because it's granulated and compact. Rich, soapy, lasting suds, even in the hardest water. No grit. Marvelous suds for washing out bathtubs, basins, sinks. Makes all cleaning easier.

And for the weekly wash . . . Rinso is the choice of millions. It soaks clothes whiter than they can be scrubbed. Get the BIG package.

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF THE South Pittsburgh Water Company

On October 27, 1930, a large fire in an industrial plant in Clairton, Pennsylvania, resulted in the release of large quantities of benzol and phenol waste in the Monongahela River, our source of water supply, at a point about nine miles above our intake.

The presence of a large amount of these chemicals in the river water, at its present low stage, will make it very difficult for us to eliminate unpleasant taste and odor in the water we furnish our customers.

Estimated on the present flow of the river, the phenol wastes will reach our intake within the next forty-eight hours, and while we are doing everything humanly possible to control this unusual situation, the water may be somewhat unpalatable until such time as the flow of the river carries these chemicals past our intake.

The water at all times will be free from harmful impurities, and we are taking every possible precaution to eliminate these tastes and odor in the water supply, using every known process to remove phenol taste. We will also use all our storage facilities and underground supplies to supplant, as far as possible, the use of the river water while these wastes are passing our intake.

We advise our customers at once to store a three days' supply of water for drinking and cooking purposes in order to avoid the use of water having any undesirable taste or odor which may result from a situation wholly beyond our control, but which we are doing our utmost to minimize.

FOREST TRACT CONDEMNED

Judge R. M. Gibson in United States Court signed a decree condemning 16,276 acres of land in Warren and Forest counties to be used by the government for national forest reserves and for preservation of a watershed of the Allegheny River. On a section of the land is a large tract of virgin white pine, one of the best remaining in this country.

Twenty-five of the land owners consented to the condemnation. The court appointed six appraisers to estimate the value of the land. They are H. H. Potter, George Irvine and Charles C. Swaine, of Warren County, and R. M. Herman, J. J. Landers and A. F. Ledebur, of Forest County.

Y., in the person of John Richie, from whom she was not divorced, John Brassart, of North Charleroi, has instituted suit here for a divorce. They were married July 17, 1930, in Pittsburgh. Brassart declared he had just learned that his wife had another husband.

Auto Toll Reaches Six as Child Dies

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Shirley May King, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles King, died in the hospital here of injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Bigler. Her death brought automobile fatalities in a 72-hour period in Washington County to six.

CRITICIZE RIVER BLVD. SHRUBS

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern reported to his colleagues yesterday that a complaint has been lodged with him about the shrubbery being planted on the Ohio River boulevard.

McGovern said:

"I am told that the holes for the plants have not been dug deep enough and the top soil is too light."

Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown said:

"The man who is in charge of that work is a graduate of Yale University Forestry School. He made the plans and specifications and is constantly on the job and in supreme authority. If the plants fail to grow the contractor must replace them."

LUCKY GIRL

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LVII.

Mary Paige stormed because Cathie insisted on taking charge of Marguerite's burial.

"Of all the crazy things, that's the worst—"

"But Ma, there's nobody but me, and it would be too heartless to never go near her—just let them put her in Potter's Field—"

"Oh well, have it your own way. You're a stubborn one—"

And to Gordon, who had come to take Cathie, she said, "See that she don't overdo, won't you? She's not the least bit strong yet, the poor child, but she thinks it's her duty . . . she always was the tenderest hearted young one—give you the shirt off her back, work her pretty fingers to the bone—"

"I know, Mrs. Paige."

"Get her back early—"

"I will, Mrs. Paige."

"Cathie, have you got a clean handkerchief?"

"Yes — two of 'em," Cathie called back, smiling, getting back into the car beside Gordon.

It was just too wonderful, having Ma to scold and storm just as she used to do, being able to see the love in her gentle ey " . . . and having Gordon, too.

Happy Again

Being home again. Sleeping in the back bedroom in the old oak bedstead with the blankets that were yellow from many washings. Waking to hear the street cars rattling down Hayes street, and the crickets in the back yard. . . Waking again to smell coffee percolating in the kitchen, to hear Ma rattling the stove lids, to be able to run out and help, and be one of them again . . . happy . . .

"It's so good, Gordon, to be home again. To have you. I don't believe my knees will ever knock together again. I'll never be afraid of anything. Life's done its worst to me. There can't be anything but good ahead."

He didn't answer in words. Just squeezed her hand, and it seemed to Cathie that that firm, warm pressure would give her courage to face whatever was left in life to face.

Certainly it got her through the day. After she had looked for the last time on the white, still strangely beautiful face of the woman whom no one but she had come to mourn, they went to the place on Stockton street, where she had lived.

It was an attic room in an old house on the edge of Chinatown. It might have been the very house where she lived, many years ago, with her mother.

It was very bare, but the whitewashed walls were clean. There were clean white curtains at the windows, and there was a white spread on the old walnut carved bed. And over on the dresser, faded, but still pungently fragrant, six ivory and gold China lilies stood in a glass of water.

China lilies. . . . In her dead husband's room, in her own cell in the jail, and here. . . .

"Did Cheong know of this? I mean, did he ever come here?" she asked softly.

"Why, yes. He helped to trace her. I don't know that he ever came here himself."

Cheong Wise

Cathie looked away. She thought of the newspaper stories she had read . . . that fat, Italian widow with the shawl and the veil, who was supposed to have been Marguerite's only visitor . . . could it have been Cheong?"

A little picture of Cheong in a long skirt, and a shawl flashed before Cathies eyes . . . Intuition? Just a notion? It couldn't have been . . . Still they do marvelous things with makeup . . . It might have been.

Timidly, she asked Gordon. Did he think she was right?

"My dear, I don't know," he told her earnestly. "The old fellow was very wise, more wise and powerful than we'll ever know. It might have been he . . . or it might have been someone he sent. Depend on it, if Cheong had a hand in it, the truth will never come out. Besides, it wouldn't help to know. Alfred Farnsworth is gone, and we know that he wanted to go. The doctor's story of that last visit with him should help us to forget the tragedy. Though she didn't mean to be, Marguerite was kind. She gave him the swift, merciful end he wanted, instead of invalidism and agony . . . and she's gone, too, gone beyond censure, gone where we'll hope his queer troubled soul finds peace."

She let him lead her away then. There was nothing for them to do in the bare, orderly little room. But in the car she began her old h it of thinking out loud. "I don't think Marguerite would be clever enough to write a letter like that alone, Gordon. It covered everything too well. Her mind didn't work that way. She couldn't concentrate on anything long enough to write it out all so clearly. You know she just did things in a hurry—like—like shooting, and thinking afterwards. . . ."

Moore nodded. "I know. When we got the news that she was dead my first thought was that the confession she had left wouldn't do us much good—that it wouldn't be conclusive or anything. But it's perfect. I wouldn't be surprised if he had a hand in it. He might have done something to bring her to it—he might have given her the opium. You know he loved Alfred Farnsworth. Their relationship was never that of master and servant, they were really friends. I don't think that he would have let the death go unavenged. If her confession were not necessary to free you I almost think he'd have killed her himself, once he discovered her guilt. He's not modern, you know, he's old, old China, dispensing speedy justice.

Wife Sues Chester

"I'd like to see Cheong again," Cathie said dreamily. "I'd like to talk, to him about—about Mr. Farnsworth. I think he knew him so much better than I ever did, even though I was his wife. I'd like to talk to him, and ask him if he's really and truly sure that he was satisfied with me—that he was glad he married me, even if it ended—like it did."

"Of course he was glad, Cathie. Why, those last six months were the happiest of his life. You must have known that. He was so lonely and depressed before. And as for the end—"

"That's it. The end. Maybe it was I who brought it on—"

"No, Cathie, it was inevitable. It would have come. Probably a double shooting—Chester, too. By the way, Chester's wife has left him. She's starting divorce proceedings, and claiming just about all the community property but Chester's clothes. The papers were full of it this morning. Didn't you see it?"

Cathie smiled a little wanly. "I've read all the scandal I want to. Enough to last me the rest of my life. I don't even want to hear about it. I just hope I'll never have to see that man again as long as I live . . . Let's not talk about him. Let's go up to Chinatown and see if we can find Cheong."

So they drove down Stockton street, past the stores of the little shopkeepers, and up to the door of the Chinese Six Companies.

"Mind waiting in the car a moment?"

"Not if you won't be long."

"I won't" Gordon promised, and bounded up the wide stone steps of the big white building, leaving Cathie alone in the car.

Minutes passed. Cathie began to feel uneasy. She wished she had gone in with Gordon.

Ambition Blinds Some Women to Real Things of Life, Says Fay King

SURE! I GOT HER THAT PART IN THAT PICTURE
WHY DON'T YOU MARRY HIM, AND BE HAPPY?
I WILL NEVER GIVE UP MY CAREER
HE'S GOING TO MAKE A BIG STAR OF ME!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

What gambling is to some men, ambition is to some women. She still sacrifices everything—health, happiness, home, husband, morals—anything and everything, seeking after success, which she imagines is always just around the corner.

She falls an easy victim to any four-flusher who invents absurd stories about the part he has played in the success of some star.

She will make any sort of a marriage that she imagines may move her one step nearer the goal she would attain.

Even if she marries a famous man or a very rich one, it is merely a means to make success come a little sooner—perhaps. Nothing matters to her but the phantom of success, which she everlastingly pursues.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

The Spice of Love

A modern girl can have many more men in her life than her mother could, even though she may have fewer proposals of marriage.

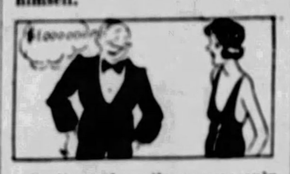
The day has passed when a man's mind was supposed to leap straight to the altar the moment he found a girl attractive and when he was expected to make clear his "intentions" before they were quite clear to himself.



In those days there were only two kinds of men, marrying men and "dangerous men." A kiss from the former meant an offer of marriage—and a kiss from the latter meant a scandal.

Now there are forty-seven varieties of "boy friends," and if a girl makes a foolish marriage it is not for lack of a chance to make comparisons among the specimens of the elusive sex.

A man may seek a girl's society for a lot of reasons besides love. He may enjoy playing around with her because he finds her amusing or witty or chummy. Or he may take her about because she enjoys the same shows and the same pastimes that he does and makes a good pal.

He may be a sentimental grafter looking for a little free petting, or he may be just a lonesome man looking for sympathy and understanding.

* * *

It may thrill his vanity and tickle his pride to be seen with her because she always "looks like a million dollars." Or he may invite her to dinner just because the other two women he called up were already dated.

* * *

The average man's telephone list is as long as a rainy Sunday. And his "intentions" are usually neither honorable nor dishonorable. He just hasn't ANY intentions whatever.

It is often a great relief to a modern girl to go out with a man who WON'T make love to her and who won't suspect that she has deep, dark matrimonial designs on him every time she telephones him or smiles at him.

To have half a dozen men pals whom she can call on to share a pair of theater passes, take her to a party or make a fourth at bridge is a luxury that a girl of today enjoys and that her mother never knew in the blushing days of chaperones and husband-hunting.

Of course, every normal girl DOES want to be "the only woman" in some man's life, and no woman can endure the feeling that NO man is in love with her. But the Victorian custom of cutting every man off your list who does not look like a wedding ring is OUT forever.

It's harder to make a man marriage-minded than it was when mother was a girl, but it's a lot easier to know what you're getting when you do marry. Variety in men friends is the spice of love, and the best insurance against making a fool marriage.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation Of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Sees Wily Hand of Owen in the Unexpected Presence of Marion in New York

"Marion! Dearest! What a delightful surprise! But does your mother know? She didn't half an hour ago, when I left the hotel."

I tried hard to give an imitation of the usual babbling feminine relative as I touched Lillian's young daughter, Marion, on the shoulder and launched my carefully prepared exclamations of surprise. But I had never felt more detached and alert as I watched her reaction to my unexpected appearance and sent a furtive glance to the tall, carefully groomed figure of Charles Owen behind her. I did not waste any time in watching Carolyn Brixton, Marion's "roomie." A fluffy, witching little creature, she was utterly innocuous, I was sure, and had no part in her uncle's scheme, whatever it was. That he was, in my mother-in-law's phrase, "up to something," I was physically certain. But whether he contemplated something immediate or was playing a waiting game on his brother's behalf—insinuating himself into Marion's confidence and liking, so that he would be able to get her acceptance of Brixton's "restoration" scheme when she should become of age—this was a question I could not answer.

Nor was there any answer to it in Charles Owen's imperturbable mien. My swift glance at his face showed only the polite surprise which naturally would be called for by my unexpected appearance.

But Marion's face was crimson with embarrassment.

"Why, Auntie Madge!" she stammered, "I didn't think you'd be in the city today. Is mother here, too? I thought it was tomorrow she was coming to meet me."

If the gentleman standing back of her had had any hand in this premature arrival of the young girls in the city he must be having some uncomfortable seconds, I reflected grimly, for Marion's whole attitude was that of a child found out in some trick which she had thought safe from discovery. From the depths of my consciousness there wriggled up an ugly little fear which I had first felt at Marion's attitude of enmity toward her stepfather. Though she later abandoned the stand which had caused her mother so much pain and had maintained a consistently affectionate mien to Harry Underwood, yet I could not rid myself of the haunting thought that Marion might not be entirely her mother's child, that she might carry within her soul some of the characteristics of her own father.

I scored myself savagely for what I termed my disloyalty to the winsome child I loved so well.

"That is what she still thinks, Marion," I said gravely. "She had to come into the city unexpectedly yesterday, so she is waiting here until tomorrow. How is it that you were able to get away a day earlier? I thought your rules were strict on that point. Your mother will wish to know, I am sure, why you were permitted to leave before the day she was notified to meet you."

"Oh-h!" Marion gasped. Then she turned appealing to her "roomie."

"You tell her, Carolyn," she said, and somewhere beneath the words I read the unspoken message—"You got me into this; now get me out."

But Carolyn's voice also held a hint of panic.

"Uncle Charley," she said appealingly, "you know all about it. You planned it, didn't you? Mrs. Graham will know it's all right when you tell her about it."

I had the secret conviction that Carolyn's uncle would have given much for the privilege of choking her, but the smiling face he turned to me held no hint of perturbation, and his voice and the silky suavity I remembered—and loathed.

"It is a very simple matter," he said. "Ronald wired that he could get home from Yale tonight instead of tomorrow night, although but one of his holiday week guests can come with him—the other two, I believe, have some restriction until tomorrow morning. I—Helena suggested that it would be nice if the girls could get off today and have an extra day in the city, including a little dinner tonight for the four youngsters, chaperoned, of course, by Helena."

"And you, Uncle Charlie," Carolyn interrupted breathlessly, all her affection for the man sounding in her voice.

But I had caught the inadvertent pronoun before the name of his sister-in-law, and I knew that the conception of this—apparently innocuous plan—had originated in Charles Owen's brain, not that of Helena Brixton, although, no doubt, she had acquiesced promptly in it. There was but one thing wrong. Why had not Marion consulted her mother before leaving the school?

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Synthetic jewelry has become so beguiling, and burglars and holdup men so skillful at their trade, that almost any girl can live comfortably without a solitaire which, in the past, was the daily prayer of the phrail sex. Time was when imitation jewelry was a social disgrace. "I will have the real thing or none at all," a lady said with emphasis and dignity. What a nice, comfortable, agreeable age we live in!

Thinning out the long bob when the scalp is too full of hair is a tricky job. Every hairchipper can't do it nicely. There must be no stubby ends left, depleted portions should be tapered. The long bob, by the way, is getting shorter. When it is long, there's nothing to do with the ends but to bun them. When two inches below the hair line, they curl upward.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Early Care Lessens Danger of Scarlet Fever

Of all the contagious diseases of childhood, scarlet fever has always been one that a mother most feared. In these days of treatment by vaccine, the oldtime dread of the disease has diminished considerably.

DR. COPELAND

Scarlet fever is highly contageous. Its contagiousness does not depend upon the severity of the attack. The person with a mild case may give to another a most malignant type.

Practically all the infection or contagious diseases begin in the same way. The first evidence is vomiting, or in the case of a child, it may be a convulsion. Almost immediately the temperature goes up. Then we find the patient complaining of a sore throat. There is likely, too, to be intense fever.

After a few hours a rash appears on the chest and neck. In the course of two or three days the rash spreads over the entire body, beginning above and gradually extending downward. The rash is not at all like measles, where the eruption first appears on the cheeks.

After about six days there is a peeling of the skin. There is a very peculiar appearance of the tongue, which is called "strawberry" tongue.

The complications of scarlet fever are many and some are quite serious. It is no wonder that a mother is frightened at the thought of her child going through the dangers of the disease.

It is not at all uncommon to have broncho-pneumonia develop. The heart may give way or the kidneys may be involved. The joints sometimes become red and tender as in rheumatism. There are other serious complications.

Scarlet fever is contagious from the very first symptoms until all the peeling and discharge from the ears disappear. This time covers a period of at least forty days.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bidding Goodby to a New Acquaintance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a young lady is sitting down and is introduced to a young man, should she stand up or remain seated when she says "How do you do?" or shakes hands with him?

2. When a man is leaving is it proper for a lady to remain seated when she says, "goodbye" to him?

3. What is the proper reply to give to a person who says, "I am very glad to have made your acquaintance?" L. W.

1. No—by all means no. When a man is introduced to a woman (and this is the correct thing to say, since it is not correct to "introduce a woman to a man"), she does not stand.

2. No. She does not stand when they are introduced, and she does not rise when he says "good-bye."

3. "Thank you, I am very glad to have met you, too," or "Thank you. It has been a great pleasure to meet you, too." Then if either wishes, he or she may add, "I hope that I am to see you again sometime."

(And the more cumbersome phrase "to have made your acquaintance" should not be used. We should, instead, say the more simple thing, "to have met you.")

A Correct Phrase

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me which is correct, "Mary asked me to have dinner with her and Jane" or "Mary asked me to have dinner with she and Jane"?

C. L.

"Mary asked me to have dinner with her and Jane" is correct. Leave from your sentence "and Jane" and you will see (or hear) that "her" is the correct word to use. Prepositions, like "with" (in this case), and "in" and "on," etc., take the objective case after them, as their predicates.

Ask for Kotex
if you want real comfort in sanitary protection

Don't think other sanitary pads can give you the same wonderful absorbency, the perfect fit and lasting softness Kotex provides.

KOTEX IS SOFT...
1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.
4—Disposable, instantly, completely.
Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

The NEW KOTEX BELT
brings new ideals of sanitary comfort! Woven to fit, on an entirely new patented principle. Firm yet light; will not curl; perfect-fitting.

IF you want perfect comfort and a real feeling of security, you must specify "Kotex" when you buy sanitary pads.

Kotex, the original sanitary pad, is actually five times more absorbent than surgical cotton, by test. The wonderful material of which it is made (Cellucotton—not cotton—absorbent wadding) is laid in many air-cooled layers, each individual layer a quick, complete absorbent in itself. Kotex is guaranteed to give more protection, longer protection than any other sanitary pad.

These unique features

Kotex deodorizes—a fact of supreme importance to women who consider daintiness essential to charm.

It is rounded and tapered in such a way as to fit perfectly under the tightest fitting or filmiest of frocks.

Hospitals specify Kotex

Great hospitals have given their approval to Kotex by actually using 13,000,000 pads this year. Just think what a tribute that is to its hygienic safety!

Nothing else is like Kotex. Be safe. Specify "Kotex" when you order sanitary pads.

And Here's the Case of the Wife Who Must Help Husband Pay Alimony to His Ex-Wife

Do you believe that a woman should live off a man when she hasn't been able to make the grade at living with him?

Evidently George's Ex-Missis does . . . because for 15 years now she's played around, refusing to do a lick of work or earn herself a cent, meanwhile greedily hogging almost two-thirds of his modest salary—while Mildred, his present wife, has kept her nose to the grindstone, helping him to keep their home together and put food in the mouth of their small son.

And the law upholds the ex-wife in her graft!

"Dear Sally—

"I just can't resist answering some of these Smart Alec letters folks have been writing you lately, so here goes to get something off my chest!

"I am one of those women that single girls think should be shot at sunrise, or sundown, or any time convenient.

"Yes, I am a married woman, and I work, actually work, in an office, and keep some poor, deserving single girl out of a job. I have had the same job for 15 years, with the exception of four months off 10 years ago, when I was expecting our baby.

"Now he is old enough so that he stays home all day and looks after himself, except when he is at school. And, oh, what wouldn't I give to be able to stay at home with him, and enjoy him and enjoy keeping that home as I would like to keep it. But, if I did, he'd have mighty slim pickings to eat, and no clothes fit to wear. So I must catch the 8 o'clock train every morning, and so must hurry away and leave him.

"What fun my boy and I could have, if I could be home! He is such a dear boy, and is always sitting on the steps each evening, waiting for me and his father to get home. How I would love to have time to leisurely wash my curtains and hang them in this glorious sunshine, instead of giving them a lick and a promise, and hanging them on the back porch at night.

"And such things as I would cook, if I could! I love to cook. But now I haven't time. There's the 8 o'clock waiting for me, and I have to rush off, or I'll be late.

"And why do I have to rush off like that, instead of enjoying life in my home, where I want to be? I'll tell you why! It's because George, my husband, has to pay out $100 a month, out of his $175 salary, for alimony to his divorced wife, who, unlike me, does not work. For years she's been bleeding him like that, with the consent of the law.

"I wouldn't mind if she were ill, or had children to support, or were too old to work, but she isn't. She's just as strong and able-bodied as I am, but just because she once was married to my husband, here she is, hanging around his neck like a millstone. During these years she might easily have made herself a place in the business world, but no, she'd rather skimp along on $100 a month, than to stir herself and show a little life. And the law allows her to hang onto him. I think it's an outrage myself. What do you think?

"So Sundays are the only days I can stay at home and be really happy. And what glorious days they are! How we do look forward to them! The things we do! The dinners we cook! The fun we have! And how happy we are, my husband, my little son and I, for a little while. Because in spite of the fact that she couldn't seem to get along with him, he is a wonderful man, and deserves something better than the virtual slavery she's held him in all these years.

"So you tell those Know-It-All people who crab at wives who work, to look beneath the surface a little, before they start in their yapping and fault-finding. There's usually a reason when wives don't stay at home.

"MILDRED."

Pretty tough story, isn't it, partner? And one that should move the sympathies of anyone whose heart isn't made of a stone.

But it's one that our present alimony laws, plus sentimental courts, can make happen to almost any man who has had the misfortune to make a mistake and marry the wrong woman.

It goes without saying, of course, that when there are children, the man should do his part to support them, if the family is divided by divorce. But personally, I fail to see any reason why any grabby female who is perfectly able to take care of herself should be allowed to live for the rest of her life off a man, just because she has spent a few months or a few years as his wife.

There is no more excuse for such a woman to keep her hand in the man's pocket for the rest of her life than there is for some thug to stick him up with a gun and take his money away from him.

When two people come to the parting of the ways, the only fair thing, provided there are no children, is to call quits, and make a new deal all around. And the man in the case has a right to go out and build a new home for himself.

That's my slant on this alimony business. But maybe you think I'm wrong.

If so, here's your chance at the Mike.

Erie Man Appeals Rum Term and Fine

Stanley Dobkowski, of Erie, sentenced Monday in Federal Court to pay a $5,000 fine and serve two years in Atlanta Penitentiary for conspiring to violate the national prohibition law, was released from jail under $10,000 bond, pending his appeal to the United States Circuit Court.

Permission to file an appeal with the higher court was granted by Judge Nelson McVicar, who had imposed the fine and penitentiary sentence.

SCHOOL HONORS FATHER HEHIR

A testimonial dinner to the Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, president of Duquesne University, who was relieved of his duties recently, will be given November 4 in the William Penn Hotel by the board of directors and the alumni association of the institution.

Father Hehir, one of the city's best known educators, who had been the head of the school for 31 years, will be replaced by the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, who comes here from the Holy Ghost Apostolic College, Cornwells, Pa., of which he was the head for 15 years.

Father Hehir is second in authority of the Order of the Holy Ghost in the United States, ranking immediately below the provincial father.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, October 30

The planetary forecast for this day is for a rather routine state of affairs with things running smoothly in the accustomed grooves, but possibly encountering some trivial delays or anxieties. It may be well to postpone important events. In the realm of the domestic, affectional or social a letter may bring welcome news or a conversation bring happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the general trend of events depends upon their individual efforts. The astral influences are negative, a single lunar aspect pointing to small anxieties and trivial delays. A letter or conversation in the domain of social, domestic or affectional relations may prove pleasant.

A child born on this day may be artistic, literary, poetic, and may gain friends and position through its amiable and gracious ways.

NEWS FROM HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Another Oldtime Drama Listed as Talkie for Constance Bennett

By HARRISON CARROLL.
(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.

In former years, "The Easiest Way" was a problem drama that kicked up quite a discussion on Broadway.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer believes that it can revive the echoes in a modernized talkie version on the Eugene Walter play.

The 1930 heroine will be Constance Bennett, whom Pathe has consented to loan for the production. Miss Bennett already has amassed a vast amount of popularity for her performance in another old-timer, "Common Clay."

Constance Bennett

After the loan of Miss Bennett, Pathe is expected to have smooth sailing in its efforts to borrow Robert Montgomery from M. G. M. to play one of the leads opposite Ann Harding in "Rebound." Swapping of players is common among all the studios. Pathe, for instance, loaned Ann Harding to First National for "The Girl of the Golden West," on consideration that Frank Lloyd be allowed to direct a picture on their new program.

IT'S DIFFERENT IN JERSEY

At an earlier period of his career, Kenneth MacKenna, who is one of Hollywood's natty dressers, got a job as the juvenile in a Newark stock company. As a sartorial tour-de-force, he invested in an English cut suit with a short coat and baggy trousers.

The performance took place. On the morning after, one of the reviews remarked: "Unfortunately, the company's trucks didn't arrive, and the new leading man wore a suit that fitted the period when Grant took Richmond."

MacKenna pinned the review to the seat of the trousers and sent the suit back to the tailor.

Kay Francis.

Kay Francis is bringing her mother, also an actress, out from the East to live in Hollywood. . . Dick Arlen is taking Jobyna Ralston to Palm Springs to recuperate from pneumonia . . . Ken Maynard has bought a new airplane, his third . . . Spencer Tracy and Lee Tracy are both under contract to Fox, but are not related. Spencer appears as the jail-breaker in "Up the River," while Lee was the hoofer in "Big Time" . . . Roland Young (author of a volume of poems, "Not for Children"), is writing a new book, this time kidding Hollywood.

MILLENIUM HAILED

The following is a bona-fide record of a conversation that took place recently between a high official at Fox and a minor comedian under contract to the studio:

Official (meeting the comedian on the lot)—"Well, I renewed your option today."

Comedian (matter-of-factly)—"Okeh."

Official—"You don't like me, do you?"

Comedian—"No, I don't."

Official—"Well, I'm glad to find out a guy around here who's honest, anyway."

And, take it or leave it, the comedian still works there.

FAMILIAR GROUND

Cliff Edwards was handed the part of a hobo in Lawrence Tibbett's new picture. "The Southerner." With a slow grin, he drawled:

"I've played a cowboy, a soldier and a college boy, though I never was on a ranch, in the army or in college. Now here is the first part I really know something about—I play a bum!"

In Person

Olive Borden, film actress, will appear in person on the Enright stage in Dick Powell's new revue, opening Friday.

FILM STARS COMING IN NEW STAGE PLAYS

Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque will be seen on the stage in the Nixon for one week, commencing Monday evening, in a play by John Emerson and Anita Loos titled "Cherries Are Ripe."

Anton Chekhov, whose "Uncle Vanya" will be performed for the first time in Pittsburgh on the professional stage on Monday night in the Schubert Alvin, wrote the first draft of "Uncle Vanya" and then put it away in his desk and did not look at it again for 13 years. The cast is headed by Lillian Gish. Seats go on sale at the box office tomorrow morning.

The leading woman role in "Meet the Wife," to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, is the type of married woman who thinks more of her home than she does of her husband. She follows him around, picking up and brushing up, and forbids him to smoke or allow his friends to smoke in the home. Jean May will have the role.

Capt. Menke's Showboat Players are presenting the classic melodrama, "St. Elmo," on the Golden Rod Showboat. This is the fifteenth and final week of the showboat's stay at Montrose, just above Aspinwall.

West View to Get Playgrounds

The West View Board of Trade has voted to co-operate with the Borough Council and School Board looking to the acquisition of two playgrounds in different parts of the community. A committee consisting of George Kaedaisch, Karl Swanson, V. H. Walter, J. G. Shaw and J. V. Shoup has been named to represent the trade organization. J. Vincent Sexton, formerly connected with the city bureau of recreation, has volunteered to act as advisor in developing the project.

Comedienne

Winnie Lightner, heralded as the rowdy comedienne of the screen, comes to the Stanley Friday in "The Life of the Party."

New County Edifice Ready in January

The County Department of Public Works will be ready to move into the new county office building in January, according to Director Norman P. Brown, who yesterday requested the commissioners to authorize contracting for light, heat and telephone service to be installed prior to January 31.

French Movie Star Bride of Composer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Back from a honeymoon at Noah Beery's Paradise Club, high in the San Bernardino mountains, Yola D'Avril, French motion picture actress, and Edward Ward, music composer, are receiving congratulations of their Hollywood friends.

The couple were married at the picturesque resort with only a few friends present.

Auto Kills Cyclist On Way to Church

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Bert Clark, 55, was fatally hurt when struck by an automobile here while on the way to prayer meeting. The accident occurred at a street intersection and the machine which struck the bicycle was driven by Howard Levi, of Titusville. Clark leaves his widow and six children.

Library Association Ex-President Dead

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Miss Myra Poland, former president of Pennsylvania Library Association, died in Boston, following an operation. Miss Poland, an employe at Osterhout Library here for 41 years, and head librarian for 29 years, was one of the oldest library employes in the country.

Juniors to Hold Halloween Fete

The Junior department of the Bellevue Christian Church, Mrs. Edward F. Waldschmidt superintendent, will hold a Halloween costume party tomorrow night in the department rooms.

Brilliant Performance That is in Your Radio-Set

Listen to the difference with new Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes

Let a free demonstration, in your own home, show what your radio can really do. This home test, without obligation, will prove a revelation!

LEARN the truth about your radio! Instead of being unpleasant, it is sure to be a joyous surprise. For your radio-set is almost certain to be a far finer musical instrument than you ever dreamed you possessed. That is because no radio can be itself if it has even one weak, worn-out or faulty tube.

You can discover the true voice of your radio without cost or obligation. Right in your own home, by means of this special demonstration of Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes. With Eveready Raytheons, the difference is startling . . . you've never heard anything like it!

In Eveready Raytheon, there is a revolutionary new application of a time-tried engineering principle. Look at a water-tank on top of a factory. The reason those tons of water are held up there in safety, despite wind and storm, and vibration from factory-machinery, is that the tank stands squarely on four legs. Like a water-tank, a radio-antenna mast, or even a sturdy, old-fashioned windmill, the elements inside an Eveready Raytheon are anchored at four points.

These elements are fragile, but they are the works of the tube. On their accuracy and stability depends the quality of the sound that comes from your loud speaker. In ordinary tubes, the elements have only two supports. In Eveready Raytheons, 4-Pillar construction safeguards the elements against all jolts, against vibration from powerful dynamic speakers, and holds them rigid in a position of split-hair accuracy.

The 4-Pillar construction is patented and exclusive . . . no other tube can use it. You deserve to know, from actual experience, what Eveready Raytheons will do for your radio!

Find out! It costs you nothing. It places you under no obligation whatever. But it may open a new world of radio pleasure to you. Telephone the nearest Eveready Raytheon dealer—today! Ask for a free demonstration in your home.

The Eveready Hour, radio's oldest commercial feature, is broadcast every Tuesday evening at nine (New York time) from WEAF over a nation-wide N. B. C. network of 27 stations.

THE free Eveready Raytheon demonstration, in your own radio, at home, is more conclusive, convenient and complete than testing your tubes with a meter in a radio-store. Don't miss this opportunity to learn how 4-Pillar Tubes will improve your radio . . . especially if your present tubes are a year or more old.

Wish

Why should you blame yourself if love for me
Is slow to come or will not come at all?
I have no right to ask for constancy,
You are not subject to my beck and call;
It is enough for me that I have spent
Rapturous hours with you that will not fade,
And since these glowing nights were heaven-sent,
Surely I feel that I am well repaid.

I will be leaving soon and may you find
Romance and bliss and all that makes life dear,
May all your dreams be sweet—may every wind
Soothe you to rest and banish all your fear;

And may the lucky lad who earns your sigh,
Want you, and love you half as much as I!

—Don Wahn.

Time to Quit

Take it from Fred Allen, the star clown of "Three's a Crowd." Two legit actors met at Forty-seventh street. Fred says you could tell they were legit actors because instead of shaking hands they tapped their canes.

"Fancy meeting you, old chap," said the first. "I thought you were doing a season in stock at Rutland in Vermont."

"I closed there last week," said the other. "I couldn't stand it."

"Wot!" Lonsdale the first. "you mean you quit?"

"I had to," he replied. "I didn't mind it so much when they quit paying salaries. And when the printing company refused us further credit, and we had to rely on gossip to publicize the show I was not greatly upset. But when the electric company turned off the power and we started to use glowworms for footlights, I QUIT!"

Golly!

Credit Judge Machamer with this repartee overheard along Crimes square:

"Business is veddy bad in the theater, isn't it?

"Veddy bad! The only audience I ever see, is when I shave!"

The New Version

Chick Chandler polishes up the one about the two panhandlers who got in each other's hair by using the same territory. Finally they decided that one would exclusively have Broadway and the other Sixth avenue.

Two weeks later, however, the beggars met each other on Broadway.

"Here, here, now," growled the Broadway Sector one, "I thought you promised to stay over there and not crash my street."

"I know, I know," was the answer, "but I forgot to tell you. My daughter Josie got married yesterday and I gave her Sixth avenue as a wedding present."

Observation

He is one of the numerous loafers who frequent the night clubs, and after two swallows of anything, whoopee! It is strictly show-off stuff, of course, and the other night in one hot-spot he fell on spectators whose frocks, suits, shoes and evenings were spoiled.

We watched the "very social" bum fall or trip and otherwise make a nuisance of himself. It was amazing the way the management permitted it, and then we remembered the Broadway Idea.

If you are an ordinary, and you haven't a father from Park Ave., who will make good your checks, then you get a mickey-finn, which drives you out of the place, so ill you get.

However, if you're a sucker, the flower girl pets you and tolerates you, the waiters "Mister" you and the entertainers "do not mind" if you talk loud during their specialties. And the head waiters, of course, never complain either, for head waiters are like yesmen and you know what a yesman is.

Some Fun, No Kid!

George Bernard Shaw's radio talkie reminds us of a recent squelch. Shaw, sometime ago, announced to the press: "I am not a gentleman, I am far beyond that."

Gabriel Wells, of London, who had suffered no little pain from Shaw's barbs took advantage of the remark. Mr. Wells wrote to the editors: "A gentleman is a man who knows his place."

Item

Some of the Sunday newspapers have announced that the price of them will be raised to 10 cents a copy; the newsies will get 15 cents.

You can imagine this bothering the fellows who borrow them.

Plenty Lazy

At the Friars the other afternoon, Benny Holzman heard a group discussing the laziest types they ever met. Benny told of the time when in Florida how he asked two colored lads why they weren't working.

"Ah'm too tahrd," said one. "How about you?" asked Benny of the other. "Cain't git no wurk," he answered.

"Why that isn't true," snapped Holzman, "I know for a fact that they will pay men $5 a day to put oranges in boxes."

"We has heard thet, too," drawled the first, "but they 'spects you to pick 'em, also."

Evening Things

One actor who hasn't had a good notice from a New York reviewer in the past three years attended an opening this week with a woman who manages to get front row pews at the premieres.

He took advantage of the situation at intermission to give the critics near him a shudder. Leaving his overcoat in the seat he barked:

"My dear, do you think my overcoat is safe here—with all these critics?"

Add Similes

Suggested for Frank J. Wilstach's Simile Dictionary:

Judge: She had an eye like a cafeteria cashier. . . . Channing Pollock: A critic is a legless man who teaches running.

As If We Didn't Know

And George Jean Nathan mumbles that most stars are actresses occasionally loved by their public, but more often by their managers.

John W. Davis' Kin Hurt in Auto Upset

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Miss Emma Davis, 62, of Elkins, a sister of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, was seriously injured in an automobile accident near here. Her arm was severed when a machine upset and crushed the limb between the car and the pavement. The automobile was driven by Mrs. Julia Adams, of New York, niece of Miss Davis and daughter of John W. Davis.

Still Cold When Raided, Penalty Less Severe

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Oct. 29.—A 50-gallon still with equipment found by police at Carl Eckert's home here was operated on three-day-a-week basis, according to police. Because the "kettle" was cold when police arrived, Eckert could be held only for possessing the apparatus. He was fined $250 by Mayor W. P. Hurst.

Illness of 41 After Party Laid to Menu

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Chicago health authorities learning that 41 guests had become ill after leaving a birthday party, investigated the festivities given by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Baben for their little daughter, Jeanette. The menu, they revealed, included pickled fish, chocolate cake, potato salad, three kinds of flavored gelatine and sliced bananas. Everybody has recovered.

SELF-CONFIDENCE

Bright eyes—a clear mind—belief in oneself and the power to do characterizes the red-blooded man!

IMPORTANT in this picture are the red-blood-cells! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. They fight infection and disease!

Body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils are symptoms of a low blood count. These may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S. restores the red-blood-cells to normal. Your appetite picks up, your whole body is strengthened, invigorated! Your skin clears up. Self-confidence returns. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. Get the large size. At all drug stores.

© S.S.S. Co.

When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are not yourself—60% is dangerous

S.S.S. is the tonic that is daily helping thousands of weak, run-down, nervous people regain their strength and charm.

If you feel yourself slipping—your confidence weakening—why not try S.S.S. Its successful record of over 100 years is a guarantee of satisfaction.

Real Estate

C. B. Nash, vice president of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, addressed the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board yesterday on trends in modern plumbing. He described the growing demand for color in the home and showed how the artist has taken the place of the engineer in designing plumbing fixtures. James W. Cree, Jr., president of the board, presided.

A three-story brick apartment building on 60x135 feet at 5542-44 Fair Oaks street, Squirrel Hill, has been sold through the C. L. Saxton Company for C. C. McKee to Josephine Demor for $34,000. The building contains six suites of six rooms each. A number of garages are on the rear of the lot.

A brick dwelling at 3431 Bigelow boulevard and a frame dwelling at the rear of 3430 Beethoven street has been sold by Bessie A. Gallivan to James A. Gribbin. The lot is 44x100 feet.

A property in East End avenue, near Edgerton avenue, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold by Leroy P. Appleman to Marino Bisceklia.

In Sewickley, Albert C. Hussong, Jr., sold to Mary Rafferty 36x150 feet with a nine-room brick house in Chadwick avenue, near White avenue, for $7,500.

A property in Bronx avenue, West View, lot 60x120 feet, has been sold by Joseph E. Thomas to John W. Schramm.

In the South Hills, the Kramer Real Estate Company sold for Theodore Dangelico to Leroy Long a house in Dixon avenue for $12,500, and for Joseph A. Beck to W. Glenn Wunderly a house in Duquesne drive, Mt. Lebanon, for $10,500.

G. A. and G. C. Harrison have requested a permit to construct a brick house at 4301 Haldane street, Fifteenth Ward, to cost $9,000.

Dangerous Gassy Stomach Torture Ends Quick

"I am pleased and glad to say and tell you that a package of ACIDINE helped me quicker than anything else I ever tried," says William Roots, of Windsor, Pa. "I will tell you there are a good many people killed with this gas in the stomach. If you have a weak heart it is dangerous. I tell others about this—to get ACIDINE and try it."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get it from your druggist today.

Political speeches are 10 cents a dozen these days. Everybody, from the lowest ward-heeler to the most important candidate, is making a speech. The smarter speech-makers always keep an eye open for a good story with which to introduce their speeches. But good stories are scarce.

Shrewd Jim Malone, who is described now not as the defeated candidate for mayor, but as one of Gifford Pinchot's leaders, is telling this one to his audiences:

Once upon a time, at a political picnic, there were contests for the men and contests for the women.

There was a rolling-pin toss for the ladies. The lady who hurled the rolling pin farther than her competitors won something or other. This event was won by, let us say, Mrs. Mike Bump.

The following event was the 100-yard dash for men.

The 100-yard dash for men was won by Mister Mike Bump.

Mary Roberts Rinehart's latest novel (or, for that matter, any of her novels) is excuse enough to tell about the time that the famed author turned reporter for a day.

Mrs. Rinehart and her husband, Dr. Rinehart, were living in the Sewickley Valley at the time.

One night, to the old Gazette Times, there came reports of a serious railroad wreck near Sewickley. Pierce Egan, one of the Gazette's hired hands, telephoned Dr. Rinehart to learn whether he had treated any of the injured.

Dr. Rinehart wasn't home. But Mrs. Rinehart was. She asked for details of the wreck. Egan told her that's what he wanted.

"I'll find out," Mrs. Rinehart offered, and she jumped into her own car, drove several miles to the station and interviewed a half-dozen persons. She discovered this: There hadn't been a wreck. She telephoned her findings to the Gazette, and that is the story of Mary Roberts Rinehart, the reporter.

One of the popular topics of conversation last week was Lynn Fontanne's voice. It is not often that one's voice reaches the importance of a wide topic of conversation, but Miss Fontanne was so able to effect an aged, throaty pitch that the customers marveled. Generally the new Guild play was liked and the author, Maxwell Anderson, was applauded by all—all save John Mellor, the former Lawrenceville publisher. Mr. Mellor takes a trenchant pen in hand and spreads red ink over many pages to write a scathing attack on Author Anderson. Flatly, he accuses Anderson of historical inaccuracies and, sarcastic to the end, suggests that for his next piece the author fashion a play in which a character named Abraham Lincoln makes violent love to a flaming maid named, of all people, Clara Bow.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, paid me a little visit at the ranch Sunday. He ain't either a Democrat or Republican, and it was mighty refreshing to talk to somebody who could tell you the truth about both sides. He is the only senator who don't have to have a convention to tell him what to think. In the same paper where I said we needed a big navy the Secretary of the Navy said the same thing. I never thought I would live to see the day that I would be thinking on a par with the Boston Adamses. Mr. Coolidge said he wouldn't talk on the radio till some humanitarian cause presented itself. It did. The Republicans in Massachusetts needed him.

Getting Instructions From the Mayor on Relief Fund

MEDICAL AID, FOOD GIVEN NEEDY

Prompt Distribution of Councils' $100,000 Begun By Kline; Pleas Increase

With close to 700 applications already on file, the city today will continue its distribution of food, medicine and other necessities under the $100,000 relief fund voted by Council.

Because of a ruling requiring all co-operating relief agencies to complete any necessary investigation within 24 hours, most of those who filed applications for help yesterday will be aided today.

In many cases yesterday all investigation was waived. Food was furnished to 65 families. Medical aid was furnished in several others. Requests for shoes, most of them for children, will be granted today, the necessary distribution centers not being ready for action yesterday.

KLINE HELPS

The distribution is being directed by the Department of Public Welfare, on the sixth floor of the City-County Building. Mayor Charles H. Kline went there yesterday to deliver the first approved application for relief to the applicant. Representatives of a number of relief agencies aided the city employes in the effort.

Each applicant's name is sent to a relief clearing house to ascertain if they are being cared for by any agency. Those who have not applied to any relief organization are given their choice of society to handle the case. Medicine and food come first, according to Isabel B. Darragh. Both she and J. J. McDonough, of the Welfare Department, emphasized the fact that emergency cases will be cared for immediately.

"The Mayor has joined with us in ordering that food and medical attention be provided immediately in all cases where it seems necessary, even if we do not take any time at all to investigate," said the latter.

MORE JOBS IN VIEW

Temporary arrangements have been made to purchase food and shoes, pending advertisement for and opening of bids for supplies. This will be done within five days, it was said at the office of Director of Supplies B. L. Succop.

The Department of Public Works, on the fourth floor, continued efforts to pave the way to put about 530 additional laborers to work. Yesterday 120 were assigned to four sewer jobs. City engineers who checked the work late in the day expressed themselves surprised at the amount of work done. Reports received at the office of Thomas Reed, of the Bureau of Engineering, showed that the men given jobs were giving the city a full day's hard work in return.

Gorio Orders Gold-Plated Coffin for Himself

CHAPTER XVIII.

The whine of tires on the wet street ended in a groan as the lean khaki-colored car, rain curtains up, swung around the corner of the drab criminal courts building and stopped opposite the high gray walls of the county jail, in front of a plate glass window marked:

HENNESSY SURETY CO.
BAIL BONDS.
S. Goldman, Pres.

The driver silently pulled his cap down over his glass eye, lit a cigaret with a sulky gesture and settled down to wait.

The small man beside him opened the door as the car jerked to a stop, and slipped out, buttoning his blue coat tightly about his lean figure.

He looked swiftly up and down the street and then brushed past a stocky fellow lounging at the door on the far side of the window, and climbed swiftly up the narrow, creaking stairs to a dusty door on the second floor, on which could be discerned the label:

"Bigelow Q. Weems, Attorney and Counselor-at-Law."

Noiselessly he tried the knob, gently releasing it when he found the door locked. He pressed an old-fashioned white enamel bell button, and stood close to the door as a bell hummed inside and a shadow appeared on the opaqued glass.

The door opened suddenly, silently, but closed as suddenly after pale green eyes peered searchingly through thick lenses. That is, the door started to close.

Forward
Walks Into Attorney's Private Office

The compact visitor sprang into the breach, doubled his elbows in a peculiar manner, and slipped inside.

"Er, Mr. Weems is, er, in court today," the spectacled clerk mumbled nervously.

The small person glanced swiftly at several shifty-faced men and worried women sitting in the waiting room. Then, smiling faintly, he turned and murmured:

"Tell him Goldie sent me."

The clerk, coughing in embarrassment, hesitated, and in that moment the visitor walked across the room and let himself into the door on which the word "Private" was printed under the name of Mr. Weems.

In the shadow, behind a littered desk, beside a dusty window, the shining bald head sprang up and nervous fingers adjusted thick horn-rimmed spectacles resting on a magnificently huge nose, magnifying quick, black eyes.

"What's the big idea?" snapped Mr. Weems.

"Goldie sent me," replied the visitor with authority.

Weems stared for a moment, then turned abruptly to a seated client:

"Wait outside."

Startled, the man hurried out.

"Well, speak up quickly; I can only give you two minutes," Weems snapped." I didn't recognize you, Big Ears."

Indignant
Gangster Is Sent to Get Lawyer

The visitor lighted a fresh cigaret, to which he helped himself from a box on Weems' crowded desk.

"Goldie said to bring you out to Silver Lake. He wants to see you," he responded, after inhaling deeply.

"Nonsense. Doesn't the absurd idiot know I'm up to my neck in work?"

"He said to bring you," Big Ears repeated softly.

Weems stared silently for a long minute.

"The damn fool," he said finally. "Oh, all right. But he'll pay for it."

He snatched his hat and umbrella and led the way out.

"I don't know when I'll be back," he said to his clerk, adding something in a whisper.

Two hours of breakneck driving over slippery roads, far out into the country, did nothing to improve Weems' disposition.

"I'll tell that nutty near-Napoleon a thing or two," Weems muttered as he stepped out of the car on the driveway in front of an elaborate country estate, and scurried to the door.

Sees Goldie
Gorio Wants Weems to Make Promise

The car crawled on around a turn in the drive toward the camouflaged garage.

Through a reception hall with gold-lacquered Chinese furnishings and objects d'art the guide led Weems—still muttering indignantly—into the library.

The late afternoon light sifted in through golden gauze curtains on walls of gold paper and many rows of books reaching the ceiling—all gold-bound and gilt-edged, with the monogram "G. G." stamped over the title on the back of each book.

Goldie, smiling urbanely, was waiting, hands clasped behind him, at the end of the room in front of the great fireplace.

"Well, here I am," Weems said, abruptly.

"Yes, I was expecting you," Goldie replied, smoothly, adding, to the servant:

"Cigars and sherry, Peters."

Weems, after he had selected a gilt-foil wrapped Havana cigar, stared quizzically at the back of the retreating lackey.

"Looks familiar," he commented shortly.

"You oughta remember," Goldie grunted. "You sprung him, Whitey Peterson, kid."

Weems nodded, lighted his cigar nervously, and said:

"Well, what's the big idea? I'm up to my ears. How good a case you got?"

Goldie laughed softly and puffed his cigaret.

"No case, Gouge," he said. He was silent for a few moments.

"Well, then?" demanded the lawyer, impetuously.

"We're friends, ain't we, Gouge?" he asked finally.

"Why, sure, Goldie, why not?" demanded his counsel, surprised.

"I want you to make me a promise."

Weems hesitated.

Talks of Money
Speaks of What He Has In the Bank

"Well, what is it?" he asked.

"It's a last promise," Goldie said.

Weems stared at him, slightly apprehensive.

"No bull, Gouge," Goldie repeated, smiling faintly. "I got a hunch.

"Why, sure, Goldie," Weems murmured finally. "If you feel that way; why sure, a man ought to be prepared. What is it, a will I should draw up for you?"

"No, not a will, Gouge," Goldie continued slowly. "Something more personal-like than that. You see, Gouge," he spoke confidentially now, "this place and practically everything I got belongs to the boys. I always spent plenty. But I got fifty grand, tucked away in cash in a safety deposit vault in the old First National."

"Well?" asked Weems, as Goldie drew on his cigaret, twisting it with his fingers.

"Its' this fifty grand I'm telling you about," Goldie said.

"What'll I do, distribute it to your relatives?"

"I ain't got no folks livin'," Goldie said. "I got one close personal friend I'm takin' care of by givin' her plenty of rocks,

U. S. PROJECTS SPEED RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Concrete steps taken by various governmental agencies to relieve unemployment as part of the federal share in the country-wide effort to tide over the winter, were before Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee, today when he returned to his desk from his "missionary" work in New York.

Meanwhile, Fred C. Croxton, of Columbus, regional director for the Middle Western and Great Lakes states, was laying the groundwork from Columbus to spread the "Ohio idea" of attacking unemployment through state, county and municipal organizations, to the other states in those regions where the situation is crucial.

Col. Woods, who returned from New York last night, said he was much encouraged by his conferences with leaders of industry and finance there.

Exhibition of Old Russian Textiles Displays Rare Artistry by Peasants

By PENELOPE REDD.

The Count and Countess Moussin-Pushkin present an exhibition of old Russian textiles at the Wunderly gallery for two days only, Wednesday and Thursday.

The exhibition is a private collection made more than a half century ago by a Russian woman who obtained superb examples of peasant needlework from all the Russias.

The collection, safe in Paris during the revolution, is the only one extant, other than the museum groups in Moscow and Leningrad.

Penelope Redd

Limited to ceremonial objects, it reveals the acme of the peasants' aesthetic endeavor. Seventeenth century embroidered ikons or "religious pictures," by "master peasants," whose handicraft was influenced towards religious expression by proximity to monasteries, are exceptional textiles.

Dating from the seventeenth century but with designs of primitive origin are wood block prints, equal in richness and excelling in vigor the East Indian ones.

The laces shown are frequently used to decorate the counterpanes of beds. One item in particular, representing, as do so many of the Russian designs, the concept of Paradise with the tree of life, birds and figures, has a structural clarity, rare in lace.

Gorgeous towel ends of embroidery or lace are numerous since every family decorated ikons with them on festivals. They are a survival of their use at sacrificial ceremonies in pagan times. The designs show figures raised in idolatry and the fabulous "Sirene" or human-faced bird in many textile adaptations.

Costumes, headdresses, silver, ikons painted on wood and enameled on copper, complete the exhibition. One may not leave this exhibition without contrasting the opulence of the ancient peasant art with current tales of their bleak lives.

There is also added the double sting, in Count Pushkin's collection of modern textiles, embroidered by Russian gentlewomen now exiles. They have learned to earn their livelihood from a craft once the peasants' ceremonial art. Their modern textiles, unlike those of the peasants', however, are for utilitarian purposes.

APPLE, POTATO SHOW OPENS

Exhibits from 66 counties, representing more than 500 growers, were on display today in the opening of the second annual Tri-State Apple and Potato Show in the main auditorium of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event.

More than 50 cash awards besides prize ribbons are to be given for the best exhibits. A trophy will be awarded to the county with the best apple specimen.

A special meting of the Allegheny County Horticultural Association will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. Speakers will include Prof. Gilbert W. Peck, of Cornell University, judging apples at the show, and Prof. John Reuf, of State College.

Tomorrow hundreds of farmers are expected to participate in farm tours. During the afternoon "Stockman Sam," R. P. Griffith, announcer of reports over station KDKA, will meet visitors.

A junior potato judging contest will be held tomorrow and until noon Friday with many teams representing 4-H and Vo-Ag classes competing. An apple naming contest is open to all.

The show is being conducted under a special committee headed by Henry R. Eby, Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association director, chairman, and Frank Shaffer, manager of the chamber's commerce and natural resources division.

Camera Question Box

Today's question: Bowery policemen say that "speakeasies" are needed to keep the unemployed off the streets in the cold weather and to give them something to eat. What do you think about it?

Mr. Wach

NORMAN WACH, North Side, unemployed—I think the policemen are right. They are the best judges of their own districts. It is easy for me to see how this could be the case in such a crowded community.

Miss Gordon

MISS VIRGINIA GORDON, North Side—Yes, I think an establishment of this kind would relieve the crowds of cold and hungry men who are bound to be on the streets when there is nowhere else for them to go. A man could find shelter from the cold in such a place at a very reasonable price.

Mr. Sheppard.

A. SHEPPARD, North Side—I guess the above suggestion is all right. If the Bowery policemen say that such places are needed to aid the unemployment situation, then they must be needed.

Mr. Morusan

ISADORE MORUSAN, North Side, unemployed — This seems to me, to be a good reason for such a statement. In the cold weather such a place would offer a man a warm place to stay, besides a chance for something to eat, at little or no cost.

Miss McHugh

MISS ELINOR M'HUGH, North Side, student, High School—The men on the police force should have a good idea of the needs of the community. I believe that their suggestion is a good one. A man unemployed must have some place to go where he is welcome.

Rankin Man Injured Two Weeks Ago, Dies; Trio From Ambridge in Upset

Two men are dead today as the result of automobile accidents, one from injuries suffered when a car in which he was riding plunged down a 75-foot cliff on the Whittendale road, North Fayette Township, last night.

Patrick Mulligan, 60, of McDonald, said to have been driving the car on a learner's permit, died in Mercy Hospital this morning from his injuries. Jefferson Pettit, 60, also of McDonald, a passenger, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. He suffered a fractured left leg.

The other dead is Peter Hughes, 70, of Fleet street, Rankin, who succumbed today from injuries suffered October 14 when he was struck by a car driven by John Saboly, of Rankin. The latter was held in $1,000 bail for the inquest.

AMBRIDGE TRIO HURT

Robert Krawczyk, 45; his wife, Blanche, 40, and Mrs. Laura Kasper, all of Ambridge, are in St. Francis Hospital with probable skull fractures suffered today when their automobile, returning from a funeral in a Polish cemetery near Millvale, overturned to avoid collision with another car. John Krawczyk, 19, son of Robert, who was driving, and two small children in the car were unhurt.

Damage estimated at $2,000 resulted when Andrew Christian, 35, of the Arlington Apartments, Aiken and Center avenues, lost control of his automobile on the Bigelow boulevard late last night and crashed into two other cars, according to a police report. The first car damaged was that of the Rev. J. H. Gelbert, of St. Paul's Orphanage. The wreckage was thrown against the car of James Lovella, of 5 Reed street.

Police arrested Christian on a charge of violation of the automobile laws. They said they found a quart bottle of liquor in his car. At the police station he was examined by Dr. N. Ashinsky, a city physician, who pronounced him under the influence of liquor.

TRAIN HITS AUTO

Nathan J. Greenfield, of 716 Wylie avenue, and Nathan Gilb, of 811 Shaw avenue, both McKeesport, were injured when an automobile was struck by an express train of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at the Sinclair street crossing, McKeesport, yesterday. They were taken to their homes.

Search was being made today for a hit-and-run motorist who struck two men in Roberts Hollow, Elizabeth Township, yesterday. The victims, Walter Evans, 57, of Elizabeth Township, and Thomas Miller, 59, of Third street, Elizabeth, are in the McKeesport Hospital. Evans suffered a fractured skull and Miller internal injuries.

HURT IN COLLISION

A. N. McDonald, of 1914 Chislett street, suffered a fracture of the right ankle in a collision between two automobiles at Stanton avenue and North St. Clair street last night. He was taken to the Belvedere Hospital.

CRIME SCORE LAID TO PAIR

Springdale lockup, confessed to four holdups in the last two weeks, according to police.

Aker, with Miss Elizabeth Remaley, 24, a Blawnox school teacher, were driving slowly near Cheswick when the bandits crowded their car against Aker's. The battle between the two men and Aker followed, after one of the robbers broke the window of the car with a blackjack, striking Aker on the head.

CONTINUE SLAYER HUNT

Search for two Negroes who shot to death George Miller, 37, in the holdup of his grocery at 118 Eighth street, Braddock, Monday night, was being continued by Braddock police and county detectives today. Descriptions of the thugs who shot Miller after looting the cash register, were furnished by Ethel May Banks, 14, of 222 Eighth street, Braddock, who was in the store at the time.

Travel Talk Dwells On Passion Play

Showing scenes and personages around Oberammergau, the home of the Passion Play, E. M. Newman gave the third of his travel talks of the season in Carnegie Music Hall last night. Pictures showed the influx of tourists to attend the play, and characters in the play. Next week Newman will take his listeners to Switzerland.

BEER AND RUM SEIZED IN RAID

Fourteen cases of whisky and 300 pints of beer were reported seized in a raid on the second floor of a building at 1006 Webster avenue by prohibition agents.

Augustino Troiani, 37, arrested in the raid, denied that the contraband belonged to him, it was reported. Agents making a further search found several letters bearing the name of a Hill district resident believed to be the owner.

Walter Wise, 34, was arrested, agents said, after a 75-gallon still and 16 barrels of mash were found in his home on the Thompson Run road, Hampton Township.

SLEUTHS LEAVE TO RETURN PAIR

City Detectives Joseph Leith and James Swearingen today were en route to El Paso, Tex., for two men said to be wanted in Pittsburgh for the theft of an automobile September 2.

The pair, arrested in El Paso several days ago, at the request of Pittsburgh detectives, are William J. Walsh and Frank Ramell, detectives reported. They were alleged to have driven away in an automobile owned by an Anderson street cleaning establishment, where Walsh was employed. The prisoners are waiving extradition, police said.

Bullet Hurts Youth Examining Pistol

Daniel McCreery, 19, a Negro, of 2539 Elba street, a bus boy in a downtown department store, was shot in the finger of the right hand when a revolver which he was examining in a locker room of the store was discharged last night. He was treated at Passavant Hospital.

TRAINING TREND MEETING TOPIC

An inspection tour of the Westinghouse plant will feature the meeting of the relations department of the Pittsburgh Personnel Association at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in East Pittsburgh today.

C. S. Coler, manager of the educational department of the Westinghouse Company, will preside at the general meeting. Speakers for the afternoon are: W. G. Marshall, chairman of the board of the Personnel Association; J. M. Speer, director of industrial training committee; Prof. J. O. Keller, of Pennsylvania State College, and W. M. Dickson, employment manager of the Bell Telephone Company. These men will discuss trends of industrial training and its relation to industry. An informal dinner will be held in the the dining room of the plant.

J. W. Shaffer, of the employment department of the Westinghouse Company, will be the only speaker at the evening session.

3 HURT AS WALL COLLAPSES

Three laborers were injured today in the collapse of the front wall of the old Sherman House, Grant and Water streets, being torn down to make way for the widening of Grant street.

They are Tony Romcka, 48, of 13 South Eighteenth street, who was taken to Mercy Hospital, and Joe Tomoczaski, 1517 Edwards way, and Frank Franz, 30 Kreibs way, taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Fellow workers said an inside flight of steps was being torn down when the accident occurred.

Romcka suffered a fracture of the leg; the two others escaped with minor injuries.

which squares everything. No, the fifty grand goes to myself."

"Well, how can you use fifty grand after your—after your—your funeral?" Weems laughed apologetically.

"Not after," Goldie interrupted gently, "during."

"I get it; I get it," Weems said.

Gorio's Desire
Wants Coffin Plated With Solid Gold

"I want a coffin—" Goldie began.

"We all do, sooner or later," Weems interrupted with attempted pleasantry, but his face changed when he saw Goldie's seriousness.

"I want a coffin plated all over on the outside with solid 18-carat gold," Goldie went on, "with solid gold name-plate and handles and some little statues—like on the sides or somep'n about my life——"

"Giving away charity or something like that?" Weems suggested.

"No bunk this time, Gouge," Goldie went on. "Put a couple little machine guns, maybe, on it. No bunk. Then I want gold cloth upholstery inside."

"Why, man," Weems protested, "do you realize that'll cost you better than twenty-five grand?"

Goldie slowly tamped out the light of his cigaret.

"Okay," he said, "only make it so much better for forty grand."

"Man," Weems, almost breathless, managed to protest, "you're nuts. Throwing away forty thousand dollars! I won't do it. I won't be a party to any such insanity."

"I think you'll do it," Goldie murmured. I don't know whether I ever told you that those affidavits about your selling out in the Blake murder are in a safe deposit box, and a fellow I got off from the chair has the key, just in case your memory goes bad."

"I didn't say nothing," Weems said quickly. "It's your dough."

"Here's the key; then it's all set," Goldie said, clasping Weems' hand in a grip that made the lawyer wince.

"That leaves ten thousand," Weems remembered.

"That all goes for flowers," Goldie ordered. "That should make at least forty, fifty auto loads of flowers."

"How about me?" asked Weems.

"There's a one-grand note in your right-hand coat pocket," Goldie informed his guest.

SCHOOL URGED IN BRENTWOOD

Several hundred automobiles were in a parade through Brentwood streets last night, preceding a meeting held for the purpose of urging residents to vote for the $250,000 bond issue for a new senior-junior high school which will be submitted for approval at the election Tuesday.

The meeting was held in Brentwood Park. Speakers were E. C. Cottrell, Nelson Ducharme, John Seifert, Dr. D. W. Goodpastor, and Burgess Bernard Kestner. The Rev. S. C. Michelfelder, president of the Borough School Board, presided.

Man's Death Laid To Still's Fumes

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Oct. 29.—George Weber, 60, caretaker for the Big Travis hugnting lodge, was found dead by David Anderson, Sewickley, in Hanover Township, near Frankfort Springs. A coroner's report said Weber died from carbon monoxide poison, generated from gas burners under a still in his two-room shack.

FLOATS TO MARK BELLEVUE FETE

Two bands, two calliopes and floats will be in the line of the mummers' parade in Bellevue Friday night, which it is expected will eclipse previous Halloween celebrations in the North Boroughs.

Registration of participants is in progress at the office of C. J. DeBar, 524 Lincoln avenue. The parade will form at Lincoln and Home avenues, at 7:30 p. m. and proceed over the principal streets at 8 p. m., headed by Burgess W. F. Cooley and aides, police, firemen and members of the Bellevue Board of Trade under whose auspices the celebration will be held.

The judges' stand will be at the Borough Hall, where more than 100 prizes will be awarded. A costume dance in the Borough Hall will conclude the festivities.

JAIL CROWDING RELIEF O. K.'D

Immediate relief for the overcrowded conditions in the county jail has been provided by the County Commissioners.

The resolution of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern that $40,000 be provided at once to recondition the abandoned veterans' hospital at Parkview was passed without a dissenting vote at the commissioners' meeting yesterday.

Plans for the remodeling and reconditioning, drawn up by Stanley Roush, county architect, have been approved by the State Department of Welfare.

Fifty prisoners from the jail will be put at work cleaning, painting and other work. Practically all of the $40,000 will be spent to repair plumbing and for supplies.

The jail annex will accomodate 300 prisoners, all of whom will be vagrants and drunkards. It will be conducted on the rehabilitation plan in use in Philadelphia County.

'FAULTS' NOTED IN NEW BRIDGE

Faulty construction is blamed by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern for cracks in the new concrete Shade Run Bridge on the Allegheny River boulevard, which were visible to many officials who motored out to see for themselves. The concrete rails, apparently out of line, also drew attention.

McGovern brought attention to the bridge during yesterday's commissioners' meeting when Director Norman F. Brown, of the county public works, took exception to the word "blunder" when applied to the bridge.

McGovern declared:

"This $200,000 job is a blunder. It's somebody's mistake. It seems to me that the board should ask for somebody's resignation."

Director Brown angrily retorted:

"You have called this Allegheny River boulevard a blunder several times. You can use the word blunder all you please, but confine it to me, not to the department. It will be all over the papers again, that word 'blunder.' There hasn't been any."

CROWDS TOPIC AT 'Y' LECTURE

When the actions of crowds are analyzed they show all the systems of paranoia, Dr. Everett Dean Martin, sociologist and psychologist, declared in an address in the Y. M. and W. H. A. last night. He spoke on "The Psychology of the Crowd." The address was the first of a series to be given at the "Y" this winter.

The symptoms he gave are: Delusions of grandeur, of ego mania; homicidal wish, or hate, with righteous indignation and normal enthusiasm, and a delusional system, or ritual.

Machine Age Brings Love, Dell Says

Contrary to the general conception of what this, the machine age, has done, it is bringing back romantic love and the problem now is to train the instincts of young people and to keep those instincts healthy, Floyd Dell, author, poet, playwright and psychologist, told the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Dell harked back to the patriarchal age when children submitted to paternal authority, when marriages were always arranged for convenience by the parents, and a son had no future except by inheritance. Through the introduction of modern machinery more property has been created and wealth has become fluid, he went on to say in contrast. Parent-worship is no longer necessary; love, after having been sacrificed for centuries, is coming into its own and people are growing up to capacity for love; there is no social authority to keep two people together if they are not in love. Divorce, he declared, means that the two people are not sufficiently grown up to make a wise choice.

The meeting, which was held in the Y. M. and W. H. A., began the season for the section, and was opened with a prayer-reading by Mrs. Marcus Spiro. A group of soprano solos was contributed by Mrs. Bess English, with Miss Julia Katz at the piano.

SHORT FUR JACKETS TRAVEL WITH SMART WOOLEN FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Every Jill has her jacket and it is often of curly, crisp astrakan to match her woolen frock. This fashion of the frock with little fur jacket of jaunty design is one of the nicest fashions blown in by the sartorial breezes of autumn. It is nice for automobiling, travelling, walking and sports and should score a vast success with the younger generation, for such a jacket gives warmth without any undue bulk and heaviness. The little woolen frocks that dot the autumnal landscape are nicer than ever in their clean-cut tailored way. Clever details and touches eradicate any strictly tailored look that may linger on frocks of this type and make them fit for a luncheon engagement in even the most dressy of dressy places. If one is to be away from home for the best part of the day, an ensemble of this type will render better service than a more elaborate outfit. It is a plain fact that plain but well-cut clothes should form an important part of every busy woman's wardrobe.

THE NICE LITTLE autumn ensemble shown to the right is by Callot and consists of a dark brown woolen frock and a brown astrakan jacket of loose cut. To give animation to the frock, white satin ribbon is laced throught slits bordering the neckline and tied in a crisp little tailored bow. The stitching which heads the pleats of the skirt, starts above the belt on the lower part of the bodice. The jacket has a narrow shawl collar.

ARDANSE IS USING much chiffon velvet for the informal evening frocks and formal afternoon creations for which this house has won international renown. The model, a sketch of which is shown, is a particularly graceful and useful affair, as well as being a strikingly wearable evening gown.

* * *

THE BLACK VELVET of the frock is well set off by the trimming bordering the bodice which is of pink chiffon and black velvet roses embroidered in strass.

MAN TO OPPOSE TUCKER SOUGHT

Ward workers are seeking a candidate to oppose the election November 4 of Walter E. Tucker, Negro, who has been selected by the Republican committee to succeed the late Assemblyman Joseph C. Marcus, as nominee for one of the two members of the Legislature in the First District, which includes the First, Third and Fifth wards.

Marcus was buried Monday and Tucker was selected later as the nominee, as party rules prescribe, by officers of the Republican County Committee, Joseph G Armstrong, chairman; Mrs. Laura Hinnau, vice chairman, and William H. Ziefel, secretary. Mayor Charles H. Kline concurred in the choice.

Tucker, with 3,906 votes, ran third in a field of nine in the Republican primary May 20, the two winners being Marcus and J. R. Lynch. Theron B. Hamilton, Negro attorney, who polled 2,254 votes, was expected to be a contender. Hamilton today said he was satisfied with the slating of Tucker and would not be a candidate. Records of the Registration Commission show 4,672 whites and 2,735 Negroes are eligible to vote next Tuesday.

KHARTUM, Sudan, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Pilot Preston, flying a new airplane from here to Nairobi to rejoin Marshall Field III and his bride, crashed at Tali Post, wrecking the machine but escaping with minor injuries.

The Fields left England early in October for a honeymoon hunting big game. It was the second airplane accident on the trip.

Gen. Shannon, G.O.P. Candidate, Improves

COLUMBIA, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Gen. E. C. Shannon, candidate for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket, is believed to be on the road to recovery from critical illness resulting from an infection of his right hand. After reaching a peak of 102, his temperature began to fall, and last night was nearly normal.

M'GOVERN HITS 'Y' TAX BAN

The request of County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher for authority to exonerate taxes on the downtown Y. M. C. A., under the decision of Judge Ambrose B. Reid, aroused a discussion that deferred action on the request at the commissioners' meeting yesterday.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared:

"These semi-religious institutions that have gone into business should be subject to taxation, in my opinion, the same as the business men with whom they compete in the sale of food, lodging and merchandise. I think we should appeal this case to the higher courts."

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong declared he also believed the matter should be carried further than the local court decision.

Shock of Holdup Fatal to Aged Man

ROCHESTER, Ind., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Frightened by the holdup of a filling station here last night, Sherman White, 71, dropped dead. White was visiting his son-in-law Roy Hess, when three men held up the place. Hess obtained the license number of the robbers automobile, and P. R. Whitlow, 25, was arrested at his home in South Bend. He told police two gunmen forced him to drive them to Rochester.

Did your child have the Whooping Cough recently?

Whooping Cough requires your doctor's care. Follow his directions carefully. And, after the disease has run its course, remember that your child's strength is low. Months of hacking and discomfort have sapped his vitality.

A half-sick, run-down child is ill-equipped to face winter's dangers. Now is the time to build up health and vigor.

For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has proved its worth as a body builder, as a tonic for weak, run-down children, as an aid to healthy vigor.

It supplies in easily assimilated form the food elements that your child vitally needs and which are missing from so many modern diets. Pale, half-sick children pick right up. Colds become few and far between. Weight is added, strength returns.

Father John's Medicine is a combination of valuable ingredients, none of which could harm an infant. It contains no alcohol or drugs. Because of its scientific preparation it brings to your child all the benefits of cod liver oil in its finest form. It is rich in vitamins. Children thrive on it amazingly. And they love to take it, because it tastes good.

If your child has been sick recently, if it catches cold easily, if it is pale, listless or underweight, try Father John's Medicine. Over 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Countless mothers are never without it. All drug stores have it in stock.

ADD-A-LIGHT

for Beauty, Comfort, Convenience

IT'S surprising how much charm can be injected into a room by the addition of a well-chosen lamp or two . . . Commonplace living rooms take on new beauty when brightened by harmonious lamps; dainty boudoir lamps add life to bed rooms which might otherwise be woefully dull; floor lamps can "make" a cheerless corner.

For the living room, the hallway, the bedroom, there are modern lamps particularly fitting for every decorative scheme. Perhaps a Table Lamp, a Floor Lamp, a lamp for the Radio, or a Bed Lamp will add that necessary charm of decoration to enhance the complete coziness of your home.

YOUR DEPARTMENT STORE, FURNITURE STORE OR ELECTRIC DEALER selling table and floor lamps has a host of new and delightful designs ready for your selection.

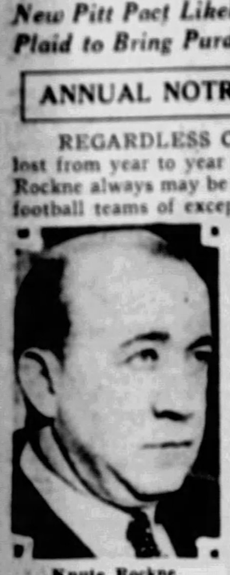
ANNUAL NOTRE GAME HERE INDICATED

REGARDLESS OF THE amount or quality of material lost from year to year by graduation, Notre Dame and Knute Rockne always may be depended upon to come right back with football teams of exceptional strength and color that will not be surpassed as drawing cards by any others in the gridiron world. Even though the major portion of the great 1930 machine will pass out before the arrival of another season, therefore—with Marchmont Schwartz, Joe Savoldi, Frank Carideo, Marty Brill, Tom Conley, Moon Mullins, Tom Kassis, Dick Donoghue, Frank Leahy, Paul O'Connor, John O'Brien, George Vik, John Carberry and Norman Herwit completing their college courses—other powerful elevens may be expected to follow and to be just as strongly in demand for feature places on the leading collegiate pigskin schedules.



Knute Rockne

With the most prominent schools in all parts of the country seeking annually to book games with the popular Irish, the fans of the Pittsburgh district are sitting pretty, for it is assured that they will be privileged to see Notre Dame in action annually here for a long stretch of time to come.

AS A MATTER of fact, it is strongly probable that the appearance of the Irish at The Stadium, meeting Pitt and Carnegie Tech in alternate seasons, will be a yearly fixture for an indefinite period. Even as matters stand now, there are actual contracts in force that guarantee the Rockne troops will play here in each of the next three years and in four of the next five.

Carnegie's contract for home-and-home games with Notre Dame is a six-year agreement that started this year and still has five years to run. Under the terms of this agreement, Notre Dame will meet the Plaid here next year, and again in 1933 and 1935, with the Tartans going to South Bend in 1932 and 1934. Pitt's contract with the Irish has two years more to go, with the Panthers appearing in South Bend next season and Notre Dame playing here in 1932.

IT IS ASSURED, therefore, that Notre Dame will play in Pittsburgh next year against Carnegie, in 1932 against Pitt, and in 1933 and 1935 against Carnegie. That much is definite, with more likely to be added.

For as relations between the institutions are most friendly, Pitt and Notre Dame in all probability will enter into a new contract starting in 1933 that will not only bring the Irish here in 1934, the only open spot in the next five years, but that will make home-and-home meetings of the Panthers and South Benders an annual fixture.

Clarence Overend

CLARENCE OVEREND, graduate manager of Carnegie Tech, has definitely scheduled next year's game between Notre Dame and the Tartans at The Stadium for Saturday, October 31, one week after the meeting of Pitt and the Irish in South Bend. The Plaid manager has scheduled another big attraction for next season. Purdue, annually one of the strongest members of the Big Ten Conference, and champion in 1929, will play the Skibos here on October 24, a week before the Scots' game with Notre Dame. This will be the first time Purdue has ever appeared in Pittsburgh. Only one other Western Conference team ever has played here, Ohio State having met Pitt at The Stadium last year.

CARNEGIE TECH will face New York U. at The Stadium next Saturday with a record of having been outscored this season by only three teams on the American college map. The Skibos are one of only four elevens that have piled up 200 or more points to date. The Steffen-Waddell forces have made 204 points in five games against 37 for their opponents.

Louisiana State still leads with a total of 256. Dartmouth is second with 232, and Colgate is third with 225. Clemson with 195 and Southern California with 191 are the highest among those teams that have not yet reached the 200 mark. Next to Fordham, the only team among the leaders that has not been scored on, Dartmouth has the best defensive record, the Green's opponents having registered only a safety for two points.

WHAT WOULD BE an outstanding intersectional battle in a winning year for the contending teams is the meeting of Princeton and Chicago, carded for next Saturday in Chicago. But it loses much of its color on this occasion because of the poor records of the elevens.

Jewel Ens

Not only have both Princeton and Chicago been defeated three times in succession, but their combined scoring efforts in those six games produced only seven points. Chicago has failed to score against Wisconsin, Florida and Mississippi in a row, while Princeton was blanked by Brown and the Navy and made one touchdown against Cornell.

THOUGH IT HAD become practically certain several days earlier that Jewel Ens would be retained as manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club for next year, official announcement yesterday of his re-appointment and signing for 1931 was none the less gratifying to his friends throughout Pirate territory. What Ens will be able to accomplish remains to be seen, of course, but there is no question that in all fairness he deserved another opportunity. The 1930 season could not be called a fair test, as his chances were ruined by illness and injuries that deprived him of the services of some of his most valuable players for extended periods. No manager could have been expected to do any better under the circumstances.

TAKE THE CASE of Lloyd Waner alone, for example. The younger of the Poison brothers did not break in, even to finish a game, until June 30, did not start one until July 11, and did not play a full game on the home grounds until July 30. All told, he took part in only 68 of the Pirates' 154 games during the season, and in only 59 of those 68 contests was he in the lineup at the beginning of play. In the others he played merely for a few innings at the finish.

Now note the difference: Of the 95 games in which Lloyd did not start, the Buccaneers won only 44 and lost 51, a percentage of .463. Of the 59 games in which he did start, the Ensmen won 36 and lost only 23, a percentage of .610. In other words, the club was 147 percentage points better when he was in than when he was out.

AND THE FULL importance of that .610 percentage, which the Pirates made while the little center-field star was able to start, is not realized until you glance at the final standing of the clubs for the season in the National League and observe that the Cardinals won the pennant with a mark 13 points lower, or only .597. The Cubs landed second with .584, the Giants third with .563, and the Robins fourth with .558. In short, the gait at which the Pirates traveled with the younger Waner in the starting lineup was good enough to have

West Virginia Gets Light Signal Drill

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The West Virginia University football team, with only Dotson and Sebulsky, of the regulars, in the backfield, required only five plays to score a touchdown yesterday afternoon against the freshmen. The reward offered by Coach Ira Rodgers for the showing was a light signal drill the remainder of the afternoon.

The remainder of the varsity scrimmaged with the freshmen for almost two hours, preparing for the game Saturday with Fordham in New York City. The team, which now is in good shape, will leave Morgantown tomorrow night.

JACKETS STAGE FIRST PRACTICE ROUND TODAY

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Under the direction of Teddy Oke, Toronto sportsman who sold the Niagara Falls franchise to Pittsburgh and who is to assist Roy D. Schooley and Charles Reed in supervising the training campaign, the Yellow Jackets, local entry in the International League, will don skates and start practice on Toronto ice today.

MUST OVERCOME DIFFICULTY

The attitude of United States immigration officials is responsible for the staging of the Jackets' first drill across the border. At the request of Schooley, local hockey pioneer and president of the Pitt Hockey Club, Inc., which owns and operates the International loop franchise here, the Jacket skaters were assembled in Toronto by Oke early this week. The original plan was to have the Jackets start reporting here yesterday, but immigration officials refused to permit the skaters to enter the United States until a hitch in arrangements is ironed out.

Other clubs have met and are meeting with difficulties similar to those now troubling the Jacket chiefs. In order that the unemployment situation may not be aggravated, no hockey player is permitted to enter the states until assurance is given that he will limit his toil here to hockey playing. It is probale that arrangements for the admittance of the Jackets will be concluded in time to permit their appearance here late this week, Schooley said today.

OPEN NOVEMBER 13

Until assurance is given that Pittsburgh's new puckmen will not be stopped at the border, practice sessions will be held in Toronto each day.

Schooley further announced that efforts to have the opening game here advanced from Thursday, November 13, to the evening of November 11, Armistice Day, had not met with the approval of league officials. Consequently, it is definitely settled that the Jackets and their London, Ont., rivals will lift the lid at Duquesne Garden on the evening of November 13.

Charles Reed, manager of the Niagara Falls Club last season, arrived here last night and held a conference with officials of the local club in the office of President Schooley today. Reed is to leave for Toronto tonight, and he will assist Oke in directing the Jackets' drills there. He will return to Pittsburgh for the season just as soon as the immigration

TOMORROW—THE FAMOUS FORGER.

PITT LEAVES FOR NEBRASKA TILT TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

In the first five minutes of the N. Y. U.-Fordham game in the Yankee Stadium, New York, last Saturday, a New York back fumbled and the ball was recovered by one of Fordham's young men. A touchdown resulted. The boys in the press box, suffering from astigmatism, no doubt, read the fumbling ball player's number wrong and charged young Jim Tanguay, a halfback, with the miscue. Tanguay's number is 44.

Jim Tanguay.

Another N. Y. U. player, Charley Marshall, who did the kicking for Chick Meehan's club last year and wore No. 44, was playin' an end and was back to punt. This year he is wearing No. 4, and it was Marshall, and not poor Mr. Tanguay, who booted the pigskin. But the boys in the scribes' seats, seeing the No. 4 on the player's back, and thinking quickly, as all good writers do, took for granted that it was No. 44 (Tanguay), and accordingly, reported it as such, with the result that the neighbors' children made uncomplimentary noises with their lips every time Mr. Tanguay passed by for a couple days, until the mistake was straightened out and the credit, or discredit, placed where it belonged.

My good friend, Mr. George Shiebler, who directs the publicity for the Violets, is in town and straightened me out on the play.

Now, Mr. Marshall, the well-known fumbler, will be playing against Tech here in the Stadium this week, and if you think he won't be in there trying to make up for his costly error of a week ago, you'd better think again. He'll be playing an end and will have plenty of chance to cause trouble for Carnegie's backfield and Carnegie's attack.

N. Y. U., by the way, will present a sweet pair of ends in Marshall and the well-known Jerry Nemecek. Nemecek was one of the best wings I watched in some 15,000 miles of traveling last year. He is now on the defense, a good pass receiver and clears the way well as an interferer.

SKIBOS SCRIMMAGE

Scrimmage was the order of the day at Carnegie yesterday, light scrimmage, with a heavy, rough drill being in store for the boys this afternoon. The Tartans went over a number of their plays, and then set to work trying to stop New York's formations, as reported by Al Irwin and Dutch (Yaller Cab) Zelt.

No important changes are anticipated in Tech's lineup. The forward wall likely will consist of

Sport Vignettes

Which would you set down as the better football team—the Notre Dame Four Horsemen outfit, of 1924, or the present Irish aggregation, which has just beaten Carnegie Tech and Pitt on successive Saturdays? . . . Perhaps no better authority on the subject could be found than Elmer Layden, coach of the Duquesne University gridders and fullback of the Four Horsemen, unless it be Coach Rockne of Notre Dame himself . . . Layden was asked yesterday to express an opinion as to the merits of the two teams, if he could do so without letting modesty enter into his answer . . . Without delay he picked the 1930 edition of the Irish . . . "The backfield this year is better than the Four Horsemen quartet," Layden said, "if for no other reason than that, along with its exceptional ability, it packs more weight at every position. Carideo is eight pounds heavier than Stuhldreher was at quarterback, and all of the other backs of this year outweigh their Four Horsemen predecessors by 40 pounds."

Elmer Layden

Continuing, Layden said: "When the Four Horsemen were roaming the gridirons, we frequently were compared with good Notre Dame teams of the past and many authorities pronounced our team the best of all time in South Bend history . . . By the same token, we now compare Rockne's best new teams with the team of that era, and take keen delight in seeing Rock turn them out better and better as the years roll on. Yes, I have no hesitancy in saying that this year's steam-roller eleven is better than the team we had in the happy Four Horsemen days."

The Emmett Rocco-George Panka fight at Motor Square Garden last Monday night drew the largest gate of the season there to date, grossing better than $5,200 . . . Despite the hard times almost everywhere else in the boxing realm, the Garden can't very well kick, for it has taken in more than $18,000 in the four shows held so far, with Tony Herrera boxing Joe Glick, Tom Heeney meeting Emmett Rocco, Buck McTiernan facing Bucky Lawless and Rocco battling Panka in the main bouts, and next week's Willie Davies-Archie Bell show promises to draw as well as any of those that have gone before . . . Meanwhile it's tough sledding for the smaller clubs in the district, all of which are closed down this week and only one of which, the Moose Temple, ran last week . . . . Incidentally, the Garden has rematched Herrera and Glick for November 17. Their first bout was called a draw, although Glick appeared to have the edge.

Just to keep the record straight and in answer to a few queries,

ENS NEEDS L. WANER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

"All I ask is that little fellow in centerfield and in good health and we'll be in the race."

Jewel Ens, manager of the Pirates, who yesterday signed a contract to lead the club again in the 1931 race, let fly with this ringing bit of optimism today as he dwelt upon the next campaign in the National League.

Ens, like his predecessor, Donie Bush, avers that Lloyd Waner is second to none in the sport in all-around worth and ability. The Pittsburgh skipper is convinced that many games were lost in centerfield while Brother Lloyd was missing last year. Just give Ens about 10 of those games and you will quickly realize that the Pirates would have been right up there with the Cardinals, Cubs, Giants and Robins.

Jewel appears to think that the several departments of the team, including the pitching division, will take care of themselves, but he is deeply concerned over the little gem of the pasture.

LLOYD NEEDS REST

Lloyd was in such bad shape when the season ended that he hurried to his Oklahoma home just as soon as he was allowed to get started. That was almost one month ago. The centerfielder said he wanted rest and lots of it, and that he would spend much of his time around his dad's farm. It was felt that the long rest period would do much to clear up the internal trouble which kept him in a weakened condition through all of last season.

"We should be O. K. every other way," said Ens. "Kremer, Brame, Swetonic, Spencer, French and Wood are all fine pitchers. I am not counting heavily on Meine, but he may help. French and Wood should both be big bets for next season. Larry was great in the battles in Cuba, and everybody was bearing down in these games. Wood is another brilliant south-

TWO GIANT OUTFIELDERS SOLD TO REDS

CINCY OBTAINS FITZGERALD, ROETTGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The New York Giants today announced the outright sale of Walter Roettger and Raymond Fitzgerald, outfielders, to the Cincinnati Reds. The price was not announced.

Roettger, traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Giants for Eddie Farrell and George Fisher last April, batted .279 for John McGraw. Playing in 121 games, Roettger made himself highly useful to the Giants, fielding well and banging out 15 two-baggers, five triples and five homers.

Fitzgerald, acquired by the Giants last fall, was farmed out to Bridgeport of the Eastern League during the past season.

Five Penn State Stars Are Injured

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The injury bugbear hit the Penn State football camp yesterday as five first string men showed up with injuries. After the mid-week scrimmage today, it will be decided whether the players will be able to start against Bucknell Saturday. The injured list included Capt. Diedrich, French, Shawley, Snyder and Edwards.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Because of the failure of Princeton supporters to remain in the stands after the Navy-Princeton game here last Saturday while the Midshipmen sang their alma mater song, the undergraduate council of Princeton University has sent a letter of explanation to Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy.

The letter expresses the council's regret at the failure of the Princeton stands to accord the Midshipmen the courtesy of remaining bareheaded while they sang. The council amplified its explanation in a statement in the Daily Princetonian.

Trinity Court Teams Lift Lid Tonight

Six Trinity Cathedral basketball teams will see action tonight when the court lid is lifted at the Sixth Avenue church, downtown. Beginning with an informal dinner for the 80 boys at that church who participate in the sport, under the direction of Secretary of Boys' Work T. Aubrey Davies, to be held at 5:45 p. m., a gala evening has been planned.

The Tritans play the Trimmers in a midget game, the Triads take on the Royals' Reserves in the second contest, and the Royals battle the Cathedral quint, which may play in the Institutional League this season.

BUCS RELEASE ENGLE TO FT. WORTH

Charley Engle, utility infielder of the Pittsburgh club this year, was released unconditionally yesterday to the Fort Worth club of the Texas League.

Charley Engle

Manager Ens was loath to see Engle leave in one sense, as the little infielder undoubtedly helped the Bucs in the early stages of the race, when Capt. Pie Traynor was hors de combat with a bad eye.

Engle's willingness made a big hit with the Pittsburgh officials, but the Memphis graduate) they felt, would hardly measure up as a major league regular, so he was passed along to the clever team which won the Texas League championship as well as the Dixie Series, involving Fort Worth and Memphis, of the Southern Association.

The Pirates recently recalled Infielder Stuart Clarke, of the Fort Worth team. It is likely that Engle will take the shortstop job vacated by Clarke at Fort Worth.

GOB MAY MEET STRIBLING IN GEORGIA

ATLANTA, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The Constitution says W. L. (Young) Stribling, heavyweight contender, has agreed to meet Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, here in January and that a guaranteed offer of $50,000 has been made to Sharkey by the Atlanta Baseball and Amusement Company.

The promoters already have booked a Stribling-Dekuh bout here on Armistice Day. Stribling, the Constitution says, has agreed to a percentage cut. The offer to Sharkey's manager was telegraphed last night. Stribling is in the East, preparing for a fight booked Friday in Boston.

NEWS TO BUCKLEY

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, last night denied receiving an offer for Sharkey to meet W. L. (Young) Stribling in Georgia.

"I think," Buckley said, "that Stribling is trying to get himself in good with the folks down home and suggested the offer. Stribling has an offer to meet Sharkey in New York for the Milk Fund and he can have the bout even now if he wants."

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—There will be no successor to Frank J. Bruen in the general management of Madison Square Garden.

Col. John Hammond, president of the corporation; John Chapman, boss bike man; Tom McArdle, Humbert Fugazy, Jimmy Johnston, Jeff Dickson, Walter St. Denis and many of the others who suddenly were jammed down into Bruen's vacant brogans immediately following the pleasant-spoken Bruen's retirement, will have to be yanked right up and out again.

William F. Carey repeated today that he, himself, as president of the corporation, would bear down a bit more and "cover" the job himself. Tom McArdle, present matchmaker, will have full charge of boxing.

PENN ELECTS GREENE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Charley Greene, of Forest Hills, N. DEMONSTRATE its superiority by This Test

LET your face be the judge of the superiority of the new Gem Micromatic Razor. Shave one side with your present razor. Shave the other side with the new Gem Micromatic Razor and Blade. If one week's comparison doesn't make you an enthusiastic booster for the Gem Micromatic, we'll refund your money.

SHAVE ONE SIDE WITH YOUR PRESENT RAZOR

SHAVE OTHER SIDE WITH NEW GEM MICROMATIC

A Revolution in Razors

Understand, this is not just a new model of an old razor. The Gem Micromatic is a brand new idea—a micromatic precision instrument—different and better than any other razor.

You twist the handle and an invisible control closes the razor. Automatically the blade moves into the correct shaving position and is locked there. No vibration!... Even the shaving angle is new. You rest the razor-head flat against your cheek and you're set for action. No guess-work or experimenting—it shaves perfectly... And think of this! The razor is all one piece—nothing to take apart—the easiest razor in the world to load, to clean, to use.

New Surgical Steel Blades

The new patented Gem Micromatic Blade, made of surgical steel, has a degree of keenness never before approached. The merest touch smooths your beard away completely. And each blade gives you many extra shaves. It is amazingly durable and holds its edge far longer than any other blade. This Gem Micromatic Blade fits all Gem Razors and makes them deliver vastly better shaves—but for best results, use the new blade in the new razor.

Magnificent Set for $1

Your dealer now has the new Gem Micromatic Razor Sets—the most magnificent razor outfits ever produced—built to five dollar specifications. This complete set with a richly gold plated razor and five Gem Micromatic Blades is priced just one dollar. Test it in comparison with any razor new or old. If you aren't convinced that the new Gem Micromatic is the finest razor you have ever used—your money will be refunded.

AMBRIDGE TACKLES BURNS IN NIGHT GAME

SMITH'S CLUB HAS CHANCE TO COP LEAD

By TOM BIRKS.

Pat Commorre and his black and white-clad Mystics from Ambridge will be the attraction this evening at Parnassus High School field, a conference game which means much to the Jimmy Smith's Burns outfit.

Should the Burns team cop this battle they will go into first place in the league standing, and that means much with the second half of the race well under way.

It is evident that Smith was keeping the club back at Akron, with this game in mind. The Ohio River club has the heaviest line in the loop and this may play havoc with the Burns backfield.

However, Jimmy Smith is counting on Halpate, Sharkey, Lutz and Dunn to score some touchdowns in tonight's battle.

Burns has a great test Sunday when the New Kensington troops go to Bridgeville to meet the Majestics.

Art Rooney was fully satisfied with the work of his line last Sunday against the Olympics, but the backfield will find Levy, former Quantico Marine, and all-star halfback last season on the local lots, in action for the first time. It is possible Sleepy Glenn may be here for the game. Art knows that it takes touchdowns to win ball games, and the green and white machine will have a backfield on Sunday capable of scoring touchdowns.

Burns also will be priming for that game, so the fans should see the greatest battle flashed on the local lots this season.

FORDHAM-IRISH GAME LOOMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh, coach of the Fordham football eleven, said today he would like to see Fordham and Notre Dame meet in a post-season game. Fordham has not been scored on this season.

"Rockne must have a pretty good team, but before you can convince me that the Irish are the best in the country, I'll have to see them beat Fordham," said the Fordham coach.

Cavanaugh suggested if both teams won all their remaining games he would like to see Notre Dame and Fordham meet for the national title honors.

"What if Rockne has the best attack in the country," said the "Iron Major" in comparing his unbeaten Rams with the Irish. "I have the best defense, and you'll have to show me that Knute's team can knock my line over. And my Fordham boys aren't so bad on attack, either, despite what the newspapers say."

officials lift the bars on the local skaters.

REED TO COACH

Reed originally was scheduled to come here as trainer, but at the conference today he so impressed local club officials with his knowledge of the ice sport that he promptly was elevated to the role of coach—and coach he will remain. Reed's fine record as a player in Canada's leading circuits speaks well for his experience, and Schooley is convinced that his sound ideas and fine judgment of plays and players will prove of value in the shaping of the local squad.

Gehrig, in Hospital, To Go Under Knife

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Lou Gehrig, first baseman of the New York Yankees, last night became a patient at St. Vincent's Hospital, where he will have several bones broken. Injuries suffered during the playing season did not heal properly, and bones in one finger and an elbow are to be broken and reset. Surgeons also will remove cysts from the lobe of the home run slugger's right ear.

ADAM'S APPLE BLOW BLAMED FOR KAYO

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

George Panka, the Homestead heavyweight, wasn't knocked out at all, at all, in the sixth round of his bout with Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, as most of us thought. No sir, he wasn't. Take the word of P. J. (Bunny) Buntach for that. Bunny is Panka's manager.

"What really happened to George," says Buntach, "was that he was struck on the Adam's apple in that close-range fighting along the ropes and went down strangling. That was why he rolled and twisted on the canvas. That groping with his gloved fist that everybody saw was his attempt to pull out his mouthpiece so he could get his breath.

MANAGER REVEALS CAUSE

"George tells me he knew all the time he was on the floor what was going on, but was in agony. He tried to catch the count, but was confused by the pounding of the gavel of the knockdown timekeeper, and, when he got up, he just barely failed to beat the count and was told the fight was over. As he came to his corner he was all right and could have continued the fight.

"George is ready to box Rocco again any time. And the same challenge goes for K. O. Christner, Jim Maloney or any of the other heavyweights in the limelight."

BOXER STRANGLES

Adam's apple punches have been heard of before, but this is the first time one has resulted in the sudden finish of a main bout around these parts. Panka was downcast over his defeat yesterday, and hurt to the quick by the implication of some of his friends and other spectators that they thought he could have beaten the count, but took the easy way out when he found himself on the floor. He insists he was not hurt other than that he was strangling, and says he got up as soon as he could. This may be regarded as an alibi in some quarters, but stranger things have happened in the ring.

Between Rounds

The fans are looking for one of the smartest battles ever staged in the Motor Square Garden ring when Willie Davies and Archie Bell clash there next Monday night. Both are master boxers and fast movers, and, while they do not hit hard, they score cleanly and furnish a lot of thrills. Jack Tracey, classy Negro middleweight, of Louisville, who has scored two quick knockouts since coming around here, boxes Jack Wilson, of the North Side, in the eight-round semi-final. U. S. Carpentier and Tiger Joe Clark are in the opening bout.

Jackie Murray and Hans Roberts will box the semi-final on the Johnny Smackey-Benny McArthurs card at Johnstown next Monday night.

The weekly boxing show carded at the Moose Temple Friday night, with Tom Maleo and Larry Madge billed for the main bout, has been postponed one week because of a hand infection suffered by Maleo.

Kid Chocolate and Fidel LaBarba meet in a return bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, next Monday night. The Keed drew down a decision over the former flyweight champion in 15 rounds there last year.

The canceled Jackie Fields-Paul Pirrone bout in Cleveland has been rescheduled for Thursday night of next week. Joey Goodman and Armand Santiago are in the semi-final.

Ray Collins boxes Johnny Burba at Bradford, Pa., and Sergt. Tommy Ryan meets Fay Ganshaw at Newark, O., tonight.

Entries close next Saturday night for the Western Pennsylvania amateur championship belt tournament to be held in McKeesport beginning Thursday night of next week.

Sunny Jim Williams and Georgie Nichols box the main bout of a show at Franklin, Pa., on the night of Armistice Day.

paw, and I expect to see him go a long distance."

Ens did not dwell at any length on the infield and outfield, but the latter speaks for itself. Jewel is fortunate in possessing a galaxy of ball hawks, the like of which is seldom matched.

The infield bears scrutiny. It might be added quickly that Ens has quite a case on a boy named Gus Suhr, who didn't do so well this season. George Grantham remains the leading candidate for second. Shortstop is the bone of contention.

The status of Dick Bartell remains beclouded. Provided Bartell is swapped, the situation may be acute. Nevertheless there will be four or five candidates for the position when the team gathers at Paso Robles.

The catching department needs strengthening, but it would not be surprising if a deal were made in this direction ere the winter passes.

Weirton to Play West View Sunday

The Weirton Merchants, of Weirton, W. Va., will be the attraction for the West View eleven on Sunday afternoon, it has been announced. The game will begin at 2:30.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 45.

The Athletics started the season of 1926 without any material changes with the exception that we had the usual number of rookies to try out at our training camp.

The trading season closes on June 15 and on the last day the Athletics figured in a three-cornered deal that involved the St. Louis and Boston clubs.

Connie Mack.

In the last analysis, we gave Outfielder Bing Miller to St. Louis and Pitchers Harriss and Heimach to Boston and received in return Pitcher Howard Ehmke, of the Boston club.

To fill the place of Miller, I promoted Walter French, one of my reserve outfielders, to Bing's post in right field. French is one of the few West Point cadets who ever made the major league grade in baseball.

At the Academy, he developed into one of the most spetcacular ground-gaining halfbacks the Army ever had. He was the outstanding hero of one of the Army-Navy football games and never will be forgotten by West Pointers.

French never had done much baseball playing in his boyhood days, and it was Hans Lobert, former National League star and coach of the West Point baseball squad, who developed him.

FRENCH FAST MAN

Lobert was attracted with his speed and French certainly was one of the fastest steppers who ever played for me. Had he played in the 90s, when speed was half the battle, he would have landed high in baseball, but he entered the majors in the day when the cry was for players of herculean build who could drive the ball out of the park.

As it was, he proved quite a useful man for us, not only as player, but as a coach and a pep-provoker on the bench. Officers in the United States Army are trained to have strong voices so that when they bark commands they can be heard.

French always had a po erful voice and under the training at West Point it became even more expansive. When he shouted you could hear him all over the park and he often troubled the opposing pitcher with his ironical comments that they would not fail to hear.

We were off to a bad start in 1926, but improved as the season wore on, although at no time were we a legitimate contender.

YANKEES CLEAN UP

This was a big Yankee year, when the bats of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig swept everything before them. They outdistanced all rivals until late in the season, when Cleveland put on a spurt and closed up a big gap.

Cleveland had a sporting chance for the pennant when the Athletics dropped in there late in September with only two more series to go. The Athletics won three out of four games from Cleveland and made the pennant certain for the Yanks.

We finished in third place, next to Cleveland, which was a bit of a setback, for we had been runner up to Washington in the previous season.

Nevertheless, I was satisfied. The bulwarks of my team still were young and would get better, and I felt that if I did a little tinkering with my infield I would be a contender again in 1927.

I realized that I had to strengthen my position at shortstop. Chick Galloway had been station there for a number of years, and, after a promising start, seemed to stop and advance no further. With the bat he also had decided limitations.

PICKS UP JOE BOLEY

It was up to me, therefore, to get a better fielding and batting shortstop. For several seasons I had the man in mind. He was John Bolenski, a young man from Mahoney City, Pa., who played with Baltimore under the name of Joe Boley.

Boley assisted his physical development by hard work in the coal mines that abound around his home. Two years earlier my scouts had recommended that I get him.

They reported that he was a rangy ground-coverer and a hard, timely hitter. They said that he was a wonder in handling ground balls that took a false bound.

He gave credit for his excellence on eccentric-bounding grounders to the fact that he had learned to play baseball on the uneven, rough diamonds of the coal regions, where nearly everything came to him on a false bound.

Whether this was the truth or a legend, he quickly proved that bad-hopping grounders had no terrors for him. When I first broached the matter to Jack Dunn for his release, his reply was:

"Boley is one player I never will sell."

STAR COSTS $65,000

Nevertheless, I was patient and kept after him and, finally, during that off-season, I bought Boley for delivery in the spring of 1927.

Again the coffers of Jack Dunn were loaded as a result of this sale. I am telling the facts for the first time when I say the Athletics club paid $65,000 in cold cash for Boley, no players being involved.

The original terms of the deal were $50,000 in cash and three players worth $5,000 each. I didn't send three players, but added $15,000 on to the $50,000 and that satisfied Dunn.

LAYDEN WORKS TO REPLACE KOVALCHECK

It must have been a long, long time ago that they started to call the huge North Dakota University team, which comes here against the Dukes on November 7, the Flickertails. For the flickertail is a very small animal belonging to the squirrel family or thereabouts, and the gridders of Coach C. A. West look more like mastodons.

One thing is certain, Elmer Layden's Night Riders will be certain they are not playing so harmless an animal as the flickertail when the big men from way out West arrive here after playing Army next Saturday afternoon at West Point.

Two North Central championships have been turned in by the North Dakota team during the last two seasons, and they are apparently on their way to a third. Knocking off the Davis and Elkins warriors as their first blow against the East was just a 16-0 warning on the part of the Flickertail outfit, it seems. The Senators from down yonder are nobody's setups and the Westerners trimmed them down the way the cowboys do in the movies.

With Kass Kovalcheck definitely out for the season, X-ray pictures showing a broken bone just above the ankle, the Dukes have a heavy drill schedule, and the task of rounding either Big Ben Pawlina or Val Trambly into shape to properly fill Kass' plunging duties at fullback, as their chief worries.

ED HIRSCHBERG NOT TO QUIT

Eddie Hirschberg, Pitt end, hasn't quit the Panther squad nor does he intend to.

Hirschberg was not out for practice yesterday afternoon as the Panthers assembled for their first drill following the defeat at the hands of Notre Dame Saturday. His non-appearance lent credence to the report that he had turned in his suit after the game and was through with the game.

"There is absolutely nothing to the report that I have turned in my suit and quit the squad," Hirschberg said. "I was not present at yesterday's practice, but it was due to a personal reason which I am sure will be settled between myself and the coaches and you can bet I'll be on hand today and hope to make the trip to Nebraska.

It was rumored that Hirschberg was dissatisfied because he was not used enough in the game against the Irish.

DETROIT MAYOR CALLS BIG TEN SELFISH GROUP

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Mayor Frank Murphy, militant chief executive of Detroit, yesterday delivered a scathing attack against Western Conference officials for their "apparent opposition" to a charity football game between the University of Detroit and the University of Michigan, the latter a member of the Big Ten.

The Mayor referred to them as "a selfish group of officials who sit and smugly vote 'No' without realizing the pathetic side of the appeals Detroit receives for food and clothing."

His statement was prompted, he said, by the conference refusal to allow the Northwestern-Notre Dame game to be transferred to Soldier Field, where thousands of dollars could have been obtained for the unemployed.

The young city head said that public sentiment would demand a showdown.

"The public has helped football. Now it is the time for football to lend a hand to the public," he insisted.

A charity game between the two large Michigan schools, he estimated, would bring upwards of $300,000.

Gov. Fred W. Green, of Michigan, indicated that he would petition the Big Ten officials to put aside all Conference rules to allow the football game.

University of Michigan officials declared they would play if the Conference rules were suspended. The University of Detroit stated that it would play Michigan on Thanksgiving Day, despite the fact that it has scheduled a game with Georgetown two days later.

Ripley CREATOR OF BELIEVE IT or NOT—PROVES IT

ACTION SHOT OF OLD GOLD'S LATEST TRIUMPH. The Midnight Golf Course back of the Roxy Theatre in New York, with Ripley at the scoreboard.

OLD GOLD WINS.. with Broadway's Midnight Golfers

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Creator of Believe It or Not

"In the past 3 years, I have served 'Believe It or Not' facts to more than 200 million people.

"And I've never printed a fact that I could not prove. If there was the slightest doubt about any of them . . . it went in the waste basket.

"When I accepted OLD GOLD'S challenge to make a series of cigarette taste-tests, they agreed in advance to publish results . . . win, lose or draw.

"Here are the results of my latest test. 237 Midnight Golfers on the course back of the Roxy Theatre in New York tested the 4 leading brands of cigarettes . . . OLD GOLD included . . . with brand names concealed. Each smoker picked the cigarette he or she liked best. Then . . . and not until then . . . off came the masks that concealed brand names.

"And OLD GOLD won hands down . . . fair and square as a die. As everybody knows, I prove my facts. So look below and you'll see an actual photograph of the scoreboard. Believe it or not, that was the final score . . . OLD GOLD 76% ahead of its nearest rival!"

"RIP" AND SCORER. Those broad grins prove it! OLD GOLDS are leading!

FINAL SCORE! OLD GOLD, 88; Brand X, 50; Brand Y, 50; Brand Z, 49. Total, 237. (Signed) J. S. M. Goodloe, Certified Public Accountant.

Pretty 13-year-old Lillian Snyder has just won the local high school junior diving championship. She resides in Mt. Washington and attends South Hills High School. Her father, Beggs Snyder, and his brother, Buck Snyder, were two of the best basketball players in league competition here for years.

Rosenzweig and Pete Flanagan at ends; Tank Highberger and Fletcher at the tackles; Captain Johnny Dreshar and Hooks Sample or Burzio at the guards and Alex Ducanis, the accomplished young man of Binghamton, N. Y., at center.

In the backfield, you may have your choice of two combinations, with McCurdy, Eyth, Slats Flanagan and Karcis or Goldberg, Armentrout, Ewing and Morbito.

Kavel is still very much on the hospital list, and while Johnny Graveno went well against Western Reserve, he still rates behind Armentrout and Eyth as the running halfback.

Graduate Manager Overend reported yesterday that the advance sale of seats for the game had picked up considerably yesterday, and a crowd of 40,000 will not come as a complete surprise. N. Y. U. with its military huddle and its colorful coach, Chick Meehan, draws well wherever it may perform. This game is the only one to be played by the Violets on a foreign field. Pittsburgh may consider itself honored.

Looking Up

Jock Sutherland and his corps of assistants, still telling each other all about the Notre Dame game last week, will put their noble Panthers through their last home drill of the week this afternoon, feed 'em, and then load them on one of Mr. Al Becker's crack rattlers, heading for Nebraska and another tough ball game.

The Panthers will pitter-patter about in Chicago all day tomorrow and pull out over the Burlington route for Omaha, there to remain until Saturday morning, when they will entrain for Lincoln and the affair of arms.

Pitt's drill yesterday, the first of the week, was a light one.

Long's Sport Comment

won the pennant if sustained through the full season. It is not to be asserted that Waner's presence regularly would have enabled the Rovers to play up to that figure for the entire campaign, but at least it is reasonable to believe that they would have landed somewhere among the first four.

That shows the difference that the loss of a single player of Lloyd's caliber can make in a club. At least 12 games were lost in center field while he was out. And that's not counting the loss of Pie Traynor for 24 games, with the half-blind state in which he played in many others, nor the long illness of Ervin Brave, Steve Swetonic, Heinie Meine and more. What the Pirates failed to do in 1930 certainly cannot be said to have been the fault of Ens. He is entitled to another chance if any pilot ever was.

Snapper Garrison

FOLLOWING CLOSELY THE death of Harry Payne Whitney, another world-famous turf figure of earlier days reached the finish line of life yesterday, when Edward H. (Snapper) Garrison died in a Brooklyn hospital at the age of 62. Garrison in his riding days, four decades ago and more, won a ranking that placed him among the greatest jockeys of all time. His all-around ability and knowledge of how to handle thoroughbreds have not been surpassed by any star of the saddle developed since that era. He weighed only 60 pounds when he rode his first race in 1884. He was a regular in the saddle at 16, and when only 19 he had a stable of his own and was riding his own horses, winning $62,000 in one season. In 1894, when he was 26, Garrison was the highest-salaried jockey in the business, receiving $23,500 for the season as contract rider for August Belmont, James B. Haggin and Gideon Knapp. A year later he wore the silks of Col. Jacob Ruppert, now owner of the New York Yankees.

GARRISON'S MOST FAMOUS race was the one in which he rode Boundless to victory in the World's Fair Derby at Chicago in 1893. He helped to delay the start for an hour and 42 minutes, standing with one foot on the inside rail in order to keep his weight off his horse, while the other jockeys and their horses became tired and impatient. Then he booted Boundless home to victory at 15 to 1 before 100,000 spectators. He was fined $1,000 and later gave his own fee of $1,000 to charity.

It was a feat by Snapper in 1886, when he came from behind on a rank outsider named Dutch Roller, owned by James R. Keene, to win the Great Eastern Handicap at Sheepshead Bay that led to the coining of the widely-used term, "Garrison finish," now applied to any contest in which victory is scored by a rally in the late stages. That finish was typical of Garrison in later years. He never liked front runners, and almost invariably held back his mounts to do their best in the homestretch, where, as he always said, the money was.

Notre Dame's eleven next fall plays Pitt at South Bend and Carnegie Tech at the Stadium here. After that, Pitt and the Irish will alternate in three more games, the 1932 and 1934 games being played here . . . . Pitt's big home game next fall will be with Army . . . . The Pitt-Carnegie Tech game, Saturday of next week, has all the trappings of a sellout, most of the choice seats having been disposed of already . . . . The fans are anxious to see which of the two local victims of Notre Dame is the better team . . . . On comparative scores against the Irish, Tech has the edge, but this dope may fly out of the window when the two ancient rivals get together.

Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, launches a heavyweight campaign against Johnny Risko at Detroit, Friday night of next week, which his manager, Jack Kearns, says will culminate in a match with Max Schmeling for the world title at Soldier Field, Chicago, next summer . . . . In fact, Kearns already is circulating elaborate literature advertising the bout, which he declares has been assured him by Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, who has named his price for the event, which has been guaranteed by Kearns . . . . What's all of this fuss about those star amateur boxers of Uniontown being suspended on professional charges by the A. A. U., when the local amateur mitt-wielders receive purchase orders on business houses instead of watches and medals for their efforts? Doesn't that make all of them at least semi-pros?—HARRY KECK.

Crude Petroleum Production, Although Restricted, Beats All Years But 1929

The production of crude petroleum throughout the United States during the first eight months of 1930 is compared with the output in the corresponding periods of the past nine years. Source: U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Like numerous other businesses, the oil industry went into over-production last year, increasing its output 14% in the first eight months over the same period of 1928. This year there has been better cooperation in restricting production, and therefore inventories generally have been reduced to a more normal basis. Although production so far this year is 8.2% under 1929, it is 4.7% over 1928 and well ahead of all other years.

Corporations Not Exemplary. Gloom Lifting.

By B. C. FORBES

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE, former editor of the New York World and a successful man of affairs—whose brother, Gerard Swope, is president of General Electric—writes:

B. C. Forbes

"I am wondering if your occasional strictures about big business and its failure to show initiative and courage are wholly sound. Isn't it possible that the overcaution is to be found lower down, among the smaller business men? Since one illustration is worth a hundred definitions, let me illustrate:

"Recently I needed some new tires for my Ford station wagon. The chief Ford dealer in the large and important North Shore village near which I live on Long Island had none of the better grade tires in stock. His wholesale distributor had only three. It took me one week to get those three, and I had to wait another week for the fourth. Ford cars and supplies are staple.

"From this, wouldn't you say the little fellow was rather more at fault than the big fellow? After all, the manufacturer has enough rubber and enough cotton to keep immediately available a full supply of tires. It is the retailer who won't stock up."

IN MY OPINION, some of our very large industrial corporations were the very worst offenders in slashing right and left when the stock panic struck the country. The nervousness flagrantly manifested by some executives of huge corporations was aggravated by their own stock market losses.

If President Hoover's committee had investigated the extent of the laying off of workers and salaried men, as well as the curtailment of sales forces and canceling of advertising contracts by large corporations, the facts, I think, would have brought not a little censure on the heads of our so-called business statesmen and would have disproved Mr. Swope's idea that "over-caution" was most pronounced among smaller business men.

INDUSTRIAL CORPORATIONS were among the first to do things calculated to precipitate grave depression. Utility companies have had the best record. Most railroads also refrained from immediately becoming panicky. They went ahead with their construction and important programs and also maintained their working forces until severe falling-off in traffic compelled them to reduce their payrolls.

Our very largest banking institutions have not come through this year's ordeal with flying colors. Public sentiment toward those controlling our greatest banks has become distinctly condemnatory, notwithstanding that, when the Wall Street panic was raging, New York bankers kept money rates low and acted most reasonably. Since then, however, the public have looked in vain for aggressive, constructive leadership from the men dominating the money supplies of the country.

NATURALLY, the wholesale slashing by corporations alarmed smaller business men and also the working classes of this country, and they began to pull in their horns. Manufacturers and merchants concentrated upon letting their stocks run down drastically, and workers, seeing how things were going, and noting how many of fellow-workers were being dismissed, stopped spending.

In face of the conduct of those higher up, how could those lower down be expected to remain undisturbed?

WHAT MR. SWOPE relates about the scarcity of tires is exactly in line with what has been repeatedly emphasized here, namely that supplies of merchandise of every kind have become so meager as to hurt sales. Complaints on this score pour into this column.

A friend who moved his home was told by the radio dealer from whom he had purchased his instrument that he could not send a man to install it because he had let all but one service man go and this man was swamped with work. So my friend proceeded to rig up his own antenna and do the whole job himself.

HAPPILY, the excessive pessimism which has gripped the country is at last beginning to pass. This important change in sentiment is being reflected not only in Wall Street but in an increasing number of other directions.

Those merchants and others who have carried cowardice to the extreme may have early occasion to regret their action. They may find that abundant supplies of merchandise are not stocked up waiting to be rushed to their shelves whenever they whistle.

ONE SUGGESTION: Why not make it possible for members of Christmas clubs to withdraw their money now so that Christmas buying may be done now when prices are low and stores uncrowded?

CAR LOADINGS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Revenue freight loadings for the week ending October 18 were reported today by the American Railway Association as having totaled 931,085 cars.

This was a decrease of 23,789 cars below the preceding week and 254,479 below the same week last year. Miscellaneous freight loading for the week aggregated 376,038 cars, a decrease of 110,953 under the same week last year.

Loading of merchandise in less than carload lots amounted to 238,185 cars, decrease, 33,624; coal, 159,727, decrease, 40,833; forest products, 39,032, decrease, 27,407; ore, 39,517, decrease, 23,161; coke, 8,490, decrease, 3,768; grain and grain products, 38,011, decrease, 8,358; livestock, 32,085, decrease, 6,435.

STEEL PROFITS TAKE DROP

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The United States Steel Corporation reported net profit for the quarter ended September 30, of $24,195,162, equal to $2.06 a common share, after all charges and taxes. This compares with $32,126,717, equal to $3.02 a share, in the preceding quarter, and $51,575,358, equal to $5.57, in the September quarter of 1929.

Nine months' net profits totaled $92,099,686, equal to $8.44 a share, against $147,586,640, equal to $15.82 a share, in the first nine months of 1929.

The net of $2.06 a share was up to the most optimistic estimates heard in Wall street lately. Forecasts of earnings had ranged from $1.75 to $2 a share.

Regular dividends of $1.75 a share were declared on the common and preferred stocks.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Under the shadow of stock market depression, grain values suffered an early setback today. Increasing complaints of rust damage to wheat crops in Argentina failed to act as a counterbalance. Chicago future deliveries of wheat opened 1/4 to 1/2c lower and afterward showed an additional downturn. Corn started unchanged to 3/8c off and subsequently underwent an all around decline.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Profit-taking and short selling cut into the curb market's recent gains today, but the decline served chiefly to contract the volume of trading and bear operators found it difficult to make much of an impression on the favorites.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

A. P. I. Oil Figures Increase for Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 7,450 barrels for the week ended October 25, totaling 2,378,200 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,785,050 barrels, an increase of 1,900 barrels.

Supply of Cotton Shows Good Gain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The world visible supply of all cotton on October 10 amounted to 7,200,000 bales, or 1,900,000 bales greater than at the same time last year, according to the Department of Agriculture. American cotton constituted 75.2 per cent of this, compared to 67.4 per cent last year.

WALL STREET HEARS

That International Telephone and Telegraph just about covered its dividend requirements in the third quarter.

That Woolworth may earn more this year than in 1929, owing to wide profit margins.

That there has been some selling by investment trusts of late, largely representing a readjustment of portfolios for the purpose of placing them in better positions to profit by the next advance.

STOCKS RECEDE IN SLUGGISH TRADING

Light Sales Make Shorts Cautious; Covering Move Starts Shares Upward

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(A.P.)—A further slump in steel mill production and in the movement of freight weighed heavily upon the stock market for a time today, but it began to bear its burdens more easily by early afternoon.

A score of prominent shares dropped 2 to 9 points during the morning, but the selling was in such small volume that shorts grew cautious and began to cover, inducing recoveries of a point or more from the lowest. Trading was sluggish.

Eastman Kodak dropped 9 points, then rallied 4. U. S. Steel sold off 3½, and rebounded more than a point. Allied Chemical lost 5, and recovered moderately. Among lightly traded issues, Radio preferred "B" dropped 6 points to a new low under 50, and Missouri Kansas preferred dropped 3 to a new minimum. Colorado Fuel dropped 4 points, reflecting the dividend reduction. Active shares losing 2 to 3 included American Telephone, Atchison, Westinghouse Electric, North American, Bethlehem, United Aircraft and American Radiator.

EASTMAN WEAK

The weakness in Eastman, on top of an 8-point drop yesterday, was a little unsettling, but rumors of wage cutting and laying off of employes were promptly denied. The corporation had more employes on its payroll in September than a year ago. Earnings are reported but once a year, and officials are chary of making any preliminary estimates. It is pointed out, however, that the company should benefit from the low prices for silver, of which it is a large user. Conservative brokers were inclined to attribute the decline in the stock to the fact that it had been selling at a rather high earnings ratio, on the basis of last year's returns.

Failure of United States Steel to declare an extra dividend as it did a year ago was a disappointment to the ultra-hopeful and may have contributed to the selling, although quarters usually well informed had not looked for such action. The corporation's September quarter earnings of $2.06 a share included a $2,412,857 tax refund apportionment, without which earnings were only $1.78 a share, or only 3 cents over the regular quarterly dividend requirements.

Among the so-called independent steels, Youngstown Sheet and Tube reported third quarter net of $1.25 a share, just covering the quarterly dividend. Bethlehem Steel will make its quarterly report tomorrow, and Wall street estimates indicate earnings of only about half the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share will be shown, although it is understood the regular payment will be ordered. Colorado Fuel and Iron cut its quarterly payment from 50 to 25 cents.

STEEL OUTPUT CUT

The weekly steel trade reviews indicated another drop in steel mill production, reducing output to about 50 per cent of capacity, the lowest since the midyear shutdowns for inventories. The late weeks of the year, however, are normally quiet.

A sharp increase after January 1 has been the regular thing, and is altogether probable, irrespective of general prospects for the year, American Metal Market said.

Freight car loadings for the week ended October 18, showed a drop of 23,789 cars from the previous week, a decline larger than normal for that period. The total was about 20 per cent under both 1929 and 1928, and the lowest since 1919.

The weekly petroleum statistics showed moderate gains in crude production and gasoline stocks, despite the widespread price reductions.

Department Store Sales Show Drop

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—September sales of reporting department stores in the New York district decreased 3.6 per cent from figures for the like month last year. However, as there was one more selling day in September this year, the daily average sales showed a decline of nearly 8 per cent. The report of the federal reserve agent showed stocks of merchandise an hand somewhat smaller than a year ago.

G. M. to Manufacture Domestic Equipment

DAYTON, Oct. 29.—Reports here say that General Motors Corporation is planning to enter the household electrical equipment industry and will manufacture electric irons, curlers, vacuum cleaners, toasters, heaters and other products at its Delco Light plants at Rochester, N. Y. It is understood the new lines are now in process of preparation, and that quantity production will not be long delayed.

"Bucketing" Broker Gets $200,000 Fine

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—(A.P.)—A $200,000 fine was imposed today upon I. W. C. Solloway, of the defunct brokerage firm of Solloway, Mills & Co., after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of "bucketing" in stocks. Harvey Mills, his partner, was fined $50,000.

Additional charges of conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks and of defrauding their clients were not prosecuted.

STEEL DEMAND SLUGGISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

With further declines reported in scrap prices and in ingot output, the immediate outlook in the iron and steel industry lacks promise. Reductions in old material prices have been general, affecting virtually all items listed, with heavy melting scrap, the key grade, off $1 a ton at Philadelphia, 50c at Detroit and 25c at Pittsburgh and St. Louis. The Iron Age composite price for heavy melting steel, at $12.25 a gross ton, is at the lowest level since 1921.

Steel ingot production, reflecting seasonal contraction in tin plate and pipe output and the absence of expected autumnal improvement in other lines, has receded to 50 per cent of capacity, compared with 53 per cent a week ago. But with structural steel demand holding up fairly well and with a moderate amount of railroad business developing, it is possible that the present rate of operations will prove the lowest for 1930, barring year end curtailment.

BEEK EQUIPMENT ORDERS

Producers of rails are being given considerable latitude in scheduling rollings and consequently will be in a position to use rail commitments to stabilize their raw steel output.

To obtain further tonnage to offset losses in business from other directions steel producers are pressing the railroads to place orders for cars and locomotives. It is said that such buying can be stimulated if arrangements can be made a finance contracts to their full amount. Normally, equipment trust certificates cover only 80 per cent of the purchase price, the remaining 20 per cent being paid in cash.

The Virginian Railway will rebuild 500 to 600 coal cars, requiring 6,000 tons of steel, while the 2,000 cars being constructed by the Baltimore and Ohio will call for 15,000 tons.

STRUCTURAL WORK GAINS

New structural steel projects, at 83,000 tons, are the largest since the first week of September. Awards are considerably above average, totaling 40,000 tons compared with 48,000 tons a week ago. Iron and steel prices are still sensitive, although demand is exceedingly sluggish. Pig iron shipments, which showed signs of expanding earlier in the month, are again falling off. Orders for finished steel are of the hand to mouth variety. Actual changes in steel prices during the week are few.

Among the few outlets for iron and steel that are showing seasonal improvement are the radio, washing machine and stove industries. Two eastern radio makers have stepped up output to 7,500 and 6,500 sets a day, respectively, while a third continues to make 2,000 sets.

The Iron Age composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.135 cents a pound, and $16.29 a ton, respectively.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Witness

"Now Miss Adams, isn't it a fact you were deeply in love with the murdered man?"

I was engaged to marry him," Marjorie Adams answered, without hesitancy, although her cheeks reddened and there was a glint in her dark eyes that hinted mingled stubbornness and anger.

"Would you marry a man you did not love?"

"I do not know. It has been done."

"No evasiveness, please, Miss Adams—direct replies, if you please. Is it not a fact that you loved John Halden?"

"It is—"

"Ah!" Wesson exclaimed, with satisfaction.

"—not," Miss Adams finished.

Most of the jury members smiled.

Wesson wasn't so very slow. He saw a chance to turn this to his benefit.

"You had ceased to love John Halden, is that it?"

"Our engagement had been broken."

The District Attorney paused, ostensibly to study some of his notes. In reality he was trying to figure some way to trap Miss Marjorie Adams. He believed she was either directly guilty of the fatal shooting of John Halden or at least an accessory in the crime.

To convict Marjorie Adams would mean a great deal to Wesson politically, and nothing else mattered to him except politics. He was already tentatively slated for State Attorney and beyond that, in his visions, was the Governor's chair. To convict Miss Adams would enable him to campaign to the effect that wealth and position meant nothing to him—that his chief aim was justice and a square deal.

Engagement Broken

Miss Adams represented the topmost place, socially, in the city. Her family had been aristocrats and social leaders for many generations. More than that, Marjorie had inherited a great many millions.

The shooting of John Halden had taken place on Maple street, almost opposite to the servants' gate and path to the Adams mansion, which fronted Washington boulevard. More than that, there were several people who claimed to have either seen the shooting or heard the shot, and all agreed that Miss Adams was quite near when the murder was done.

District Attorney Wesson turned back to his witness.

"Did you break the engagement or did the unfortunate John Halden break it?" Wesson asked loudly.

"I broke it."

"Why did you break the engagement?"

"Because I had changed my mind about marrying him."

"Where were you when John Halden was murdered?"

"I answered that question once before."

"Not to me. Answer, please!"

"I was on Maple street, in one of my cars."

"Alone?"

Tells of Shooting

"One of my chauffeurs was driving."

"Which one?"

"I call him Simms. I suppose that was his name."

"Did you see the shot fired?"

"Not quite."

"Not quite? Either you did or you didn't see the shot fired, Miss Adams. Explain what you mean by 'not quite'."

"I saw Mr. Halden on the sidewalk—I merely glanced at him. If he saw me I was not aware of it. Then I heard a shot and turned to see what it was. I saw Mr. Halden fall to the sidewalk. He seemed to be trying to get to his feet. And I saw a man hurrying away. He went south on Maple street. I had not seen him before. He might have come from some yard or been behind a tree. He might have been walking along. I doubt if I would have noticed. I did not recognize him. He wasn't running, but walking briskly, and, without looking back, he turned into Cherry street."

"What did you do, Miss Adams?"

"I told Simms to drive on."

"And leave John Halden, the man you once loved, the man you once promised to marry—you left him dying on the street?"

"Three men came running up at this time, two from the Parker residence and a man I did not recognize. When I saw Mr. Parker and his son, I knew they would do all that I could do."

"Were you pleased?"

Marjorie Adams stared a moment at Wesson. He repeated his question.

"I didn't cheer," she said, coldly. "In fact, I was shocked and somewhat puzzled, but I ordered Simms to drive on because I did not wish to be bothered as a witness."

"Oh, you didn't cheer," Wesson said, with sarcasm. He glanced at the jurors and felt inwardly disturbed. They seemed to be in sympathy with Miss Adams. A skilled jury lawyer can almost always sense these things.

"If you didn't cheer, perhaps you wept?"

"I felt ill from the effects of what I had seen, and I felt even more ill and shocked when, after I had been home a while, I was told Mr. Halden died soon after being brought to the hospital."

"That is all," Wesson said.

He stared at her scornfully as she stepped down from the witness box, a bit of acting for which Wesson was famous.

James Simms was pat on the stand.

He had heard the shot. He slowed up instantly and stopped the car within a few feet, as he was driving very slowly then, getting ready to turn into the Adams estate driveway. He said he saw a man walking away very fast. He saw no woman. He saw the two Parkers and a third man running up to the man on the sidewalk. Miss Adams finally ordered him to drive on, which he did.

Wesson took the witness then.

"Isn't it true that you depend for your bread and butter on Miss Adams?" Wesson asked.

"No, sir."

Thanks Marjorie

"Do you work for her for nothing?"

"My wages were $60 a week."

"And that is big money in these hard times, Simms. You know it, I suppose, and your testimony—"

"You saw things exactly as your generous employer saw them, then, Simms?"

"I don't work for her now—I left her a week ago."

"What! Why?" Wesson was upset at this.

"She discharged me. I—I had been drinking and failed to be on duty for three days," Simms said, in a shamefaced manner.

Of course the case fell through. Wesson was well roasted in the newspapers for ever bringing such a serious charge against Miss Adams on such slight grounds.

It was a week later that Simms called on Marjorie one night.

"I don't know how I can ever thank you, Simms," Marjorie said, "for telling me how Halden ruined your sister by means of a mock marriage——"

"My God — excuse me, Miss Adams," Simms was on the verge of tears. "It's me and my sister that owes you everything. I never suspected she'd come on here and shoot him—and look at the way you've been hiding her——"

He choked and wiped his eyes.

Marjorie pressed a button. A pale little woman in black came out and kissed Marjorie's hand, and then Marjorie embraced and kissed her.

"Your brother will take you out West, my dear, and you can start all over again," she said.

She heard the car going down the gravel driveway.

It was a very pleasant sound to her.

By Tuthill

WHAT'S ALL THE EXCITEMENT BETWEEN YOU AND DAD? I HEARD SOMETHING ABOUT A TELEGRAM.
FROM PONTOON BUNGLE. HE OBJECTS TO MONTGOMERY. AND WHEN YOUR BRILLIANT FATHER READ IT HE GOT THE SAME SICKLY-GREEN COLOR HE DOES WHEN HE GETS A LETTER FROM THE INCOME TAX OFFICE.
SACRED COW! WHY SHOULD PONTOON OBJECT TO—?
SIMPLY BECAUSE THOSE BUNGLES, WHO ARE SO DELIRIOUS ABOUT INHERITING MONEY, HAVE KNUCKLED DOWN TO THAT MAN UNTIL HE CONSIDERS HIMSELF A SORT OF FAMILY TRAFFIC COP.
WELL OF COURSE HIS OPINION MEANS NOTHING TO US.
NO? HA, YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN YOUR FATHER WHEN HE GOT THE TELEGRAM. IF PONTOON SAID HE WAS GOING TO FLY TO THE MOON YOUR FATHER WOULD BE RUNNING AROUND TOWN RIGHT NOW TRYING TO BUY A PAIR OF SECOND-HAND WINGS.
WHERE'S DAD NOW?
DOWN AT THE DEPOT WITH HIS FACE PRESSED AGAINST A GATE, I SUPPOSE, WATCHING FOR PONTOON'S TRAIN TO ARRIVE. HE'D HAVE A BIG BRASS BAND WITH HIM TOO IF HE WASN'T AFRAID IT WOULD ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF OTHER BUNGLES WHO WOULD ACT MORE EXCITED THAN YOUR FATHER IN WELCOMING PONTOON.

Hints for the Busy Hostess

Note—Revival of Backgammon prompts us to publish directions for other Gay Ninety parlor entertainments. The busy hostess should clip the rules for playing "A Trip to Niagara," which are faithfully reproduced as follows:

The parlor is first made to look like a train by arranging the chairs in couples. A young man of vivacity and popularity is selected to act as conductor. When the guests are seated we start from the railway station. When the time arrives to begin the entertainment a shout of "All Aboard" is heard, and the conductor states that the next stop will be Trenton, which will afford a topic for a little historic talk of Washington's Crossing the Delaware. Pictures of the subject and a picture of Washington could be shown.

When the talk has occupied a few minutes, the passengers are informed that a short stop will be necessary to connect trains. At this point boys and girls could go through the train, with peanuts, fruit, picture books, etc., for sale. The next stop would be Tarrytown. Here lemonade and pretzels could be handed round. Then on to New York. A short talk on the sights of the city here, and the passengers are informed that a limited time will be allowed for shopping.

A table with fancy work for sale could bring in some extra money at this time.

Buffalo is now reached, when the talk could be of the Pan-American Exposition. Views shown, if practicable, and mention made of the assassination of President McKinley. From here the talk should be of the beauties of Niagara. Passengers can be warned of danger points. An old-time song, entitled "Niagara Falls" could be sung. On the return trip no stops are allowed, the passengers are entertained by a program of recitations, which can be concluded by the conductor to request the passengers to join in singing "Home, Sweet Home."

American Railway Association has engaged experts "to revolutionize the atmosphere of trains so passengers will get the impression they are remaining at home while traveling."

It's a great idea — make more passengers get up in the middle of the night and stoke the engine.

Why not attach flat cars, with lawns to cut, during the summer?

It might be pleasanter if the American Railway Association undertook to change the atmosphere of the American home.

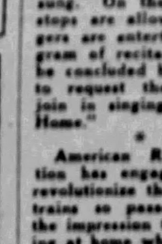
TODAY'S NEWS PICTURE



Refusing because of fundamental honesty to run for Congress as a dry on a wet platform, or as a wet on a dry platform, candidate J. Windermar McCackle has announced that, instead of quibbling as to where he stands on the issue, he will let the voters guess.

Another of the graver problems that must be faced by the men of today is whether it's more comfortable to need a shave than to need a breakfast.

Chance to Pay Expenses

"Another good way to spend your spare time," says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "is making a mental list of the hundred best books to take to a desert island."

And if all committees were placed end to end there'd be nobody left to laugh.

Information for Voters

The Civic Club of Allegheny County Has Rendered a Valuable Service in Its Bulletin.

The Voters' Information Service Committee of the Civic Club of Allegheny County is entitled to congratulations on the first of its bulletins, in which it presents terse biographical sketches of the Republican and Democratic candidates for United States Senator, Governor and other state offices.

The spirit in which the work has been done is commendable. The bulletin is non-partisan to the point of being colorless, and no recommendations are made except that people vote.

Civic Club members are urged by the committee to discuss politics—"not party politics or candidate politics and certainly not job politics, but Commonwealth politics." The bulletin continues:

"That is to say, let us at every convenient, and even inconvenient occasion, among our family, friends, neighbors and acquaintances, raise the question as to what governmental policies will produce the greatest amount of well-being for the greatest number of Pennsylvanians."

Every Civic Club member is also asked to make himself responsible for one vote (of a citizen previously ballot box shy) besides his own.

If the spirit shown by the committee should be contagious, there would be little reason to feel apprehensive about the outcome of our elections.

Praiseworthy Alacrity

The Mayor and Council Are to Be Commended for Their Promptness in Dealing With Unemployment.

It is a pleasure to note the alacrity with which Mayor Charles H. Kline, the City Council and the various departments of the administration are moving to relieve the unemployment situation.

No delays are being tolerated, it appears, except those required by law, such as the five-day interval between the advertising for bids for the supplying of relief materials and the opening of the bids. And even that delay is being partially avoided through emergency arrangements.

The administration is to be commended not only for the promptness with which it has prepared to distribute the food and clothing for which the $100,000 appropriation was made, but also for the way in which plans for the Carnegie Lake swimming pool and other projects that are to provide work for the jobless are being rushed.

Halloween Pranks

Prudent Motorists Will Not Let Their Cars Stand On the Streets Unguarded Friday Night.

The police have issued the customary warning against unlawful Halloween pranks.

There is one particularly malicious prank that has come into vogue in recent years—and that is the puncturing of automobile tires by mischievous boys.

This causes such inconvenience, not to mention the expense of having the puncture repaired, that those guilty of it, if detected, should be arrested.

All tampering with automobiles, even if it amounts to no more than the drawing of lines on the windows with soap—a favorite stunt—should be forbidden.

Notwithstanding the good intentions of the police, many cars are damaged or defaced in the Halloween season. Prudent autoists will not let their machines stand unguarded on residential streets on Friday night, if they can avoid it.

The Weasel's Courage

It Is an Undesirable Citizen, but You Must Admire It for Its Fearlessness.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania announces it has paid a reward of $1 for the death of a particularly bad weasel. It was shot by Glenn Carson, of Bowmandale, just after it had killed a cat. The reward, of course, was the bounty paid for the killing of any weasel.

It is exceptional for a weasel to attack a cat. Yet there was a case a few years ago in which a Pennsylvania farmer heard a little pig squealing and, running to its rescue, found a weasel hanging to its throat with bulldog tenacity. A weasel will get into a chicken coop and kill a score of fowls. It is the terror of rabbits. And it is no bigger than a red squirrel.

The murderous weasel is an undesirable citizen. The very name "weasel" suggests something detestable.

But you must give the animal credit for indomitable courage and inexhaustible energy. There is nothing furtive or sneaky about it. It wins through sheer bravery. Inch for inch, and ounce for ounce, it is probably our most courageous mammal.

Thrift Clocks

Won't Work Without Pay.

French thrift has recently been exemplified by a new invention—the savings bank clock. As an ingenious method of teaching the value of money to children or others, it seems hard to beat.

The clock winds itself automatically once a day, provided you put a franc in the slot. You cannot wind it yourself. Thus you have your choice of saving a franc a day or not knowing the time.

Some American firm might put that on the market here. It would be a good thing to have in every American family. We are a wasteful people, and throw away more in a day than the French do in a year. A nickel or a dime is too small for most of us to think about. But a nickel or a dime a day, put in a bank every month, soon runs into real money.

The thrift clock, by all means. It is the only kind it pays you to watch.

The Yellow Streak

By Nelson Harding

The reckless speed, the cruel blow—
It happens almost every day.
Then callousness and cowardice—

No stop to give the victim aid,
But safety in flight to seek.
The hit-run driver's trail of dust
May well be called a "yellow streak."

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Pleasant Stranger

The best profession in the world is being an affable stranger.

Friends, relatives, good advice and caution all finish with the Shamrock V when an affable stranger drives up with his store clothes and city ways.

A pleasant smile, an ingratiating aroma, lapels that you could sharpen pencils on and a yard of conversation that would talk the lid off an iron kettle.

He grabs your money and your future. The next time you hear from him he is just a ghost with television.

The most affable of all the suave tourists is the broker who just folded his tent and looped for the icy north with $12,000,000.

That money belonged to the public and he was a man of the people. How can a man like that dip his toast is so much gravy when the driver of an ash cart must be bonded?

The answer is that we make it tough to be honest. If you want to be a bricklayer you must belong to a union. If you want to wash dishes you must have three references. If you want to be a letter carrier you have to pass the civil service.

A man can wash windows for a living and never steal a window all his life. There is no record of any zoo employe ever embezzling a lion or an elephant. Railroad engineers always bring the engine back to the roundhouse.

They live lives as straight as a frozen clothes line. But if they tried to borrow $10 the twittering of the police whistles would drown out the roar of Niagara.

Along comes an affable enigma with trousers creased and a gardenia over his left ear. The public rushes to him like sopranos to a microphone.

They stake him to their mortgages, their budgets, their plunder, their guaranteed increments and their interwoven savings. All because his office desk has a glass top and the wainscoting is mahogany, the stenographer is beautiful and there is a wall motto that says honesty is the best policy if you can prove it. They don't know that the motto is riveted to the wall to prevent the boss from stealing it.

It's the voice with the smile that laughs last. When the time arrives to check up the pro rata profits the affable stranger is still affable but more of a stranger than ever.

You wouldn't take your Christmas club savings and give it to the first man with white whiskers who said he was Santa Claus.

THE SOUTH POLAR REGIONS

By Archibald Henderson

A general popular revision of views regarding the South Polar regions is indicated as one of the certain results of the Byrd expedition. Stefansson has repeatedly pointed out the grossly erroneous notions entertained by the public regarding Alaska. Byrd, in like fashion, is re-orientating our views regarding the nature of the vast, ice-locked regions in the neighborhood of the South Pole. Even after long study of the literature dealing with the subject, before setting out on the expedition, he confesses to a sensation little short of astonishment over what he found there.

In one vital respect—geological formation—the North and South Polar regions differ fundamentally. Imagine some giant hand at the North Pole depressing the surface until it was 10,000 feet below the level of the ocean. Thus at the North Pole there is a huge depression, which contains the Arctic Ocean, with its giant floes, ice-packs, and icebergs.

Imagine that when this vast depression was made at the North Pole, a corresponding bulging out took place at the South Pole. The height of the Antarctic plateau is virtually the same as the depth of the Arctic Ocean. Whether this is a curious accident, or the result of vast forces of nature which we do not understand, further geographical and oceanographical studies alone can determine.

The polar regions are easy to cover and to navigate, comparatively speaking, if we put them in juxtaposition with the mighty plateau and towering mountain ranges of Antarctica. It is possible to get back to civilization, if marooned on the ice at the north—although it may require almost superhuman efforts. There is much wild life roaming freely over the area, which will serve as food. Musk ox, Arctic bear and fox, birds, seals and fish are to be found in abundance sufficient to sustain life.

The reverse of these moderately favorable conditions encounters the explorer in the Antarctic. Here there is no free roaming game of large proportions, like the musk ox, bear and fox. There are only seals, birds and fish—but these are found only at or near the shore line. In the interior there is no wild life whatever, except perhaps some solitary bird following a trackless way to some unknown destination. When the exploring party sets forth into the interior, it must carry every pound of food it expects to require on the journey.

In this bleak region, the winds are constantly blowing—at some places with an average velocity of as high as 50 miles an hour. The vast area, as large as the United States and Mexico combined, was apparently not designed to sustain life, or provide a domicile for the human race.

There is no race analgous to the Eskimo dwelling in this ice-locked empire. The mountains rise sharp, bleak and forbidding from the continental plateau, enormously impressive in their cold beauty and terrifying magnificence.

One of the many features of Antarctica, and perhaps the one most deserving of study, is the mighty sheet of ice and snow, known as the Ross Barrier. It was estimated that Capt. McKinley photographed 80,000 miles of it during the stay of the Byrd party in Antarctica. North, South, West, it extends 400 miles; but to the East, no limit was ever found. The Byrd expedition bequeaths to science this great future task: To follow eastward to its mysterious termination the great Ross Ice Barrier.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I don't suppose I've met half a dozen humans in my whole life who didn't mourn their "lost illusions," and who didn't hold a grudge against society for making them lose them.

And what were these precious illusions, the loss of which so marred their careers? On analysis, they invariably proved to be a lot of sugar-candy, adolescent notions about life and people. Hifalutin', sentimental nonsense, for the most part—suitable only for high school sophomores and utterly unrelated to reality.

Now, of course, there's nothing wrong in having such notions while one is a high school sophomore. It's quite natural and desirable at that age to believe that all women are saints and all men heroes, and society a co-operative association of noble, brave, unselfish human beings. But ideas like that are plain tommy-rot when you're out of the trenches and hitting the line. Then it's time you lost your childhood illusions—pronto! For, if you insist on holding on to them, you gum up the works for yourself and every one else.

But this doesn't mean that life shall, hereafter, hold no more illusions. It merely means that you should exchange a child's set of theories for a mature set . . . . that you should grow up, mentally and emotionally. Nor need such growing up be either sad or sordid. Sentimentalists to the contrary, there is quite as much beauty and adventure and high challenge in reality as in romance.

Life isn't necessarily robbed of its splendor and delight because you know the truth about it. The Naked Truth is a very gorgeous lady, even if she does have a few chilblains and a couple of hangnails.

Which same applies to humans. They may not be—they certainly will not be—what you thought them at 18. They will possess weaknesses and vices of which you never dreamed. But, by the same token, they will also possess virtues and visions which never entered your adolescent comprehension. One erring, lovable, bewildered, battling Real Human is worth a dozen of those impossibly perfect creations of your "lost illusions."

A tragedy to lose one's illusions? A tragedy, rather, not to lose them. It's as abnormal to hang on to your baby beliefs as it would be to hang on to your baby teeth. It's as disgusting to use the same ideas at 24 as you used at 18 as it would be to use the same undershirt.

People who have never lost their illusions are not a lovely sight—they are a pitiful and dangerous sight. As dangerous as half wits, which indeed they are, never having attained the full wit of maturity.

Don't mourn over lost illusions. That's what illusions are for . . . to get, to use a little while, and then lose, that greater and wiser illusions may take their place. But, of course, there's the catch. "Getting greater illusions" listens lovely, but it generally implies considerable change and inconvenience. And that's really why we "mourn our lost illusions" . . . not because they made life so beautiful, but because they made life so easy for our lazy, cowardly natures. It's a lot easier to wallow in romantic trash than it is to snap out of it and face red-blooded reality.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

When Stars Unfold

When stars bloom out against the sky
Lilies on blue waters lie;
When they unfold
Their petals gold
And drift on night's tranquility.

Then is man's thought most calm and pure,
Hope then is most serene and sure,
Freed from all doubt
When stars shine out,
Bright stars that evermore endure.

Released on rays of starry light;
Life holds no fear
And heaven bends near
As far worlds lend us their delight.

Text For Today The righteous also shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger.—Job, xvii:9.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. J. Alvin Orr, pastor, First United Presbyterian Church, North Side.)

Remember—HE THINKS

That's Why the British Call Jones "The Greatest Ever."

BOBBY JONES, CONQUEROR. WHAT WILL HE DO NOW?

This photograph, published in the excellent Illustrated London News, has below it the caption, "The Greatest Ever."

The title is deserved. There was never a player at the difficult game of golf to compare with Mr. Jones, of Atlanta, Ga. He holds the open and amateur title of Great Britain and America. He has conquered the world of golf. He can't do more IN GOLF.

The British ask, "What will Jones do now?"

The answer is that Jones will go ahead, like any sensible young American, earning money for his family, providing independence for after years for himself, playing golf when so inclined and not playing when he doesn't want to play.

Nobody, in all probability, will equal his record in a hundred years to come. Occasional defeat as he grows older will come. And as he grows very old he will play with his children and grandchildren and say laughingly, "Anybody can beat ME."

Others will say, "Yes, but once NOBODY COULD BEAT YOU."

This picture is printed for the benefit of young gentlemen who sometimes forget that all real success is based on HARD THINKING.

There is no easy road to a championship, and you don't reach it by accident.

You reach it by THINKING ABOUT IT, and keeping at it.

That applies to championships of all kinds—on the golf links, in business, in science, industry, all through life.

THINK, WORK, MAKE THOUGHT REALITY, and you need not be a genius, you may not be in any line whatever "the greatest ever," but you will be A SUCCESS.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Until 1917, New York had only two de luxe pent houses. Hitherto such roof structures were used by scrubwomen or perhaps a janitor. The two original builders of sky castles—and the two responsible for the fad—were Henry L. Doherty and Percy Rockefeller.

Doherty's was perched atop an office building on State street with an entrancing view of the harbor, and Rockefeller's topped a similar structure on lower Broadway. In '17 a Californian, used to open spaces, moved to New York. Cramped by apartment suffocation he asked a builder to erect a home on some roof.

The builder waxed sarcastic. Roofs were for clothes lines and servants. When Doherty and Rockefeller were mentioned, he exclaimed: "But they are eccentric millionaires who can do crazy things like that and get away with it. If you try it, you'll likely be slapped into an asylum."

This protesting builder today resides in a penthouse overlooking the avenue—a penthouse more glorified than a Ziegfeldian maiden. It occupies the entire top of a monster skyscraper, a country estate in the clouds. Four feet of rich earth make the surrounding grounds.

Rare shrubs grow. Trees twelve and sixteen feet have been planted. There is a babbling brook purling through deep-grassed lawn. Pigeons coo on battlements. Flowers bloom everywhere. And far below is the whirl of that microscopic madness called Manhattan Island.

A tennis court, backed by heavy plate glass, and roofed and heated for winter is a part, too, of the grandeur. Also a miniature golf course. This is but one of hundreds of roof dwellings in the teeming mid-section. Some are bungalows, others Colonial, Tudor, Georgian.

An aerie owned by a rich manufacturer has privet hedge with special steam pipes around the outside to prevent freezing. There are garish awnings, croquet grounds, tennis and ping pong courts. One tiled roof on Madison avenue is a shuffle board. In winter, flooded, it becomes a skating rink.

A benign silver-haired gentleman was crossing Madison avenue at Fifty-third street. A huge goblin-like auto jockeyed him back and forth in rabbit-like leaps. Finally he ran around the side, gave the enameled monster a swift kick, stopped to light his pipe and went on his way. If he will call I'll give him one of my favorite agate marbles. And a big hug.

Lee Olwell is somewhat an antique atheist. But he made a tour with his wife the other afternoon, rhapsodizing, gurgling and spluttering encomiums unfelt. Near one exit a salesman picked up something and unconsciously Olwell cooed: "That is certainly exquisite." The salesman smiled and tossed a discarded rubber into the street.

During the brief glimmer of a lucid interval, we have thought up a dandy guess.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't be too sure of your job.

You think your position is permanent because you believe your work is satisfactory to those concerned.

Your years of service you believe have earned a place for you from which you will not be ousted.

Your sense of security is blinding you to the effect you make less effort.

But you are unwise in your deductions.

Keener competition in business during dull times requires that the person who does hold a job gives his very best to it.

It is no time to let down when so many are looking for work.

Instead, you should redouble your efforts to accomplish your best.

You may be a competent person of many years' experience, but there are scores who could do as well as you in your job if they could get the chance.

It might be more difficult to duplicate your work if you were more thoughtful and energetic about it.

But if you try to hold your job on past performances there's trouble ahead.

Losing a job—a good steady position—at the present time would be more serious perhaps than you realize.
